PLAN TERMINAL TO HANDLE 120 PLANES HOURLY

Accord Reached on Chicago Airport.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Mayor Kelly announced yesterday that the new terminal to be built at Chicago airport will be large enough to utilize the full capacity of the runways—120 plane movements an hour at the peak; 60 incoming and 60 outgoing—as the first necessary step to prepare Chicago to take a position as hub of post-war world air traffic. The structure will be planned eventually to take care of eight times the present plane movements at the airport as air travel expands after the war, and to handle 25,000 passengers a day, in and out, when traffic reaches the airport capacity.

Since Chicago will be a port of entry on the trans-oceanic routes, the terminal will include an immigration office and a federal customs office.

No Cost Announced.

The estimated cost of the terminal building was not announced, but it is expected to be upwards of 3½ million dollars. If the air companies do not increase their loan of $1,200,000 for a terminal, the mayor suggests a bond issue for the rest of the cost might be placed on the ballot at the June judicial election.

Air line officials conferred with Public Works Commissioner Hewitt, who reported they favored plans to build a terminal adequate for the 120 plane an hour in and out capacity of the field. Design, location, and financing of the terminal structure will be discussed later. The recent plan submitted by the companies, which was rejected by the mayor as inadequate, was not based on ultimate capacity of the field.

A second proposal by Mayor Kelly is for a landing strip close to the loop, a single strip runway. This would be designed for planes operating within 500 miles from Chicago, including Detroit, Minneapolis, St. Louis, and Indianapolis. It is to be such that large planes can be handled. Likewise, the mayor said, it may be developed for shuttle service to Chicago airport at Cicero av. and 63d st.

Five Possible Sites.

Five possible sites for runways, two along the lake front and three farther inland, were listed yesterday in the report to the mayor by the city aero commission.

"These projects are the immediate ones to be taken up," said Mayor Kelly. "Our airport is one of the finest in the country.

"This is no makeshift. It is wise expansion. The airport is of capacity enough to take care of air traffic requirements for some time. Heretofore, it has been said the airport, one mile square with dual runways in every direction, has runways of insufficient length. But airplane developments, such as jet propulsion for take-offs and radar for landing, now show our runways are capable of handling the post-war planes.

Pot of Gold for City.

"This airport has suddenly become a pot of gold for Chicago. The terminal building may be placed at the western side of the field—this is a mile farther away but a minute less in travel, for it is on Archer avenue. When this is

Records False, Gregory and Clarke Admit

BY ORVILLE DWYER.

Walter L. Gregory, chairman of the city civil service commission, and William F. Clarke, a member of the commission and dean of the De Paul university law school, were sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $2,500 each by Judge Joseph A. Graber in Superior court yesterday when adjudged guilty of contempt in the case of former Police Capt. Thomas Harrison.

Judge J. A. Graber.

The finding was given after both men admitted from the stand that they signed false documents in connection with Harrison's plea for a review of the trial board proceedings which had resulted in the discharge of Harrison and six other captains for alleged failure to suppress handbook gambling.

President of Race Track.

Gregory also reluctantly admitted that besides being chairman of the civil service commission and vice president of the Palmer House, he is president of the Washington Park Jockey club. Gregory's dual role as head of a race track where betting is legal and head of the police commission was criticized as "untenable" in Harrison's petition for a review of his civil service trial. Harrison's petition charged that Gregory "dominated proceedings" at the trial and showed a "spirit of predetermination, antagonism, and prejudice" toward Harrison.

Clarke, who has been dean of the De Paul university law college for the last 20 years, testified under questioning by Walter Tinsley, attorney for Harrison, that he has been a member of the city civil service body for 18 months. Judge Graber in passing sentence called him a philosopher as well.

Cashin Also Faces Citation.

James B. Cashin, Negro, the third member of the commission, faces a similar contempt trial when he returns to the city. Assistant Corporation Counsels Carl Lundquist and Fred C. McGuire, who appeared for Gregory and Clarke, informed the court that Cashin is "on a mission for President Roosevelt." He is said to be in Africa. Judge Graber ordered that a report be filed by Dec. 15 stating when Cashin is expected to appear in court.

Judge Graber directed that the formal order sentencing Gregory and Clarke be drawn for his signature at 10:30 a. m. today. He allowed the two defendants their liberty until then and the city's lawyers said they would file a motion for a stay of sentence to allow an appeal.

Two Documents Involved.

The false documents Gregory and Clarke admitted signing are [1] an alleged record of the conclusions on which the commission sitting as a trial board discharged Harrison, and [2] the commissioners' sworn answer to the contempt petition, filed with the court.

The two commissioners admitted that the conclusions, which the citation described as "purported findings and decision," altho dated June 16, did not come into existence until June 21, when Commissioner

Convicts Seize 4 Guards in Atlanta Revolt

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 5 [Special].—Atlanta federal penitentiary was in a state of secret siege tonight as 25 long term prisoners defied efforts to break their mutiny and force them to give up four guards they are holding as hostages.

The rebelling convicts hold control of the four story building housing the prison's segregation unit, in which they were "solitary" inmates. A number of other prisoners are still in cells in the building, the keys of which are held by the mutineers.

The four guards, unharmed thus far, were beginning their second day as prisoners. They were seized last night by the convicts in a sudden uprising in protest against their incarceration in the same building with German saboteurs and spies.

Details Are Withheld.

A cloak of secrecy was thrown about the tense activities inside the famed penitentiary, newsmen being denied admittance and only brief formal statements being issued by Warden Joseph W. Sanford and James V. Bennett, national director of prisons, who happened to be here from Washington on an inspection trip.

Both officials declined to give details of what was transpiring during the long efforts to halt the mutiny, how the hostages were seized, or particulars of the cause of the outbreak.

Altho Bennett said the four guards were unarmed when they were overpowered last night, it was believed by some persons that the rebellious convicts are armed and that prison officials are proceeding slowly and carefully in the hope of avoiding bloodshed, especially in the case of the hostages.

Both Sanford and Bennett said they had seen the hostages tonight thru windows of the segregation unit and that the four were unharmed. The guards were identified as Reno H. Townsend, Orlin Harper, John W. Bacon, and Henry B. Pittlekow, all of Atlanta.

All Long Termers.

"All of the men who apparently are involved are long term prisoners who have been difficult cases over a considerable period of time," Sanford said. "They have barricaded the doors of the building.

"It has been impossible so far to learn exactly the cause of the difficulty, except that some objection has been made to the quartering of German saboteurs and spies in the same building. Naturally they are also protesting their own segregation."

No information was given as to the number of other prisoners, in addition to the rebels, who were in the barricaded building. It was known, however, that new arrivals are taken there for a period of quarantine.

Neither was it known whether the insubordinates had food to withstand a long siege, but it was assumed they have some provisions, for the building has a mess hall. About 2,000 other prisoners in the big penitentiary took no part in the disturbance.

BRITAIN DECORATES 5 U. S. ADMIRALS FOR D-DAY OPERATIONS

LONDON, Dec. 5 [Reuters].—Five American admirals who commanded naval forces in the invasion of Normandy have been awarded high British decorations, it was officially announced today.

"For distinguished service in the planning and execution of the successful operations which led to the invasion of Normandy," Vice Adm. Alan G. Kirk was invested with the KCB, and Rear Adm. J. Leslie Hall Jr., Rear Adm. Carleton F. Bryant, Rear Adm. Morton L. Deyo, and the late Rear Adm. Don P. Moon received the honorary distinguished service order.

Vice Adm. Kirk, who was invested by King George at Buckingham palace, commanded all United States naval forces in the western task force on D-day and is the only American officer who has received honorary knighthood for his part in the invasion.

Hunt for Briton's Slayer Turns to Yank Airdrome

HONINGHAM, England, Dec. 5 (AP).—Officers of a United States air force unit searched their airdrome tonight for a gun which it was believed would lead to the person who killed Eric Teichman, 60, British diplomat, on his estate Sunday night. Two wads of chewing gum, the lethal bullet, and 10 cartridge cases that fit carbines used by American troops are clews to the slayer. Teichman was killed as he was investigating trespassing hunters.

Ike's O. K. Gets Yank to Ill Wife in 17 Hours

"I, dreaming, walked in Adren's woods. . . ."

The voice, clear and full, had not been heard in public since 1933, the year when E. H. Sothern died and the speaker, Julia Marlowe, his wife, went into retirement.

Now subdued, now intense, Miss Marlowe read unfalteringly to the end:

". . . Sweet ladies I have loved and lost."

Husband Wrote Poem.

"My husband wrote this poem for me," she said softly.

Juliet, Rosalind, Lady Macbeth—those were the ladies Julia Marlowe had played. Her costumes and portraits were around her as she spoke—her gift to the museum of the City of New York.

Now 78, her hair nearly white beneath a black velvet cloche, she wore orchids when she appeared to present 17 trunkloads of theatrical material that belonged to her, her husband and her husband's father, E. A. Sothern.

Relics of Tradition.

There were prompt books, jeweled daggers, photographs—relics of an acting tradition that dates from the middle of the last century, when the elder Sothern first played Lord Dundreary in New York.

Miss Marlowe's husband captivated the city in 1885 with a play to raise funds for the Statue of Liberty pedestal. His wife's debut, as Parthenia in the forgotten "Ingomar," came two years later.

She still was Juliet to many who applauded her entrance today.

Patton Forces New Crossing of Saar River

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Dec. 5 (AP).—Breaking across the Saar river at a new point south of Saarlautern, Lt. Gen. Patton's American 3d army hammered a second wedge into the Siegfried line today as the battle for Germany, six months after the allied invasion, raged unabated.

Heavy fighting, costly to the allies as well as to the Germans, slowed the advance on much of the western front, but the 3d army, now holding a stretch of Germany 40 miles long, made gains of up to three miles during the day, grinding within six miles of the bomb-battered industrial city of Saarbrucken and within three miles of Sarreguemines.

Toll of Nazis 9,000 Daily.

It was estimated that seven allied armies—five of them fighting on German soil and two others drawn up along the reich's Rhine river boundary in the south—were eliminating Germans at the rate of 9,000 daily, a loss of about five Nazi divisions every week.

The estimate of 9,000 permanent casualties daily for the Germans was based on a probable loss of 3,000 a day on each of the three main divisions of the front—the Aachen gap area beyond the Siegfried line, the 3d army front partly in Germany and partly in France, and the 6th army group's front in the south.

The figure includes prisoners as well as killed and seriously wounded. The allies have taken an average of 3,000 prisoners a day since the current winter offensive began.

Allies Hit Heavily, Too.

Allied losses were secret, of course, but the grim war of attrition has not been all one sided. In fighting as bloody as that of recent weeks they are bound to be heavy. Normally they might be expected to be as great, if not greater, than the enemy's because the allies are doing the attacking. Their preponderance of air power and artillery may not make this so in the present case, however.

The exact location of the new bridgehead across the Saar was not disclosed, but an Associated Press correspondent said the 95th division, which made the crossing, had driven a mile beyond the river and penetrated into the outer defenses of the Siegfried line.

Other elements of the same division widened the original bridgehead across the Saar to two and one-half miles at the base and stabbed beyond the arsenal city of Saarlautern, altho fighting continued inside the city as special details of doughboys endeavored to clean out resistance there.

Mop Up in Two Towns.

A front dispatch said the 379th regiment of the 95th division continued cleanup of the Saarlautern satellite towns, Roden and Fraulautern, on the east bank of the river opposite Saarlautern. There was no report of any substantial enlargement of this first bridgehead.

[A German Transocean agency broadcast said the battle for Saarlautern "had reached its climax" after a day of desperate fighting with part of the city occupied by the allies and part by the Germans.]

Elements of the 378th regiment of the 95th division pushed across the Saar and into the outer defenses of the Siegfried line zone south of Saarlautern, a front dispatch said.

The 6th armored division rolled forward three miles to Rouhling, six miles south of Saarbrucken, which is being shelled and bombed.

Advance at Three Points.

The 35th division's 134th regiment shoved two miles to the northeast, taking Woustwiller, three miles southwest of Sarreguemines. The 26th infantry and 4th armored divisions in northward thrusts east of the Saar gained up to three miles.

The day's advances put American vanguards three miles or less from Sarreguemines, on the west bank of the Saar just across from Germany, at three points.

The 4th armored, operating six and a half miles east of the Saar, moved two and a half miles northeastward, nearing Dehlingen, five miles east of Sarre Union and 10 miles southeast of Sarreguemines.

This rolling back of the Germans was accompanied by a fighter-

TANKS FIRE ON LEFTISTS STORMING ATHENS JAIL

Rioters Lay Siege to Police Barracks; Troops Called.

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 5 (AP).—Fierce fighting continued in Athens today as the ELAS, fighting force of the left wing EAM, national liberation front party, laid siege to various police barracks and were dispersed by British tanks and Greek mountain brigade troops.

A bulletin issued by Maj. Gen. R. M. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece, disclosed that British tanks had fired on the ELAS for the first time yesterday.

"At one place," it said, "tanks fired a few rounds into houses held by left wing elements which were attacking the civil prison, where a number of alleged collaborators were held. British troops and gendarmerie guarding the prison suffered some casualties."

Leftist Forces Mass.

ELAS units reportedly are assembling in various outlying parts of the country and preparing to march on the capital. The city still was tied up by a general strike.

Scobie charged that the ELAS, which technically is under his command, was guilty of mutiny.

Themistokles Sophoulis, 85, dean of the Greek Liberal party, charged that Prime Minister Churchill, thru instructions to British diplomats here, had vetoed replacing Premier Papandreou in a change of government which might have solved the nation's crisis.

He said Churchill had sent word that replacing Papandreou was "impossible."

Asked to Form Cabinet.

Sophoulis, recounting political events since Sunday's disorders, said he had been approached by all parties, including the Communists, and asked to form a new government, "even tho the Communists know I do not share their views."

Papandreou had offered to resign as head of the harassed government. He had suggested that a coalition cabinet be formed under Sophoulis' leadership.

"Papandreou should have resigned when six ministers handed in their portfolios because his 'government of national unity' thereby was deprived of representatives of a large section of the nation," Sophoulis said.

He said Papandreou was among those who asked him to head a new government and that he had expressed desire to confer again with leftist leaders. Today, he said, their representatives called on him a second time and expressed their willingness to participate in a cabinet under him "in order to prevent further deterioration of the situation and bloodshed."

British Minister Calls.

"Later this morning," he continued, "British Minister Leaper called at my house and told me that according to the latest instructions received from the British premier 'any change in the present head of the government is impossible.'"

"Therefore," Sophoulis said, "further discussion is needless."

Scobie called at Sophoulis' home at lunch time, the Liberal leader said, and expressed a desire for Sophoulis' coöperation in supporting Papandreou.

"I answered that I had fought all my life against dictatorship," Sophoulis said. "If I supported Papandreou, I would be supporting dictatorship."

U. S. STATEMENT ON ITALY STIRS ALLIED DISCORD

London and Rome were spluttering last night in their efforts to digest the state department's declaration yesterday that the United States expects the Italians to form their own government without outside interference.

Interpreted in both capitals as a direct slap at British policy toward liberated countries, it also was expected to have powerful repercussions in Greece, where Great Britain has taken a vigorous stand in support of the present Greek government against leftist groups which are insisting on the right of the Greeks to choose their own form of government.

In Rome, the reaction on the part of Socialists and the so-called Action party, was one of jubilation. The declaration apparently killed any hope of welding these two groups into a government that Premier Ivanoe Bonomi was trying to form.

In Britain parliamentary leaders viewed the American statement as a gross breach of diplomatic procedure. It was suggested, following a cabinet meeting, that Prime Minister Churchill may make a personal statement in the house of commons today on the United States attitude.

At the same time, there were reports of increasing pressure for another conference by Churchill, Stalin, and Roosevelt in an effort to arrive at some unified plan on diplomacy, as well as on the conduct of the war.

Detailed developments of the day follow:

'NO INTERFERENCE'

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5 (AP).—The United States today told Britain—and indirectly Russia—that European peoples should be allowed to work out their own governments without interference.

The notice, given in a statement issued by the state department, was interpreted to mean this government is sticking one foot tentatively in the door of European politics.

The declaration applied specifically to Italy. It was given the widest possible application, however, by the concluding sentence which said that while the United States opposes "outside" interference in Italy "this policy would apply to an even more pronounced degree with regard to governments of the united nations in their liberated territories."

"Worked Hard"—Stettinius.

It was the first declaration of foreign policy issued since Secretary Stettinius took charge. Stettinius told a news conference he had worked hard on the statement.

Diplomats studied it with a view to its possible application to Greece, Belgium, Poland, and other countries whose governments have recently been involved in political upheavals. There is an increasing tendency here to interpret these conflicts as a kind of contest for power between Britain and Russia, with these big nations seeking to promote developments in the smaller countries which would favor their own interests.

Identified with Liberals.

One of the spectacular figures in Italian politics is Count Carlo Sforza. Sforza is identified with the Italian liberal movement and American diplomats regard him as a kind of symbol of political democracy to the Italian people. At the same time they criticize some of his personal activities.

Last week, when the Italian government was being reorganized, Sforza was proposed for the foreign

COMMITTEE ACTS TO GIVE HOUSE TREATY VOICE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5 (AP).—The house judiciary committee today approved a proposed constitutional amendment to give the house of representatives a voice in future treaty ratifications.

The committee voted 14 to 4 to send to the floor a resolution by its chairman, Rep. Sumners [D., Tex.], which would abolish the senate's two-thirds vote control over treaties and make future international pacts subject to ratification by a majority vote of both houses.

The resolution must pass the house and the senate and be ratified by three-fourths of the state legislatures to become effective.

minister portfolio. British officials in Italy vetoed the proposal and Foreign Secretary Eden subsequently told commons Sforza had worked against two previous Italian regimes to which he belonged.

Recent British Tactics.

One reason behind today's blunt statement by the state department is dissatisfaction here over tactics used by the British in making an issue of an individual and in acting independently of the United States in an area of joint control. American officials consider that this not only was a violation of allied procedures, but also that it retarded the development of the goal which the United States wants in Italy, which is political independence of choice on the part of the Italians themselves.

The state department, in response to queries about the American position, said today that "the composition of the Italian government is purely an Italian affair except in the case of appointments where important military factors are concerned."

It disavowed "any opposition" to Sforza and disclosed that both Britain and Italy have been notified "that we expect the Italians to work out their problems of government along democratic lines without influence from outside."

In the case of Greece the American policy is somewhat clouded. No American troops are operating in the Balkans. There is hope here that the British will find it possible to let the Greek people work out their own affairs.

Text of Statement.

The text of the state department declaration follows:

"The position of this government has been consistently that the composition of the Italian government is purely an Italian affair except in the case of appointments where important military factors are concerned.

"This government has not in any way intimated to the Italian government that there would be any opposition on its part to Count Sforza. Since Italy is an area of combined responsibility, we have reaffirmed to both the British and Italian governments that we expect the Italians to work out their problems of government along democratic lines without influence from outside.

"This policy would apply to an even more pronounced degree with regard to governments of the united nations in their liberated territories."

SLAP STARTLES LONDON

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The American state department's slap at British policy toward liberated countries startled the London government, it was disclosed tonight by the reaction among diplomatic observers.

Following a cabinet meeting to consider a Labor party demand for a debate on the Greek situation, it was suggested that Prime Minister Churchill may make a personal statement in the house of commons tomorrow on the United States attitude. Some members of parliament voiced a belief that the state department publicly intended to rebuke British interference of the composition of the Italian government and to dissociate the United States from British policy in Greece.

Labor Circles Surprised.

Labor circles professed surprise at disclosure that Britain had vetoed the proposal to make Count Carlo Sforza Italy's foreign minister and had taken action in Greece on its own responsibility. Conservative commentators sought to excuse both on the ground that there was no time for consultation owing to the speed with which events developed.

One suggestion heard in parliament's lobbies was that the position of Italy and Greece is now so delicate that the only way of achieving a settlement would be for President Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin to discuss the problem around the same table.

Behind the "surprise, amazement, and gravity" with which they supposedly view the American action, there were indications that the British are annoyed by what they consider the state department's disregard for the niceties of diplomacy. The state department said it had "reaffirmed to both the British and Italian governments" the need for Italians to solve their own problems without interference.

The British view summed up by one diplomatic commentator is:

"If it is unusual in war time alliances for one ally thus publicly to repudiate the actions of another, it must be unique to place the ally on the same plane as a defeated enemy."

Bonomi "Cabinet" Scatters.

ROME, Dec. 5.—The state department's declaration that the United States expected the Italians to form a government "without influence from outside" dropped on Rome like a V-2 missile and temporarily scattered Premier Ivanoe Bonomi's almost formed government to the winds.

Pietro Nenni, Socialist leader, rushed in and waved a paper with the text of the declaration as Bonomi was conferring in the Viminale palace with the secretaries of the four parties that were expected to emerge with a cabinet list. Emilio Lussa, the Action party leader, trailed excitedly after Nenni and one of them was heard to say: "Well I guess this shows we have been right after all."

Both the Actionists and the Socialists refused to join any government under Bonomi.

Army Stands Ready, Says Churchill in Commons.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The British army in Greece is being reënforced to maintain law and order and prevent the Communists from imposing a dictatorship on the country by violence, Prime Minister Churchill told the house of commons today.

"Greece is faced with the most desperate economic and financial problems, apart from the civil war which we are trying to stop," he said. "We and our American allies are doing our utmost to give assistance, and our troops are acting to prevent bloodshed."

The prime minister's statement came as a reply to a request for information regarding Sunday's disturbance in Athens when police reportedly fired on youthful demonstrators.

Decries Outbreak of Disorder.

He said the demonstration had been called by the leftist EAM organization in defiance of a government ban. He refused to say who started firing, but announced that 11 demonstrators and one policeman had been killed and 60 demonstrators and three policemen had been wounded. He decried the outbreak of disorder so soon after liberation of the city.

Churchill warned that the Greek government could not exercise its constitutional authority as long as private armies owing allegiance to any group, party or ideology existed.

"The left wing and communist ministers have resigned from the Greek government at this dangerous crisis rather than implement measures to which they had already agreed for the replacement of the EAM police and guerrillas by regular national services," he said.

"In addition, the EAM leaders have called a general strike which is, for the time being, preventing the food we and America are providing from reaching the mouths of the population we are trying to feed."

Need Support of Greeks.

The main burden of preserving law and order rested on the allies, Churchill said.

He emphasized, however, that without the support of the entire Greek people allied plans to provide relief and revive Greek economy cannot succeed.

"We cannot do this if tommy guns which were provided for use against the Germans now are used in an attempt to impose by violence a Communist dictatorship without the people being able to express their wishes," he added.

Churchill said that whether the Greek people form themselves into a monarchy or a republic or whether they elect a government of rightist or leftist tendencies is up to them.

"Until they are in a position to decide we shall not hesitate to use the considerable British army now in Greece, and being reënforced, to see that law and order are maintained," he said.

Promises Free Election.

Answering questions at the end of his statement, Churchill said: "We shall certainly take care that the Greek government is not used to fasten any rule or faction on the Greek people. They will have the fullest opportunity of a free election."

Harry Pollitt, British communist leader, tonight warned the government that British workers "won't stand idly by and see their Greek comrades once more placed under the domination of Greek pro-fascist forces."

Fenner Bockway, political secretary of the Independent Labor party, said that serious consequences, which might involve Anglo-Russian relations, were likely to follow British action in "siding with right against left in Greece."

Twenty Laborite, Independent, and Commonwealth members of commons submitted what amounts to a resolution. It demands that British forces "not be used to disarm friends of democracy in Greece or other parts of Europe."

Hero and Wife

Capt. and Mrs. Maurice L. Britt in New York yesterday.

New York, Dec. 5 (AP).—Capt. Maurice L. Britt of Lonoke, Ark., believed to be the first of the nation's soldiers to receive the three top United States combat awards in this war, today told how he lost his right arm when wounded for the fourth time in action at Anzio beachhead.

"I could have done without that last one," he said, referring to the injury last Feb. 10, when a German tank shell struck his arm.

Britt, who appeared at the interview with his 21 year old wife, is scheduled to receive the distinguished service cross here Thursday. He already holds the medal of honor and the silver star.

CIGARET BEGGAR SLAIN; ARREST N. Y. POLICEMAN

New York, Dec. 5 (AP).—A police sergeant was ordered arrested today on a charge of suspicion of homicide in the fatal shooting of Michael Condon, 52, who was slain on the lower Bowery by a man who refused to give him a cigaret.

Alexander Herman, assistant district attorney, said he had ordered the arrest of Sgt. Anthony Fox, 43, after examination of the bullets which killed Condon disclosed they had been fired from a pistol in Fox's possession.

Police said the shooting occurred after Condon, identified thru a social security card, had berated a man who declined to give him a cigaret.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5 (AP).—Congressional action was completed today on legislation establishing pensions ranging up to $74 monthly for families of deceased World War I veterans. White House approval appears certain.

In the first year of operation, the plan is expected to cost the government $37,000,000.

Under the senate's scale of pensions accepted today by the house, eligible childless widows will get $35 monthly. Other benefits include $45 for a widow with one child and $5 monthly for each additional child.

INDUSTRY PLANS NOVEL POST-WAR USES OF NYLON

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 4.—Nylon stockings will probably not be available until after the defeat of Japan, according to officials at du Pont's here, which owns the patents on the highly prized synthetic yarn. However, with yarn production facilities expanded for war purposes to 180 per cent of pre-Pearl Harbor capacity, it is anticipated that the sheer hosiery will reach the retail market in large quantities within two months after America's victory in the Pacific.

Military demands for Nylon have increased so rapidly that women can no longer hope for the better stockings after Germany surrenders but they must wait for the defeat of Japan, it was learned here. This development will postpone civilian use of nylon but will also increase the peace time supply not only for hosiery but for a multitude of uses, some of them novel.

New Uses in Peace.

The new uses for nylon are part of this corporation's war time preparations for peace. The management has announced that it expects to retain all of its army of workers, which has swollen from 60,000 to 115,400 under the pressure of a variety of military contracts.

The production of nylon was in its infancy when the war started. Research was started in 1928 by the late Dr. Wallace H. Carothers of the University of Illinois and its discovery is dated 1935. It was first marketed in 1939.

By February of 1942 du Pont was shipping nylon yarn to hosiery mills at a rate of 3,000 tons a year. And in that month the government diverted the entire production to military uses, which included parachutes, bomber tires, glider tow ropes, and battle clothing.

Plants Are Enlarged.

At the request of the government, two existing nylon plants at Seaford, Del., and Martinsville, Va., are being enlarged, and a third plant is to be built near Chattanooga, Tenn. The total capacity will enable du Pont to deliver 11,000 to 11,500 tons of nylon hosiery yarn annually, which is estimated as enough for every woman in America to have 11 pairs a year.

There'll also be enough nylon for other women's garments and it is believed here that men's shirts, underwear, and sox of this material will be popular after the war. Furthermore, trousers can be made of nylon for a permanent crease. Window curtains will not require stretching. Window screens of nylon will be rustproof and can be rolled up rather than taken down in the winter. A nylon rain coat can be rolled and carried in a hip pocket.

Good as Insulator.

As a plastic, nylon is an improved insulator that perfects the function of electronics, including television and F-M.

As a coating, it can weatherproof outdoor furniture. On bearings in machinery it requires no lubricant except water. Hair springs have been fashioned from nylon. Designed as any one of a variety of fabrics, it resists moisture and flames and doesn't tempt destructive insects and molds.

It's these desirable characteristics that have expanded the military demand for nylon, especially for use in the tropics where insects and fungi are highly destructive. Some of the orders are military secrets, but enough of them are known to dispel as unfounded gossip that nylon is being withheld from the market for the benefit of the rayon industry. The limited supply of nylon that now reaches the civilian public is from military rejects and scraps.

Du Pont's Policy.

The Du Pont policy of planning reconversion as applied to the national economy was enunciated by Dr. Cole Coolidge, a company official, as follows:

"There can be no victory in this war if its end brings widespread unemployment and want in the United States. Even now we take counsel and consider the changes that must come with peace. As a people we are united in the objectives of this post-war effort as we are in our determination to crush Germany and Japan.

"Near the top on every one's list in the hope for a high level of productive employment—for an economy that will provide jobs for our returning veterans, for those now making war materials, and for the youth that will come to maturity in the happier years which will follow the war.

"There is ample ground for entertaining such hopes. Research has provided millions of jobs in the past, and there is reason to believe it can do it again."

Win in Court

Mrs. Mary Sella and her son, Allen, after she won continued support from estranged husband.

Emil Sella, 48, assistant curator of the Museum of Natural History, refused yesterday to be reconciled with his wife, Mary, 38, and Judge John A. Sbarbaro in Superior court denied Sella's petition for a reduction in his support payments of $22 a week. Mrs. Sella of 3144 East End av., represented by Atty. Sol R. Friedman, is seeking separate maintenance on the ground of desertion. They were married June 11, 1922, separated July 11, 1944, and have two sons, Robert, 21, an army sergeant, and Allen, 17, who said yesterday he wants to join the merchant marine. Sella appeared with Atty. Michael Dolan to ask a reduction in support because Allen has left high school.

City to Continue Drive on Stickerless Autos

The police drive to compel all motorists to have their automobiles tested at the city's safety lanes will be continued for several weeks or until all autos in the city have safety stickers, Edward J. Gorman, acting public vehicle license commissioner, said yesterday. He estimated there are still more than 100,000 stickerless autos in the city. In the last two days more than 8,000 cars have passed thru the lanes, Gorman said.

HOUSE FREEZES SECURITY LEVY AT 1% FOR 1945

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—The house, by a vote of 262 to 72, today approved a bill to freeze the pay roll social security tax for 1945 at 1 per cent each for employes and employers.

Under the present law, the pay roll tax automatically would double next Jan. 1 to 2 per cent each for workers and employers. Proponents of the freeze contended that the reserve fund for benefit payments will be ample for some time at the present rate. The tax applies to the first $3,000 earned each year.

The administration sought to prevent the freeze on the ground that reserves should be built up for the increased number of benefits to be met in future years, but all except six voting Republicans and a 3 to 2 majority of the Democrats supported the freeze in today's vote.

Veto Forecast.

Congressional leaders predicted the senate will concur in the house action, but forecast the measure will be vetoed by President Roosevelt. They said it is doubtful whether both houses would have the necessary two-thirds majority to pass the bill over a veto.

Rep. Doughton [D., N. C.], chairman of the house ways and means committee, who supported the freeze, explained that the committee will survey the social security fund and future benefits. On the basis of the survey, to be completed by next June 30, the committee will make recommendations as to future pay roll tax rates, he said.

Frozen Three Straight Years.

The tax was originally scheduled to double in 1942, but was frozen at 1 per cent by congress for three successive years. Provisions in the present law, which are unchanged by today's action, would raise the levy to 2½ per cent each for workers and employers in 1946 and to 3 per cent in 1949.

Rep. Knutson [R., Minn.], ranking minority member of the ways and means group, speaking for the freeze, said the reserve fund now is 6 billion dollars and the annual income at the 1 per cent rate is 1 billion 300 million dollars.

Against this income, he said, outgoing payments are running only 200 million a year and are estimated not to exceed 700 million annually in the next five years.

MARTIN H. KENNELLY AGAIN WILL DIRECT RED CROSS CAMPAIGN

Martin H. Kennelly, president of the Werner Bros.-Kennelly Co., will lead the 1945 Red Cross war fund campaign as general chairman, Henry F. Tenney, Chicago chapter chairman, said yesterday at a preliminary organization meeting in the Chicago club. It will be the third consecutive year that Kennelly has led the Red Cross drive.

Neither the national nor local goal for the 1945 drive has been set yet, Tenney said. Even if the European war should end quickly, however, the Red Cross will have to maintain undiminished service to the men under arms while its tasks in the liberated countries go up steadily, he added. The organization now has 16,000 persons overseas.

Kennelly said that in this year's drive the major objective will be to achieve the goal as quickly as possible and to conserve man power.

AP PROTESTS U.S. MOVE TO MAKE IT SHARE SUCCESS

Final Arguments Open in Supreme Court.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—With several justices evincing their keen interest by pointed questions, the Supreme court today listened to the opening of oral arguments in the government's anti-trust suit against the Associated Press and its member newspapers.

The importance of the action, held by the defendants to threaten the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press, attracted an audience of well-known publishers and lawyers.

Justice Jackson disqualified himself from participation in consideration of the case, leaving the bench. No reason was given. It was assumed he had been interested in the action while attorney general altho he assumed his court seat Oct. 6, 1941, almost a year before the department of justice launched its prosecution.

"A Novel Concept."

Atty. John T. Cahill, representing the AP, spoke for an hour. He labeled the government's basis for the suit "a novel concept" of the Sherman anti-trust law. Government control of the press was directly involved, he asserted.

Atty. Howard Ellis, representing the Tribune company and Col. Robert R. McCormick as one of the defendant members, had started his argument when court adjourned until tomorrow. The court has granted a total of three hours to each side for oral arguments and justice department attorneys will finish after Ellis has concluded.

The case was taken to the high court on appeal from a decision by a special three judge federal court in the southern district of New York. The lower court ruled the AP should be restrained from observing by-laws under which members might consider the competitive ability of an applicant for membership.

Cahill told the court that the case arose because Marshall Field's Chicago Sun was not admitted to membership and that the government's object in the suit was to force the AP to admit that paper.

Tells of FBI Activity.

"After the Chicago Sun's application came up, a notice of a meeting was sent out to decide upon it," he declared, "and the department of justice loosed 26 federal bureau of investigation agents to interview the members who would do the voting. They resented this government pressure and rejected the application. The government then brought this suit.

"If there is any danger to the press involved in these proceedings it is the danger solely of government control. If the suit is successful the AP from now on can never be free of the fear of government censure."

Chief Justice Stone led the questioning of Cahill. He interrupted repeatedly to demand what infractions of the Sherman act were charged by the government and what evidence of restraint of trade.

Deprived of "Full Illumination."

"What was said to be the infringement of the act?" Justice Stone asked.

"The infringement of the act, Mr. Chief Justice, is found in an expression for which a novel title was invented: 'Full Illumination.' The majority said that to deprive any newspaper of the service of any news agency of the first rating is to deprive the public of 'full illumination' and that wherever that occurs, since we are in the field of news, that that constitutes a violation of the Sherman act. The majority go on to say that they do that only because this is the press."

Cahill pursued his discussion of the government's position before the Supreme court.

"The government," he said, "asserts in this court that when business men organize a successful joint organization, they may not keep that organization or its products for themselves. The members of the organization may, like the Associated Press, have scrupulously conducted themselves to avoid coercive or monopolistic conduct, but the government nevertheless says in this court that if the members keep to themselves any advantage derived from their organization, declining to share it with competitors, they violate the anti-trust laws."

Asks Nature of Violation.

Stone broke in to say:

"Would you proceed to show us just the precise way in which the government contends that the AP violates the anti-trust law?"

CAHILL—I can, Mr. Chief Justice. The government's theory is very succinctly expressed by saying that it is an egalitarian economic philosophy, an egalitarian [equalitarian] concept of economics, that if at any time you gain a competitive advantage thru an organization of business men that does not take in all applicants, your failure to take in all applicants constitutes a violation of the anti-trust law.

STONE—I had supposed that one of the objects of the Sherman act was to stimulate competition and that only restraints of competition would be in violation; at least that the first step in the violation of the Sherman act was a restraint upon competition.

CAHILL—I have always felt it was, Mr. Chief Justice.

STONE—Now let's get their point. Were restraints found here and, if so, what were their nature.

CAHILL—The only restraint . . . is in the respect that the existing by-laws do provide that there are methods whereby the competitive elements, so the majority says, may be taken into consideration.

A Government "Must."

As Cahill went on to explain the government position Stone broke in again and this exchange followed:

STONE—"You mean that you may or may not accept as members your competitors?"

CAHILL—"That they say in effect 'must' accept."

STONE—"You must take them in?"

CAHILL—"You must, under the effect of the judgment below, take in your competitors."

STONE—"If one railroad takes in another competitor, we have been saying for a long time that couldn't be done."

Justice Frankfurter entered the exchange to ask: "Before you go on with your case, do I understand it is the government's position . . . that they are dealing with the same stuff as tho this were peanuts and potatoes?"

Seen as Public Utility.

Cahill argued that the government seeks to use an anti-trust statute "to justify imposing, for reasons for alleged public policy having nothing to do with competition, public utility obligations."

Frankfurter broke in: "Why has it nothing to do with competition and yet, according to the figures . . . the denial of so important a service as the AP is certainly the withholding of something which would be advantageous to a paper?"

CAHILL—"It is alleged in the complaint, Mr. Justice, that there is a competitive advantage. That is denied in the answer."

The question of competitive advantages of papers served by the AP was pursued at length by Frankfurter.

Cites New York News.

"The New York Daily News built the largest circulation in the country, 1,200,000 daily, without the AP service," Cahill retorted. "This case involves no question of monopoly, domination, indispensability, power over others, or inadequacy of competition. We submit the members of the AP are erroneously being denied the right to choose their own associates, keep their product for their own use, and deal with whom they please. The government, in this action, has put forward an entirely novel concept of the anti-trust law."

"Under this theory, wouldn't it mean that a business chain which had built up a great competitive business would be compelled to take in any one who wanted to belong?" asked Chief Justice Stone.

Cahill said he didn't know how far the theory could be stretched, but that the government appeared to want to impose "a penalty for sheer excellence."

"No court that I know of ever held that the members of a successful organization had to share their success with their competitors," he said.

Mother Gets Sentence of Year

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Clara Thomas and Edward Feldhaus, sentenced to a year in the Bridewell, as they appeared in Women's court yesterday with her children, Carol Ann, 9; Norman, 5, and George, 3.

Accused by Child

Mrs. Clara Thomas, 27, of 2813 N. Leavitt st., mother of four children and the wife of a soldier, and Edward Feldhaus, 41, of 4525 Clifton av., employed by the Home Owners Loan corporation, were sentenced to one year in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Eugene J. Holland in Women's court.

Mrs. Thomas was charged with contributing to the dependency of her children, and Feldhaus, with whom she was accused of living intermittently, was charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors.

Mrs. Ruth Reister, a policewoman attached to the Sheffield Avenue station, told the court that Mrs. Thomas frequently left her children alone and went out with Feldhaus. In a statement read to the court the woman's oldest child, Carol Ann, 9, said she had seen her mother and Feldhaus in bed together. Mrs. Thomas said she had asked her husband, Pvt. George Thomas, stationed at Camp Wolters, Tex., for a divorce. Judge Holland said he would consider a plea for probation Dec. 31.

BABY BY PROXY WAS SOLDIER'S IDEA, SAYS WIFE

Mrs. Irma Brennan, 21, of 5114 Bishop st., who became the mother of a baby girl 14 months after her soldier husband Gerald, 31, was last home, answered his charge of adultery yesterday by testifying in Superior court that he had asked her to have a child by another man because he was unable to be a father.

The baby, Amanda, was born July 19, 1943. Mrs. Brennan said her husband, a private now stationed in Trinidad, British West Indies, left for the army May 4, 1942, after requesting her to find a man who would be a father for a child which they could have.

Says He Expressed Joy.

"He couldn't have a child, and he asked me to have one," she cried.

When she wrote her husband a few months later that she was to be a mother, she said, he expressed joy in many letters and started sending her $10 or $15 a month for pre-natal care. He was given a furlough in May, 1944, when Amanda was 10 months old, and he showed the baby proudly to all the neighbors, Mrs. Brennan said.

Brennan was given another furlough from Sept. 10 to Oct. 7, his wife said, and he continued to accept Amanda as his own, altho he knew he was not the father. But on Sept. 21, she added, he secretly filed suit for divorce on the ground of adultery.

Seeks Injunction.

Atty. Eugene Megan, representing Brennan, appeared before Superior Judge John A. Sbarbaro yesterday to petition for an injunction to restrain Mrs. Brennan from disposing of the $50 a month allotment she receives.

Mrs. Brennan appeared with Atty. Samuel M. Starr to oppose the injunction.

MRS. RUTH HANNA SIMMS FAILS TO GAIN IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, Republican leader from New Mexico and publisher of the Rockford [Ill.] Morning Star and the Rockford Register-Republic, was in an extremely serious condition at Billings Memorial hospital yesterday after an operation Monday for pancreatitis. The operation was performed by Dr. Dallas B. Phemister, chairman of the department of surgery of the University of Chicago medical school. Pancreatitis was described as inflammation of the pancreas.

Mrs. Simms left the same hospital only a short time ago after a long convalescence with a broken shoulder. She was injured when a horse fell on her near Alamosa, Colo., in October. Mrs. Simms is 64.

Her husband, former Rep. Albert G. Simms [R., N. M.] was en route yesterday from their Albuquerque, N. M., home. At Mrs. Simms' bedside were two daughters, Mrs. Peter Miller, 219 Lake Shore dr., and Mrs. Cortlandt Barnes of New York.

SHAKEUP CALLED NEW DEAL MOVE FOR WORLD WPA

MacLeish Opposed by 4 Committee Members.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—Tremendous significance attaches to the state department shakeup, according to information percolating today from the inner circle of the Roosevelt administration.

Harry Hopkins.

The reorganization of personnel and duties is described as the outward manifestation of plans for making the state department a mighty engine of international activity to establish a new league of nations to enforce peace, to extend the New Deal to the world, to negotiate world economic agreements, and to extend financial assistance to Great Britain and other nations.

Architect of these plans is Harry Hopkins, chief White House favorite, whom President Roosevelt has intrusted with the development of an international New Deal or global version of the WPA of which Hopkins was the head when he said that "We are going to spend and spend, tax and tax, elect and elect." Hopkins is the sponsor of the new men taking the key positions in the state department.

Fight Impends in Senate.

That there will be a fight in the senate on confirmation of some of the nominations figuring in the shakeup was indicated today.

While the foreign relations committee recommended confirmation of the appointments of Joseph C. Grew to be undersecretary of state and of William L. Clayton, Archibald MacLeish, and Nelson A. Rockefeller to be assistant secretaries of state, Senators Vandenberg [R., Mich.], La Follette [P., Wis.], White [R., Me.], and Clark [D., Mo.] voted against MacLeish; Sen. Murray [D., Mont.] voted against Clayton, and La Follette said he reserved the right to oppose all the appointees if examination of their records should warrant. La Follette protested against the recent practice of railroading confirmation of New Deal appointments without due consideration.

Sen. Langer [R., N. D.] prepared to fight the nominations. Referring to the new secretary of state, Edward R. Stettinius, and Mr. Grew as having close relations with the J. P. Morgan firm, and to the appointment of John D. Rockefeller's grandson, Langer said that when the house of Morgan and the house of Rockefeller obtain preferment in the same week in the Roosevelt administration it is time for the common man to stop, look, and listen.

Condemns MacLeish Poetry.

When Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the foreign relations committee, reported the appointments to the senate this evening for confirmation, Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] asked if MacLeish was the poet of that name.

"I never saw a poem of MacLeish's fit for human intelligence," said Sen. Clark.

Opposition to MacLeish, who is the librarian of congress, revolves around his administration of the office of facts and figures, predecessor of the OWI. MacLeish filled the agency with Communists and their fellow travelers, specialized as administration hatchet man in attempts to smear pre-war nationalists and nationalist newspapers as disloyal, and wound up in such a mess of mismanagement and futility that the President eliminated the poet by abolishing the OFF.

Only a Beginning.

Secretary Stettinius said that the new appointments are only a beginning in a sweeping reorganization and streamlining of the department which he will announce next week. A lot of heads are going to fall in the course of the new secretary's efforts to introduce into the department the efficiency for the lack of which his predecessor, Cordell Hull, was generally criticized.

The department made public the letters exchanged between the President and the three assistant secretaries displaced, A. A. Berle, Breckinridge Long, and G. H. Shaw. Mr. Roosevelt promised other jobs to Berle and Long, presumably in the diplomatic service.

Stettinius is one of Hopkins' particular proteges. It was Hopkins who picked Stettinius to head the lend-lease administration and later maneuvered him into the position of undersecretary of state.

Clayton Economic Promoter.

Clayton was the choice of Hopkins to develop international economic activities on a vast scale. To this end the foreign economic administration is to be incorporated in the state department under Clayton when Leo Crowley, the present administrator, carries out his announced intention of resigning to return to private business.

Clayton will direct negotiations for international agreements on reduction of tariffs, allocation of oil production and sale, civil aviation, shipping, communications, food distribution, and cartels. In his jurisdiction will be the plans for extending 5 billion dollars of credit to Great Britain, 2 billions to France, and several billions to Russia to help those nations get on their feet economically after the war.

Also confided to Clayton will be the higher diplomacy relating to the relief and rehabilitation of countries liberated from axis plundering, most of which work is to be financed by the United States thru the UNRRA.

Greater Latin Spending.

The office of coördinator of inter-American affairs now headed by Rockefeller is to be merged with the state department and developed under him on a greater scale than ever before, entailing increased expenditures by the United States to assist the Latin American nations to progress economically and culturally, along New Deal lines.

MacLeish is being brought into the department to preside over a great propaganda machine to influence public opinion at home and abroad in favor of the Dumbarton Oaks peace project and the numerous international economic plans by which the President and Hopkins seek to extend the New Deal to all the world.

A previous plan to incorporate the FEA and other economic activities in the commerce department has been abandoned. This change is said to have made the commerce portfolio less attractive to Vice President Wallace, who was expecting to replace Jesse Jones in the fourth term. The left wingers now are pushing Wallace for secretary of labor, while OPA Chief Chester Bowles is under consideration for secretary of commerce, Jones to revert to the RFC.

Popular Visitor

Mrs. Pauline Gould, a Gray Lady, was an unusually popular visitor yesterday at the Gardiner General hospital as she visited wounded and sick soldiers with notebook in hand. What she was doing was writing the military patients' selections of Christmas gifts to be distributed thru THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Christmas gifts for service men in hospitals plan. Among the men who expressed preferences was Staff Sgt. Milton W. Ploense of Bloomington, recovering from a leg injury. Many soldiers asked for books and billfolds. A few inquired about cigaret lighters, but were informed they virtually were nonexistent.

FOUR TRUSTEES OF THE SANITARY DISTRICT SEATED

Yesterday was homecoming day at the sanitary district offices, 900 S. Michigan av., for Democrats who long have been in public service. Four of the nine trustees of the district were inducted into office for new terms and the occasion was one for rejoicing by the 1,400 political jobholders of the district—all Democrats.

Mayor Kelly, chairman of the Democratic county central committee and Democratic national committeeman, was the principal speaker at the ceremonies in which Trustees John J. Touhy, J. L. Friedman, John Szumnarski, and Neal T. Kelley were inaugurated. The mayor was no stranger at the board offices.

"I started working for the sanitary district as a boy more than 45 years ago," Kelly said. "I left here as chief engineer in 1933 to become mayor and I am happy to return here today. I know everybody who got his job here thru the organization and I have met many old friends. I am happy to find here my two old friends, Trustee Touhy and President James M. Whalen."

SURPLUS BOARD NOMINEES FACE RENEWED QUIZ

BY PHILIP DODD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—The senate military affairs committee today decided to continue hearings on the nominations of Robert A. Hurley and Lt. Col. Edward Heller to places on the surplus property board, which will supervise the distribution of an estimated 100 billion dollars' worth of surplus war goods.

The committee's action probably will postpone senate action on the nominations until after the new congress meets Jan. 3, Sen. Reynolds [D., N. C.] told reporters. Sen. Gillette [D., Ia.], who was defeated for reëlection last month, is expected to be nominated as the third member of the board.

Reynolds said the military affairs committee has been flooded with telegrams and letters on Hurley's and Heller's nominations.

COL. M'CORMICK PRAISES KELLY'S WORK AS MAYOR

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, last night prefaced a speech stressing the value to Chicago and the nation of increased water diversion from Lake Michigan with a tribute to Mayor Kelly [who was present] as a man who "does his best for the city and its people."

Col. McCormick spoke at the 75th anniversary dinner meeting of the Society of Western Engineers in Hotel Sherman.

"The mayor and I became friends nearly 40 years ago," Col McCormick said, referring to the time when both men were with the sanitary district. "Our friendship has been continuous. I supported him, altho he is a pernicious Democrat, when he ran for mayor, and I have never regretted it."

Lauds Mayor's Cleverness.

The speaker recalled that he had been abused by "moralists-for-profit" for not abusing the mayor. "He is so clever a politician," he added, "that they no longer abuse him, but they continue to abuse me."

Commenting on the fact that "there is no one with whom I disagree more on national politics than I do with him," Col. McCormick declared that this is as it should be.

"When a newspaper can't disagree with a mayor, or a mayor with a newspaper, you gentlemen will be eating in concentration camps," he added. The Kelly machine, if it is destroyed, will be destroyed not by whining at it but by a Republican machine, the speaker predicted.

Asks More Water as War Aid.

Col. McCormick put forward a suggestion that this might be a good time to reopen the subject of increased water diversion thru the drainage canal.

"The canal has been of great value in this war," he said. "Many warships have been built on the Great Lakes which are too big to go thru the Welland canal in Canada or the Erie canal in New York, so they come thru here and go down to the gulf."

Cites 100 Million Outlay.

The expenditure for the canal by Chicago and Illinois must have been around 100 million dollars, Col. McCormick estimated. These communities have done something for the war program which no other community has done, he declared.

"This may be the time," the speaker concluded, "to dispel the clouds of prejudice and envy and to reopen this subject, either thru the courts or congress or the war department, and thus make our canal not merely a war service but a permanent contribution to the welfare of the United States of America."

Earlier in his talk Col. McCormick asserted that the United States Supreme court decision which cut the amount of diversion at Chicago to a fraction of the 10,000 cubic feet per second once regarded as a likely figure had been the result of a combination of circumstances which had little to do with the actual facts in the case.

Tells History of Suit.

The state, he recalled, demanded a strong flow of water, while the war department favored a limit of 10,000 cubic feet. By pre-arrangement with Secretary of War [later President and Chief Justice] Taft, a suit was filed to determine whether state or federal law should prevail. But by the time the suit had lain on Judge Landis' desk for 12 years and then had slowly made its way to the Supreme court, Secretary Taft had become Chief Justice Taft and apparently had forgotten his one time interest in the test suit.

At any rate, Col. McCormick related, Taft rendered a decision cutting off the flow almost entirely, with serious consequences for Chicago, especially for the south side. The fact that the lakes were low at the time may, the speaker speculated, have led some simple people to believe that Chicago's diversion, not the natural lake cycles, was lowering the levels.

P. R. Elfstrom, president of the society, presented certificates of honorary membership to Dr. Daniel Webster Mead, professor emeritus of hydraulic and sanitary engineering at the University of Wisconsin, and George Terry Horton, president of the Chicago Bridge and Iron company.

FRENCH PAPER ASKS STUDY OF U. S. BOOK ON DUMBARTON OAKS

PARIS, Dec. 5 (AP).—The newspaper France Libre, printing extracts from Army Talks, a United States publication whose latest issue is devoted to a resume of the Dumbarton Oaks conference, today urged all Frenchmen to study the booklet.

The newspaper said the foreign affairs ministry should distribute a translation of the booklet "so that we can know American opinion as communicated to the American soldier."

Outlining the proposed world security organization, France Libre said: "Who will be these 11 men on the council? An American, a Britisher, a Russian, and a Chinese. We respect the order given. Then a Frenchman."

YANKS REPULSE GERMAN BLOWS ON DUREN FRONT

Battle House to House for Bergstein.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY IN GERMANY, Dec. 5.—American 1st army troops tonight were battling house to house in the town of Bergstein, one mile from a vital point on the Roer river south of Duren. Another unit repelled a German effort with Tiger tanks and infantry to recapture strategic Lucherberg, northwest of Duren.

Advancing from Brandenberg, armored doughboys and tanks fought their way into the western and southwestern perimeter of Bergstein. In the eastern section German soldiers hung on despite artillery fire. Behind them other Nazis were defending high ground to the northeast.

The high ground was being threatened by two flanking columns.

Launch Pre-Dawn Attack.

Meanwhile, northwest of Duren German paratroopers launched an attack against Lucherberg at 5:40 a. m., more than an hour before dawn.

Lucherberg rests on a hill 410 feet high. It is the highest point before the Roer river is reached and its heights command the Inde river town of Inden, which had been taken a few days before. The Germans apparently wanted to retake Inden, but the American division commander forestalled this move by snatching Lucherberg. So the enemy counter-attacked early today.

About a battalion of German infantry tried to infiltrate from the southeast. At the same time an estimated 10 tanks, including several Tigers [Mark VI.], came down from the northeast, routing engineers who were at work clearing rubble from a German autobahn [military four lane superhighway].

As they neared the town limits the tanks fanned out along the edge of a large, water filled, soft coal pit. The American commander ordered his own tanks and anti-tank guns to hurry into position facing this threat, while our artillery took the infiltrating infantry under fire.

Bazooka Man Scores.

Guns and rifles blazed in the first streaks of dawn. The fighting raged on until 10:45 a. m. when the Germans withdrew.

German tanks had fired point-blank at American positions. Two tanks had penetrated our defenses within the city and one huge Tiger scored a direct hit on one of our positions. At close range a bazooka man began firing his rockets at the Tiger. It backed off 400 yards and then burst into flames.

The Americans succeeded in destroying three tanks, including two Tigers, and badly disabling a fourth. The remaining tanks withdrew and dug in, hull down, in an abandoned anti-aircraft gun position.

Only a few Nazi rifle men had been able to fight their way into town, our artillery having blasted their attack farther out. When they fell back they left 100 prisoners and nearly as many dead and wounded. Six Americans had been killed.

CHURCH DENIES SPEAKER CHARGE IN TAVERN FIGHT

The Rev. William G. Overend, pastor of the Highwood Methodist church, which is engaged in a controversy with a near-by tavern operated by Harold Snavely, denied yesterday that there ever had been a loudspeaker outside the church, as a witness testified Nov. 28 at a hearing before the Illinois liquor control commission.

John De Smidt, former chief of police, said he could not recall that the church ever was equipped with a loudspeaker.

The commission has been asked to revoke Snavely's license on the ground that the tavern is less than the specified minimum of 100 feet from a church.

At a hearing before the commission Mrs. Gevia Ghini, who lives in the rear of the tavern, testified under questioning by Leo J. Bartoline, attorney for Snavely, that "they used to have a loudspeaker outside the [church] building and we could hear the hymns." She fixed the time at "about three summers ago" and said the noise from the church was greater than that from the tavern.

Germans Deny Dutch Patriots Fight Legally

LONDON, Dec. 5 (AP).—Germany indirectly rejected today Gen. Eisenhower's contention that members of the Dutch resistance movement are part of the allied armed forces. The Berlin radio charged the Dutch were using the Dutch Red Cross in a way violating international laws of war. It added: "Gen. Eisenhower's statement must be defined as untrue that the Dutch resistance movement is carrying out its task legally."

New Advances Into Germany

FRENCH GENERAL TELLS OF FIGHT TO WIN ALSACE

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE FRENCH 1ST ARMY IN ALSACE, Dec. 5.—The equivalent of three German divisions has been destroyed and three others cut to about two-thirds their normal strength by the French 1st army since the attack was launched in Belfort gap Nov. 14, Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny said today. De Tassigny, who commands the French, estimated enemy dead on his front at 10,000, wounded at 5,000, and prisoners at 15,000.

These figures are on the basis of a German division of about 7,500 men. It is estimated that 45,000 Germans, or six divisions, were arrayed against the French when the offensive began. De Tassigny said his own losses have been comparatively light in view of what was accomplished.

Postpones Attack.

He disclosed that he began planning the campaign Oct. 24 and conducted preliminaries and first operations in great secrecy. Because of bad weather, he won Gen. Eisenhower's consent to postpone the French assault until late on Nov. 14, whereas the United States 7th army—the other component of the 6th army group—attacked farther north as originally scheduled early on Nov. 13.

The visit of Prime Minister Churchill to the sector aided De Tassigny's plan, the French commander explained. It enabled the concentration of armor and artillery ostensibly for review in the prime minister's honor. Actually the review readied his men for the attack.

"Belfort fell like a ripe plum," De Tassigny said. "By maneuvering carefully, by heavy artillery preparation, by flanking and encircling, by secrecy and surprise we not only kept our losses down but simplified our task.

"It has been my greatest concern to avoid destruction in Alsace for reasons of humanity. We came to liberate Alsace, not to wreck it.

Nazis Fight for Time.

"The Germans' defense was worthy of the attack. They are fighting for time, trying to protect their withdrawal and make it as costly as possible to us."

His present objectives De Tassigny defined specifically as "the complete liberation of Alsace, freeing of Colmar, and widening of the front on the Rhine."

"I sometimes feel from listening to the people of Paris," he remarked, "that we are an army of mercenaries fighting on the frontiers as in the time of Louis XIV. This is a great French army, this is the heart of fighting France."

Expect Belgian Premier to Name 3 to Cabinet

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 5 (AP).—Three vacancies in the Belgian cabinet are expected to be filled this week by Premier Pierlot. They were created by resignations protesting against the government's order to underground forces to surrender their arms.

TIRE SHORTAGE FACES ARMY, GEN. IKE WARNS

Threatens to Tie Up 10 Pct. of Vehicles.

PARIS, Dec. 5 (AP).—American armies fighting along the German border face a tire shortage so serious it threatens to tie up 10 per cent of all army vehicles by early February, Gen. Eisenhower declared today.

"I am not exaggerating when I say that the war will be needlessly extended unless we can extract every possible mile from our tires and use them only as we find it necessary to do so," Eisenhower advised his officers and men in a letter.

One Thought: Aid War.

"Today as our armies exert ever increased pressure against the last defensive walls around the German reich the importance of bending every effort to hasten the day of victory in Europe is of personal concern to us all," the letter added. "From the top to the bottom of our military structure there is room for but one thought: To aid the war.

"This is a war of supply equally as much as it is a war of tactics. Furthermore it is a war which consumes supplies at a terrific rate. While our factories at home produce these supplies it is up to us to use them wisely and conserve them where possible.

Asks Observance of Rules.

"One item of surpassing importance is tires. Tire wear in this theater has exceeded all pre-combat estimates. As a result we now are faced with a tire shortage which will, unless drastic conservation steps are taken, tie up 10 per cent of our vehicles by the first week of February.

"The care and conservation of tires is based on a few simple rules. Observance of these rules is the clearcut function of the command. In addition there must be keen awareness and eagerness on the part of every officer and soldier who rides in or operates a motor vehicle to protect that vehicle's tires for future rides."

IMPORTATION OF U. S. HUTS BRINGS BRITISH PROTEST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 6 [Wednesday].—The British building industries' national council today assailed the government's proposal to import more than 10,000 second hand timber huts and bungalows from American war plant centers. The organization viewed acceptance of American castoffs with "grave concern" because it feared the huts will "be below ordinary standards of housing in this country."

It said the importation of huts as proposed under lend-lease might close vital British building concerns, and demanded an investigation of reasons for this "major error of post-war reconstruction administration."

The London county council approved a plan for provision of one room dwellings for aged persons. Such tiny homes in new housing estates would replace huge institutions, it was said.

PATTON FORCES NEW CROSSING OF SAAR RIVER

bomber attack on the industrial area of Saarbrucken. The city has been under harassing fire from heavy American artillery for the last two days.

1st Army in Bergstein.

To the north Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army battled into the village of Bergstein at the extreme right end of the almost deadlocked Aachen front, with German troops clinging only to the eastern outskirts of the shattered town six miles southwest of Duren. Other 1st army units beat back two tank-led Nazi counter-attacks and retained their hold on Lucherberg, between Duren and Julich.

Otherwise the 1st army front, which had blazed with almost continuous action for 19 days, was described in a field dispatch as "generally quiet."

A similar lull hung over Lt. Gen. Simpson's American 9th army front along the Roer river north and south of Julich, tho waves of American fighter bombers lashed German fortified villages east of the Roer.

[The German high command, asserting that the American attack east of Aachen had subsided, said "the enemy had in his vain attempts to smash our front suffered such severe losses that he was forced to regroup his forces to a major extent."]

Floods Hamper British.

Ninth air force fighter-bombers, ranging well beyond the battlefront east of Aachen, attacked a German convoy near Bonn.

The Germans breached dikes of the Waal Rhine river in the Arnhem-Nijmegen sector of Holland and flooded a large area northwest of Nijmegen to a depth of a foot or more, effectively blocking any immediate advance of British forces in that sector.

At the southern end of the front Lt. Gen. Patch's American 7th army troops captured the communications center of Selestat, 25 miles southwest of Strasbourg and 10 miles from the Rhine, after three and a half days of bitter fighting on the Alsatian plain.

The 7th army was clearing the Karlsruhe corner of France and moving within eight miles of Colmar in Alsace below Strasbourg. The French traffic center of Haguenau was besieged.

Panama Bound

Robert Granberry, 10, will leave today on the greatest trip of his life—a journey by clipper plane to Cristobal, Panama Canal zone, where he will join his mother and meet his new father and two new half sisters.

"I can't wait till morning," he said excitedly last night in his home at 4907 Warner av. as his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Victoria Bobula, finished packing his baggage. Robert will leave Chicago airport at 9 a. m. today via Eastern airlines for Miami, Fla., from where he will go to Panama by Pan American Clipper.

Robert's mother, the former Mary Bobula, went to Panama as a government nurse before the war, and on Feb. 5, 1941, became the wife of Harry Granberry, manager of the Hotel Washington in Cristobal. They have two daughters, Mary Anne, 2, and Loretta Rose, 6 months. Granberry recently adopted Robert, paving the way for his adventuresome trip.

Grigg Admits Prisoners Are Warm, British Cold

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 5.—War Minister James Grigg today admitted that British soldiers wounded in Normandy are housed in cold, damp tents, while German war prisoners are living comfortably in warm huts near-by. Grigg explained in the house of commons that accommodations at a Scottish convalescent depot provided tarpaulins for floors, electric heaters, and lights. He was unable to reassure commons that such cases would not occur again.

SAYS PREMIER KING SACRIFICES LIVES FOR VOTES

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 5 (AP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King was accused by an opposition member in the house of commons tonight of "sacrificing the lives of our Canadian boys on the battlefields of France and Italy rather than lose votes in the province of Quebec."

The accuser, Dr. H. A. Bruce, a Progressive conservative of Toronto, was discussing the government's plan to conscript 16,000 members of the home army to supply infantry reënforcements needed abroad. His party favors all-out conscription.

"Our men at the front are asking for trained reënforcements," he said. "Brave boys are dying on the Rhine while this government maneuvers for votes. Any cabinet minister who shrinks from the duty of sending reënforcements is not worthy to occupy a place in the government of Canada."

6 NAZIS AND 3 JAPS AT POSTS IN EIRE, COMMONS IS TOLD

LONDON, Dec. 5 (AP).—P. V. Emrys Evans, undersecretary for the dominions, advised the house of commons today that six persons were on the official staff of the German legation in Eire and three were in the Japanese consulate.

In addition, Emrys Evans said, 284 Germans are registered in Eire, among them 136 refugees, and 223 others are interned.

Before the allied invasion of Normandy, the United States called on Eire to oust German and Japanese diplomats, charging that they were spying on allied military preparations in the United Kingdom. Prime Minister De Valera refused, saying that closing the axis offices would endanger Eire's neutrality.

RUSSIANS DRIVE WITHIN 50 MILES OF AUSTRIAN LINE

Win 30 Miles of Balaton Lake Shore.

LONDON, Dec. 5 (AP).—The Red army drove within 50 miles of Austria today with the capture of Marcali, eight miles below the southwest corner of Lake Balaton in Hungary.

Against sagging German opposition the Russians established themselves on a front at least 30 miles long on the south shore of the lake, thus buttressing their flanks for drives either northwest into Austria or northeast on Budapest.

Among the places announced taken was Siofok, rail junction on the southeast shore of the lake, 57 miles southwest of Budapest. The Germans said earlier they had evacuated Siofok. Red army columns also seized Balaton-Boglar, on the south shore of the lake, approximately 30 miles southwest of Siofok.

Report Reds Reach Austria.

A Swiss radio report heard in London declared Russian tanks had reached the Austrian frontier, but did not specify at what point. The information was attributed to "reports from Moscow given by a British correspondent."

In addition the Russians captured the rail junction of Szigetvar in southwest Hungary in a drive toward Yugoslavia across lines of communication needed by an estimated 100,000 Germans trying to retreat from western Yugoslavia.

The broadcast Moscow war bulletin said the Russians captured more than 120 places between Lake Balaton and the Drava river frontier of Yugoslavia.

Claim Reds Win Bridgehead.

The German agency DNB said these forces now were attempting to win the communications center of Vinkovci, 28 miles northwest of Ilok. A Nazi military commentator added that the Russians won a bridgehead near Dalj, across the Danube, 15 miles above Vinkovci.

DNB viewed these operations as "the first attempt to push into Serbia and Croatia and threaten the rear communications" of German forces retreating northward in Yugoslavia.

Planes Sink Nazi Ship Off Coast of Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Dec. 5 (AP).—The Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported today that allied planes had sunk a German merchant ship en route from Norway to Germany off the Swedish west coast. At least two other ships were damaged.

DIVE TO SUNKEN LSTs TO SALVAGE U. S. AMMUNITION

New York, Dec. 5 [Special].—Ammunition is needed so badly in Europe that our troops had to dive underwater to salvage shells from sunken LSTs, Lt. Col. Ensley Llewellyn, officer in charge of "Stars and Stripes" in the European theater, disclosed today.

Speaking at a press conference, the colonel said he had seen troops in Normandy go over the side of small vessels again and again trying to recover live ammunition.

"The shells weighed up to 35 pounds," said Col. Llewellyn, "and those boys were nearly exhausted."

GEN. IKE WARNS GERMANS NOT TO EXPECT FOOD

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Gen. Eisenhower informed the German people yesterday that they "cannot count upon food, fuel, or clothing from the military government" and must rely upon their own resources.

The "scorched earth policy" of the retreating Nazi army will serve only to multiply the suffering and hardships of the German people, he said in a proclamation read over allied transmitters to Europe.

"The allied armed forces will import the bulk of their requirements," the proclamation said. "If they should be in a position to give help to the population of Europe, this help will primarily go to the population of the countries which have been ravaged and plundered by the German armies.

Save Stock, Farmers Told.

"Food supplies, seeds, fertilizers, and agricultural machines must be salvaged above all if hunger is not to follow the defeat. German farmers must by all possible means prevent the Nazis from driving away their cattle as the allied armies advance. They must do everything in their power to keep their farms in order and to achieve peak production."

"The German army will be defeated. Larger and larger portions of German territory will be occupied by the allied armies until the National Socialist government and the German armed forces finally surrender or until they are crushed.

"Hopes of German People."

"The hopes of the German people to avoid economic collapse after the defeat are largely dependent upon the extent of German opposition to the Nazi plans to destroy German property and German natural resources before the occupation by allied troops. The scorched earth policy does not affect the allies, as the allies bring their own supplies. The German people, on the other hand, will suffer severe hardships thru this policy.

"As long as the German army obeys the Nazi orders to prolong a futile resistance, the allied air and ground forces are bound to inflict heavy material damages upon Germany. The sufferings and hardships thus created will multiply themselves if the German people itself carries out the Nazi plans to transform Germany into a desert."

FIND PAINTER DEAD IN ROOM.

Frank Brown, a painter, was found dead yesterday in his room at 7 W. Campbell st., Arlington Heights, apparently of a heart attack. Friends were attempting last night to locate his relatives.

YANK FIGHTERS DOWN 91 NAZIS IN BERLIN RAID

LONDON, Dec. 5 (AP).—More than 550 American Flying Fortresses, escorted by 800 Mustangs and Thunderbolts, bombed Berlin today with 1,500 tons of explosives. The fighter pilots shot down at least 91 German planes over the reich capital.

A West Point graduate, Maj. William J. Hovde, Crookston, Minn., was top scorer, shooting down five Nazi fighters and sharing another out of a formation of 11. This brought Hovde's score sheet to 10½ planes shot down and two destroyed on the ground.

Those credited with two kills in the air included Lt. Gail E. Jacobson, Des Moines, Ia.

The fighters in 15 minutes dispersed the waves of Nazi planes attacking the bomber spearhead. The sky was clear of enemy planes when the second formation of heavy bombers appeared.

Twelve bombers and 22 fighters failed to return, but at least 11 fighters were believed to have landed in France.

A heavy overcast forced bombardiers to aim by instrument. Most of the attack was directed at Berlin's great industrial suburb of Tegel. Tegel has been transformed into Germany's most important military depot, jammed with munitions works and aircraft engine and tank factories. Flak was reported heavy.

KESSELRING SENDING EMISSARY TO OFFER PEACE, MILAN HEARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, Dec. 5.—Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring, commander of the German army in Italy, has sent a special emissary to neutral territory to contact the allies regarding the possibility of making peace, a story in the Milan, Italy, newspaper Popolo Liberta, said today.

"Kesselring's proposal to the allies would be to retire the German army from Italy, evacuating all Italian territory to the Brenner Pass and thus allowing the Anglo-American forces to occupy Trieste and Fiume," the article said. "These are important key positions for eventual action influencing the Balkan countries and forestalling Russian occupation of the entrance gates to Italy on the northern Adriatic." It was further asserted that Kesselring's emissary aims to "obtain the occupation by the Anglo-American allies of as large a share as possible of German territory, in order to avoid the much-feared Russian invasion."

DISCLOSE SINKING OF NAZI HOSPITAL SHIP BY MISTAKE

ROME, Dec. 5 (AP).—The sinking of the unilluminated German hospital ship Tuebingen by planes of the allied coastal patrol shortly before sunrise Nov. 18 was announced today by allied headquarters. Regrets over the incident have been conveyed to the Germans.

Headquarters said it was understood casualties among the crew were very light. The ship at the time of the sinking was in the Adriatic sea en route to Trieste and was not carrying any wounded.

[The German news agency DNB in a broadcast on Nov. 18 announced the sinking of the Tuebingen and said the vessel had been attacked by four British fighter-bombers.]

Before sunrise on Nov. 18, the announcement said, a flight leader sighted the vessel off Pola, Italy. Unable to identify her, he reported and asked for instructions.

Owing to "atmospheric conditions," the statement said, the message was incorrectly received. The control officer, after ascertaining no allied vessels were in the vicinity, ordered the squadron to attack.

The cookbook which Martha Washington used at Mount Vernon, a small brown leather-bound volume, is now treasured in the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. An inscription tells how it was handed down in her family —"This book, written by Eleanore Parke Custis's great-grandmother, Mrs. John Custis, was given to her by her beloved grandmama, Martha Washington—formerly Mrs. Daniel Custis."

Recipes HANDED DOWN FOR GENERATIONS

It's been like that with Martha Washington candies. The recipes have been handed down since early days, and that's one reason for their old-fashioned goodness. Take "Jets," for instance, our luscious butter-creams which have been such favorites through the years. They're made by the very same recipe which Elie Sheetz used in his first little Martha Washington candy shop, and he was so proud of them that he named them for his only son, Jet Sheetz. Now we can't make as many of them as we used to, but some peaceful day you'll again have all you want.

The Golden Fleece
the mainstay of our opulent imports

From a cozy village near Aberdeen, in the braw-colored hills of Scotland, came the cloth from which the Golden Fleece overcoats are made. The warmth yet burdenless weight of this overcoat is directly due to the fact that its double-ply fleece was so finely woven. Colors as rich as the Autumn heath, and tailored by Malcolm Kenneth with a sympathetic feeling for the charm of the cloth.

YANK BAZOOKAS ON LEYTE BEAT OFF JAP TANKS

Planes Sink Destroyer Off Bataan.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Dec. 6 [Wednesday]—(AP).—Using bazookas, American ground forces turned back a tank-supported Japanese attack Sunday night on the roadblock established on the Ormoc highway a mile and a half south of the Leyte river bridge below Limon.

This futile attempt of the enemy to break out northward from the restricted Ormoc area was announced today by Gen. MacArthur, along with the destruction of a Japanese destroyer and five small freighters by Leyte based planes.

Sunk Off Bataan.

The 32d infantry division established the roadblock soon after capturing Limon, but withdrew it to permit shelling of the enemy's supply route. The position was not mentioned in headquarters reports for several days but apparently in the meantime was reëstablished in considerably greater strength.

The Jap destroyer was sunk y patrol planes off Bataan, the bulletin said. Yank planes also harrassed a cluster of enemy airdromes at Manila.

Adverse weather continued to retard the American advance in the Ormoc valley, but local gains on ridges south of Limon were noted.

A small freighter was sunk by fighter planes in Ormoc bay, and three others by fighter-bombers in the Sibuyan sea. The fifth freighter was destroyed at Brunei bay, Borneo, where patrol planes also sank a 3,000 ton tanker. A sixth freighter was sunk by United States naval units in Ormoc bay.

Saves Flyers in Storm.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 5.—On a recent planned combined naval strike at Manila, Adm. Halsey's 3d fleet encountered a sudden storm. Several squadrons of the carrier fleet, Leslie Nichols of Mutual Broadcasting System said, were in the air and tabulation showed 40 pilots were missing at sea.

In a characteristic decision, said Nichols, "Adm. Halsey canceled the Manila strike as soon as he got the information of the missing pilots. Then next morning the vast fleet combed the waters of the ocean with all ships and every available plane. As a result, they saved all but two pilots.

"That done, Adm. Halsey directed the Manila strike to be resumed."

PROBLEM OF THE CAPTAIN'S QUART SOLVES ITSELF

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC [Delayed]—(AP).—Capt. Dan Clinger of the United States 31st infantry division, had a problem on his hands—disposition of the quart of liquor that had just come into his possession after eight "dry" months in the jungles. He was deciding it when an American bomber roared over and asked aid in a crash landing.

Capt. I. C. Meyer of 3713 W. Arthington st., Chicago, a medical officer, made ready for the crash. The B-24 fluttered into the water 200 yards beyond Clinger's position. Nine injured flyers were taken out, a tenth was dead. Hurried blood transfusions were given. Injuries were bandaged. Then Meyer spied Clinger's liquor. "Sure Doc, go ahead. Give 'em a drink," said Clinger. Nine injured flyers—empty quart.

CHINESE REGAIN HIGHWAY TOWN NEAR KWEIYANG

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 5 (AP).—The Chinese high command announced tonight that Chinese troops had regained the highway town of Pachai, 65 miles southeast of Kweiyang, the Kweichow provincial capital toward which the Japanese are driving.

The Japanese previously had reached points less than 60 miles from Kweiyang, but crack Chinese regiments from northwest China were reported moving to that front while other Chinese were making small gains in diversionary attacks in Hunan province.

The Chinese command said the railway town of Tushan, 75 miles southeast of Kweiyang, remained in Chinese hands. The Japanese claimed to have taken it three days ago.

ELEANOR PARKER.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 5 (AP).—Actress Eleanor Parker has won a divorce from Lt. Fred L. Losee, navy dentist, after testimony that he told friends "I'm not interested in her career and I don't care anything about it." At the divorce hearing yesterday, Miss Parker's business agent, Arthur Gage, testified that Lt. Losee also remarked "being married to a movie star may be all right for some people, but not for me." The couple married in Tijuana, Mexico, April 17, 1943.

CARRIES CHICAGO YANK 9 HOURS IN GUINEA JUNGLE

Washington, Dec. 5 (AP).—A nine hour trek thru jungle darkness on the shoulders of a fellow infantryman remains the highlight of the Aitape campaign in the memory of Sgt. Chester Dillon, of 6538 S. Ellis av., Chicago.

"I was hit in both legs," he said on his arrival at Hamilton field, Cal., for treatment. "Sgt. Arthur Newsom of Wrens, Ga. volunteered to carry me back thru the jungle. There was no trail. How Newsom found his way I'll never know. Just three times during the night he set me down, and then only to check my bandages and take my pulse and give me water.

"He delivered me to the aid station at 7 o'clock in the morning. If he hadn't done what he did, I'd never have lived. There aren't words a man can use to tell how he feels about a man who did what Sgt. Newsom did for me."

FILIPINOS WANT FREEDOM WHEN MANILA IS TAKEN

BY FRANK L. KLUCKHOHN.
[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LEYTE, P. I., Dec. 5.—The Filipinos desire independence as rapidly as the military situation permits, but are willing to grant the United States whatever naval and military bases are deemed necessary for joint security, President Sergio Osmena said today.

The 66 year old executive, who had just received a delegation of guerrillas in his bare office, said that if President Roosevelt can grant independence before 1946, when the Tydings act provides for it, machinery provided by the Tydings act should be employed, since it assures a smooth transition. He expressed the opinion that the Filipinos want their independence as soon as Manila falls.

Relations Are Close.

Osmena emphasized that the fight for liberation assured that American-Philippine relations should be "very close."

Should independence be granted before next November, he said, the Philippine congress extant when the Japanese invaded the islands could legally handle the problems. Elections would be held in November, for a new congress, however, providing the islands were militarily secured. Osmena said local governments would be prepared to play their part if independence were granted.

Plans Latin-American Mission.

So close have relations grown between Americans and Filipinos, the president reiterated, that he plans as soon as feasible to send a good will mission to Latin America to tell Latin Americans how the Americans helped the Philippines and do whatever is possible to forward United States-Latin American relations.

"We have a common Spanish background with South Americans," Osmena remarked, "maybe we can help a bit."

FEAR 11 KILLED IN EXPLOSION OF NAVY TORPEDOES

McAlester, Okla, Dec. 5 (AP).—Capt. Elmer Woodside, commanding McAlester naval ammunition depot, said tonight four civilians and seven enlisted men were missing and presumed dead after an explosion late today in a magazine in which torpedo warheads [explosive charges] were stored. The blast left a hole 15 feet deep and 20 feet in diameter. The officer said an investigation indicated the warheads were being transferred from a truck to the magazine when the blast occurred.

4,000 JAP PLANES LOST IN PHILIPPINES IN LAST 3 MONTHS

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Japan has expended nearly 4,000 planes in the last three months in defending the Philippines and its water approaches, a tabulation of official reports showed yesterday.

Of these, 1,153 were destroyed by American aircraft in November—571 in aerial combat and 582 on the ground. In addition, 44 were probably destroyed.

The costliest month for the enemy was October, when 1,199 planes were lost in the air and 523 on the ground. September losses were 387 in the air and 627 aground. American losses in this period exceeded 200. The total is not available as some announcements were in general terms, such as "light losses."

2 U.S. GENERALS THINK JAPS ARE GIVING UP BURMA

MYITKYINA, Burma, Dec. 4 [Delayed] — (AP).—Two American air force generals with commands in the China-Burma-India theater believe the Japanese have written off Burma, but Japanese suicide troops remaining behind must be destroyed in hard fighting before this country is recaptured.

The present Japanese retreat from north Burma under pressure from Chinese and British troops extends to the Mandalay area, and the Japanese are reported even removing some of their Mandalay installations south to Rangoon. The British 14th army now is 170 miles west of Mandalay.

One of the American officers suggested the possibility that some elements of the Japanese 2d, 18th, 53d and 56th divisions, which have been punished in two years of combat, might be going south for a rest or even might be bound for Indo-China or Thailand.

CHICAGO BOY, 15, BACK FROM WAR WITH LEG WOUND

Injured in St. Lo Battle When Only 14.

New York, Dec. 5 [Special].—Possibly the youngest doughboy on the French front, Pvt. Raymond Wallace, 15, who was wounded in the St. Lo battle when he was 14, is being returned to his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Cotton, 1429 Madison st., Chicago.

Raymond Wallace.

Limping from the effects of a Nazi shrapnel wound in his right thigh, Wallace came down the gangplank here recently as fellow soldiers shouted, "So long, Junior!" He stopped midway in his descent, blew a kiss to the leader of a WAC band that greeted the ship, and went on his way to Chicago.

Wallace, after graduating from Skinner elementary school in June, 1943, grew restless to get "over there." Drawing himself up to his 5 feet 7 inches, he added four years to his age before the clerk at the draft board at Western av. and Madison st., and on Aug. 31, 1943, was inducted into the army. He had reached 14 on July 13 of that year.

Grazed by Bullet.

With a snub nose, on which rests a pair of G. I. steel frame glasses, and a coat of peach fuzz on his never shaven face, Wallace appears to be a tender youngster, but he's 140 pounds of dynamite.

In live ammunition maneuvers at Camp Phillips, Kas., last March he stuck his head out of a foxhole at the wrong time. A bullet grazed his left temple, entering the space between the steel surface and inner lining of his helmet. Oddly enough, the bullet spent its force in a trip around his helmet and came out on the right side.

He landed in France with the 315th infantry of the 79th infantry division shortly after D-day and fought to the outskirts of Cherbourg. On July 3, as the attack on St. Lo was launched, he was wounded.

"I never heard the Jerry shell coming, but I felt a sharp pain and the blood spread out around my leg," he said. "I rolled over into a shell hole where two dead Germans were lying. After an hour the medics came. There was a worse case further up, so I told them to take it first—a buddy of mine whose back was smashed.

Jerries Bothered Him.

"When they finally took me in about four hours later, I was almost out. The pain didn't bother me as much as those two dead Jerries. They began to bloat up and their faces got black."

Wallace celebrated his 15th birthday in the hospital in England, from which he was released at the end of August. His grandparents, informed of his injury, had told army authorities about his actual age.

On his arrival in New York, Wallace said that after he is free from army routine he will go back to school "for a couple of years and then maybe I'll try the navy when I get to be 17."

He has a younger sister and three younger brothers who live with his mother, Mrs. Irving Kinsley, in San Diego, Cal.

RENEWS ACQUAINTANCES.

Pvt. Raymond Wallace, 15, was renewing acquaintance with former playmates in the vicinity of his home at 1429 Madison st. last night, after his return to Chicago late Monday night. Today he will report to Fort Sheridan to be formally discharged from the army in the separation center there.

Then, said his grandmother, Mrs. Daniel Cotton, with whom he lives, he will return to school.

"The army has always been in the family blood," she said, adding that neither she nor her husband tried to prevent Raymond from enlisting shortly after his graduation from Skinner school.

Raymond's father, James, a veteran of World War I., died several years ago. His mother remarried and now lives in California with four other children.

TWO REPORT PURSES SNATCHED.

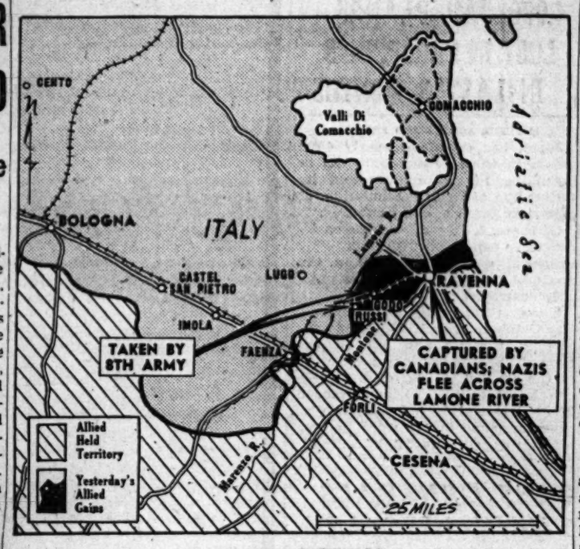
Ravenna, Italy, Won as Nazis Flee



Canadians Capture Ravenna, Home of Early Christian Art

ROME, Italy, Dec. 5 (AP).—Canadian forces have smashed thru the center of German Adriatic defenses and captured Ravenna, the allied high command announced today, forcing the Nazis to flee to the west bank of the Lamone river, six miles west.

A brilliant encircling movement yesterday enabled the Canadians to capture the onetime capital of the ancient Ostrogoths without a fight and thus preserve its ancient treasures undamaged. Princess Louise's dragoon guards cut route 16 and entered the city from the northwest as the 27th lancers drove in from the south.

Most of Field Marshal Kesselring's forces which held the Ravenna area were believed already well behind the Lamone, which is expected to be the Germans' next defense line. Such a line would have its left flank on the shores of a big lagoon called Valli di Comacchio, into which the Lamone flows.

Allied headquarters had previously announced the capture of Russi and Godo, on the Ravenna-Bologna railway and midway between Ravenna and Faenza, besieged Nazi stronghold on the Bologna-Rimini lateral highway.

GEM OF BYZANTINE EMPIRE.

Ravenna, newly captured by the Canadian Princess Louise Dragoon Guards, is the most important city in Italy next to Rome in the history of early Christian art of the 5th to 8th century.

Its basilicas and mausoleums mark the transition from the late Roman [395 A. D.] to the Byzantine style. Its cathedral of Sant' Orso dates from Roman times, tho in its present form it is mainly a work of the 18th century.

The octagonal baptistry adjoining the venerable cathedral displays the oldest mosaics in Ravenna, dating to the 5th century. Others of historic interest are found in the basilicas of San Vitale, Sant' Apollinare in Classe, and the church of San Nazario e Celso, originally the mausoleum of Gall Placidia, half sister of the Roman Emperor Honorius. Fine Mosaics decorate the archiepiscopal palace also.

The tomb of Theodoric the Great, known as the Rotonda, built in the form of a decagon, and what remains of that sovereign's palace are among still other ancient structures.

Tomb of Dante.

Near the church of San Francisco is the tomb of Dante. Near-by are the pine woods where the poet strolled in the last years of his exile while finishing his "Divine Comedy."

This Italian capital of the Byzantine world also boasts an academy of fine arts, a Byzantine museum, and a communal library containing rare books and manuscripts. On the city's outskirts is a column erected to the memory of Gaston de Foix who fell there after defeating Spanish and papal forces, April 11, 1512.

In the center of the city, with two lofty columns erected by the Venetians, is the Piazza Victor Emmanuel.

Ravenna was a great naval station of the Romans under the empire. Honorius held court there as did Odoacer, the first Germanic king of Italy, and Theodoric who as king of the Ostrogoths ruled Italy from 493 to 526.

Captured by Byzantines.

About 540, the city was taken by Belisarius, the Byzantine general, and under the Byzantines it was made the capital of their domain in Italy in 568, tho Constantinople remained the principal Byzantine capital. In 752 Ravenna fell into the hands of the Lombards, but Pepin, king of the Franks, having vanquished the Lombards, presented Ravenna in 753 to the papal see.

In the latter part of the middle ages, Ravenna for a time was an independent state and then a possession of Venice, from which, it was wrested by the pope in 1509. It remained in papal possession until 1860.

The walls of Ravenna in ancient times were washed by the waters of the Adriatic, and even today the city lies in a reclaimed marsh between the River Lamone and the Fiumi Uniti.

PRINTERS END 'STRIKE' ON TWO ATLANTA PAPERS

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 5 (AP).—R. T. Pavlovsky, president of the local of the International Typographical union, announced tonight that printers would return to work tomorrow on Atlanta's two daily newspapers.

"We have been ordered to return to work by the International Typographical union," he said. "It means that we will renew negotiations on a contract with the newspapers with the assistance of the I. T. U."

Amarillo Paper Affected.

Amarillo, Tex., Dec. 5 (AP).—The Amarillo Globe was published this afternoon in tabloid size from an engraving of typewritten pages as the paper's printers remained in "continuous session" discussing contract terms. The Globe-News Publishing company's morning edition, the Daily News, did not publish today because no type was set. The local of the International Typographical union is asking a 35 hour week at the present scale of pay plus overtime for any work in excess of seven hours daily five days a week. A counter proposal of 37½ hours plus 10 per cent was rejected.

B-29 RAMMED BY JAP PLANE JUST BRUSHES IT OFF!

TWENTY-FIRST BOMBER COMMAND HDQ., Saipan, Dec. 3 [Delayed]—(AP).—A wounded B-29 Super Fortress limped back from today's raid on Tokyo after knocking down two Japanese planes in a collision, fighting off strong fighter attacks, and probably shooting down three more Nipponese planes.

It winged home on three engines and landed at this base with one engine mostly ripped away.

"Stopped in Midair."

"Just after our bombs were away on the Nakajima factory," he said, "two Jap fighters zoomed right into our formation. The leading fighter started to break away and he hit us. The pilot probably was dead.

"The Jap fighter hit us right between the fuselage and the No. 3 engine and shoved us out of the formation. We just stopped in midair and the other B-29s went streaking past. Within 20 seconds we were a half mile behind.

"A wing tore off the Jap plane when it hit us. The rest of the plane scraped alongside our ship and blew out our sighting blister. Part of the Jap plane hurdled our tail, and the rest went under us.

Hits Second Jap Plane.

"The main portion of the wreckage then hit the other Jap plane below and behind us. It blew both of them up right before the eyes of the tail gunner. The Jap plane went thru a propeller, bent one blade, tore off the sides of an engine and nacelle, and tore the heads off the cylinders, but didn't even dent the leading edge of our wing.

"We were losing altitude and the Jap fighters, noting our weak gunfire, attacked hard. Five or 10 of them stayed with us for five minutes. We had to turn in on them so that our upper turret could fire. One chased us a hundred miles out before we got down into the overcast.

"Our plane was credited with two Jap planes destroyed—we just happened to get in the way there—and three probables."

Second Lt. Roger S. Kolb, Spencer, Ind., was flight engineer of the B-29.

3 SAVINGS BANK BANDITS GET 27 YEARS IN PRISON

Federal prison sentences totaling 27 years yesterday were imposed by Federal Judge Elwyn R. Shaw upon three defendants charged with the $1,657 robbery Aug. 31 of the Northwest Federal Savings and Loan association, 4865 Irving Park rd.

Theodore Jagiello, 27, of 1317 Haddon av., received the stiffest sentence, 15 years. Leonard Brzezinski, 20, of 2433 N. Harding av., was sentenced to seven years, and Raymond Kreek, 21, of 1706 Chicago av., to five years.

Judge Shaw characterized Jagiello as a "killer of the most vicious type," and told him he was lucky he was going to prison instead of the electric chair. Assistant United States Atty. Jack Arnold Welfeld said Jagiello was indicted for rape and murder in 1941 and was sentenced to two and a half years in prison on the former charge after the murder charge was dropped.

AMMUNITION SHIP IN PACIFIC BLOWS UP; 3 SMALL VESSELS LOST

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5 (AP).—The loss of four small naval vessels of the Central Pacific force as a result of enemy action was reported by the navy today.

In addition, the navy said, the ammunition ship Mount Hood was lost in the Central Pacific when it accidentally blew up.

The PT 363 was lost in the Philippine area. The other three vessels lost were two motor mine sweepers, YMS 19 and YMS 385, and the LCI [G] 459.

Comdr. Harold Agnew Turner, Palm City, Cal., commanding officer of the Mount Hood, is listed as missing. Commanding officers of the other lost vessels all survived.

SHERIFF WANTS MORE MEN FOR COUNTY POLICE

Sheriff Mulcahy, who said that wild dogs, wolves, and other varments are prevalent in some rural sections of Cook county, asked the county board yesterday to approve an annual expenditure of $77,000 to increase his highway police force from 95 to 125 men. He said one of the duties of the new men would be to hunt the prairie beasts.

County Treasurer Schlaeger also asked the board for more men and for higher salaries for all his employes. He said he has difficulty keeping competent help at prevailing pay. The treasurer was asked about the costs and receipts of the so-called scavenger bill, which permits him to sell properties delinquent at least 10 years in taxes. He said he is "going slow" in the program. Commissioner Busse, who became a member of the board 44 years ago, said he did not think the new law "will bring enough revenue to put in your eye."

Commissioner Daniel Ryan, chairman of the board's finance committee, said he hoped to hold 1945 spending to the 1944 level. Clayton F. Smith, board president, issued his annual message, urging that services to the people be given "at the lowest possible cost."

SAILOR'S $1,900 GONE FROM BOX; DAD FACES JAIL

A father accused of taking $1,900 from the savings of his sailor son, now fighting in the Pacific, was ordered yesterday by Judge N. J. Bonelli in the Racine Avenue court to make restitution or face a jail sentence. The father, Joseph Olejnik, 52, of 1709 N. Talman av., was accused by his wife, Anna, who said he had removed from a safety deposit vault $1,900 of his son's $2,900 and all of $2,434 belonging jointly to the parents.

She said she was not interested in restoration of the family funds, but that she was determined that Olejnik should make restitution of the money of their son, Edward, 26, a chief machinist's mate.

RECESS DORSEY TRIAL TO ARGUE DISMISSAL PLEA

State's Last Witness Is Spanish Guitarist.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 5 (AP).—Defense attorneys today asked for dismissal of felonious charges against Bandleader Tommy Dorsey, his wife, and Allen Smiley, supporting a motion with arguments in which they tore at conflicting testimony by Screen Actor Jon Hall and Antonio Icaza, a Panamanian.

Judge Arthur Crum.

A directed verdict of acquittal also was requested by defense during an afternoon of oratory peppered with such phrases as "travesty on justice," "falsification of the facts," and "definite impeachment." All were in reference to Hall, Icaza, and the fight in Dorsey's apartment Aug. 5, wherein Hall almost lost part of his nose.

Hall Called Lucky.

Judge Arthur Crum said he would hear further argument tomorrow on the defense contention that insufficiency of evidence justifies dismissal of the action "without carrying it to the jury."

Jerry Giesler, attorney for Smiley, castigated Hall and Icaza for the variance in their testimony. Alternately shouting and whispering, he delivered what the court said afterward was "a magnificent piece of oratory."

"Jon Hall," said Giesler, "is a very lucky young man. If Mrs. Dorsey had picked up a gun and shot him for what he did she would be acquitted by any jury in the land."

The fight, witnesses said, was precipitated when Hall put his arm around Dorsey's wife, Pat Dane of the films.

"I never, in all my experience in court, heard so much unreliable testimony," Giesler said. "I am referring not only to Tony Icaza but to Mr. Hall as well."

Icaza, a guest at the party last August where Hall was beat up, was the state's star witness. The judge warned Icaza earlier today that some of his testimony was "close to perjury."

Cites "False Testimony."

Giesler, who represents Allen Smiley, friend and neighbor of the Dorseys, argued Smiley only came in to break up the fight and that "the law protects those who intercede in the commission of a crime."

He asserted Hall "wilfully testified falsely some place in this case, either in this court or before the grand jury.

"The witness Icaza displayed the most flagrant disregard for the truth and principles of American justice I ever have seen in any court.

"I say enough! Let us close the book on this case. Then Mr. Icaza can go back to Panama and Mr. Hall can go back to pictures."

Warne contended Dorsey was only protecting the sanctity of his home. Hall variously ascribed the cutting to Dorsey, Mrs. Dorsey, and Smiley. Icaza insisted Dorsey bopped Hall with a broken bottle and that Mrs. Dorsey and Smiley used a knife on the person of the handsome actor.

The jury will not return until 9 a. m. Thursday, when a decision on the defense motion likely will be made.

The final state witness was Jesus Castillon, a Spanish guitar player at a night club, who testified Dorsey and his wife and Smiley hired him to play at Dorsey's party.

All Were Drinking.

Everybody at the party was drinking but no one was drunk, Castillon testified, and all had been pleasant prior to the fight. He had gone to Smiley's apartment, he said, and the latter had retired when he heard a woman calling Smiley.

He rushed to the Dorsey apartment, he added, and found Hall had a headlock on Dorsey and was punching his face. After he and Bernard Mitchell, a Chicago plastics manufacturer, attempted vainly to separate the battlers, Castillon said, he returned and brought Smiley, who tried to break up the fight.

"Hall said, 'O, you want to fight, do you?'" Castillon related.

Saw Blood on Both.

Then, he said, Smiley engaged Hall, and Dorsey began talking to Mitchell. Asked if he saw Mrs. Dorsey strike Hall, the witness replied in the negative. Neither did he see either Hall or Dorsey fall down at any time, but there was blood on both their noses, he declared.

Icaza, who in a three day memory lapse couldn't even remember two criminal sentences, further confused the evidence today to the point where the bench issued the perjury warning.

Isaac Pacht, attorney for Dorsey and his wife, introduced copies of court records which he said showed Icaza was sentenced here in 1930 to 15 months for illegal entry into the United States, served at Colorado Industrial school, and in 1931 received five years' probation on the same charge in San Diego, Cal. The latter sentence was suspended on condition that Icaza remain outside the United States. He is here on a six week permit for the current trial. He left the country voluntarily after the Dorsey party.

Icaza today remembered that he had been a swimmer, a boxer, and a mechanical engineer, but he could not recall being a film actor or undergoing observation at the Colorado Psychopathic hospital in 1932.

Main Issue Confused.

The Dorsey balcony brawl, supposedly the issue before the court, was, if anything, more clouded than ever after Icaza testified. He has placed the fight variously on the balcony, in the dining room and living room.

With a diagram he made himself during taking of his deposition for his $40,000 civil suit against Dorsey, Icaza pointed to several vantage points he occupied during the fight. Those conflicted with his deposition statements, and finally the court asked Pacht:

"Where do you contend Icaza was during the fight?"

"Your honor, I contend he wasn't there at all."

Icaza said the deposition was taken while he was detained by immigration authorities. "They had me cornered there," he added.

WIFE'S DATES WITH HUSBAND SPOIL DIVORCE

Mrs. Clara C. Byczkowski, 22, of 6954 South Park av., who admitted she had had two overnight dates with her estranged husband after they were separated, was denied a divorce yesterday by Judge Michael Feinberg in Circuit court. Her husband, Frank, 29, is a riveter. Mrs. Byczkowski said he struck her on Dec. 17 and March 4, knocking her over a bed each time, and that she left him March 5. Cross-examined by Atty. Sol R. Friedman, she admitted she went to hotels later with her husband. Judge Feinberg angrily slapped his desk with law files, denied the divorce petition, and denied attorney's fees for the woman's lawyer, Harry Kroll.

PARTY PLEDGES DON'T MEAN A THING: HILLMAN

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Pledges made to the American people by politicians running for office don't mean a thing, Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO political action committee, said here today.

The 57 year old ex-garment cutter's apprentice, who is given credit here for reinstalling President Roosevelt in the White House, told a crowded press conference, "No one takes party platforms seriously."

Hillman heads a CIO delegation, consisting of R. J. Thomas, United Auto Workers chief, and Emil Rieve, textile union head, which is here with Russian labor leaders to make preparations for a world trade union conference to be held in London in February.

Aim: Make U. S. Internationalist.

Characterizing PAC activities as "one of the most important things ever to have taken place in American life," the Russian-born Hillman made it clear one of the primary objectives of the organization was to involve America in international affairs on an ever increasing scale.

"It's a good thing for America and the world at large to have a force inside the United States fighting for proper international cooperation," he said.

Would Guide Free Enterprise.

The president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers denied, however, that he had come here to organize a world-wide PAC, as had been reported in the British press, or that he expected to organize a third party in America.

The PAC chief came out for the free enterprise system, but said "it has to be guided at times to remain free enterprise."

Asked about his attitude toward Russia, Hillman said he would deal with its representatives in the trade union field, but added: "We don't propose to tell the Russians how to run their internal economy, and we don't expect them to interfere with ours."

$100,000 DIVORCEE ASKS FOR MORE CHILD SUPPORT

Mrs. Bernice Hammerman, 44, of 3520 Lake Shore dr., asked Judge John A. Sbarbaro in Superior court yesterday to order an increase in the money she receives for the support of two children from her former husband, Joseph Hammerman, 50, a hosiery manufacturer at 200 S. Market st. She said Hammerman earns $100,000 a year, but he testified his income is less than that. When Mrs. Hammerman obtained a divorce in 1937, she received a settlement of $100,000 to be paid in annual instalments of $6,500, in addition to $100 a month for her daughterr, Babette, now 14, and Janet, 12. They attend the Girls Latin school. Judge Sbarbaro referred Mrs. Hammerman's petition to Special Commissioner Arthur Morse.

ABSENT SOLDIER GETS DIVORCE, 1ST GRANTED UNDER NEW RULING

Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday granted to Pvt. Frederick Roy Kinsley, 24, who is in Italy, the first divorce decree awarded in the Superior court of Cook county to an absent complainant.

Pvt. Kinsley.

Kinsley, whose home is at 1175 E. 55th st., charged his wife, Verona, 24, with adultery. His suit was denied several months ago because of a court rule that required the personal appearance of plaintiffs in divorce actions.

The Illinois Supreme court ruled on Sept. 19 that plaintiffs are not required to be present in court for divorces, and voided the Superior court rule.

ADMITS CASHING BOGUS CHECKS.

Joseph Landry, 42, of 6332 Ada st., admitted after his arrest yesterday, police said, that he had cashed 20 worthless checks totaling approximately $1,000 in north side taverns and currency exchanges. Police said he served a term in the prison at Joliet for car theft.

WIFE DIVORCES CRIPPEN; WINS $1,750 AND RENT

Mrs. Inez Constantino Crippen, 30, of 3156 Belle Plaine av., was granted a divorce yesterday by Judge Joseph Sabath in Superior court from Herbert Crippen, 41, former real estate dealer, now a master mechanic in the Seabees in Endicott, R. I.

Mrs. Crippen, who charged he deserted her Sept. 10, 1943, was awarded a $1,750 settlement, $250 attorney's fees, house furnishings and rent to April 30.

They were married Oct. 12, 1942, a week after Crippen was divorced by Frances Ingram Crippen, one time opera singer in Chicago and New York, who charged he married her for her money. He was the singer's eighth husband.

Chicago Diphtheria Cases Decline; Downstate's Gain

A state health department report released in Springfield yesterday gives Chicago credit for reducing sharply the number of diphtheria cases in Illinois during 1944. During the first 11 monts of this year downstate cases increased from 188 to 235, but Chicago's dropped to 68 as against 379 a year ago. Listed carriers of the disease number 496 in Chicago and 30 downstate, the report added.

WORLD AIR PACT DRAWN; PARLEY ENDS TOMORROW

Post-War Flight Freedom Recognized in Part.

BY FRANK HUGHES.

The international civil aviation conference will wind up at 11 a. m. tomorrow in a plenary session at the Stevens hotel, completing 37 days of continuous sessions with the creation of a world aviation organization and the recognition of at least partial freedom of flight for international aircraft after the war as its accomplishment.

The conference completed most of the business which brought delegations from 54 allied and neutral nations here on Nov. 1 at a plenary session last night. There remains only the election of an interim council to direct the world body from the end of the war until such time as the permanent international aviation convention can be ratified.

Council Elections Today.

This election will be held in a closed meeting at 11:30 a. m. today, at which time 21 member nations will be named to the council, each of the 52 nations which have voting power here casting one vote. The session tomorrow will be a "complimentary close" consisting of resolutions of appreciation and pro forma expressions of gratitude.

Last night's meeting determined that the permanent seat of the world aviation council will be selected by the interim organization at its last meeting, probably many years off, considering the difficulties of ratification which lie before any permanent world treaty. Canada already has been selected as the site of the interim organization and that nation will designate the city where the body will sit.

Telegram from President.

Adolf A. Berle Jr., chairman of the United States delegation and president of the conference, yesterday received the following telegram from President Roosevelt:

"My hearty congratulations on the excellent work done by the international civil aviation conference. The conclusions reached mark an important step toward the use of air transport for the benefit of all mankind. I hope the results achieved will meet with the approval of all delegations present."

The plenary session last night accepted and reported out six documents for signature of the nations represented here. The creation of a world aviation organization, interim and permanent, and the degree of freedom of flight that will be allowed internationally depend upon the number of nations which sign them.

26 Nations Must Sign.

Under the rules adopted here, 26 of the 52 nations with signatory power must sign the world aviation covenants to bring the organization into being. This does not apply to the air transport agreements, separate documents which will establish the degree of flight freedom to be allowed world air liners.

The six documents are:

1. "A final act," which includes a list of all of the delegates and committees, an enumeration of all the other documents and annexes reported out, a set of resolutions and recommendations and a "standard form" for bilateral agreements among the nations who wish to make air treaties outside the world covenant. All delegations will sign this paper.

2. An "interim agreement" on international civil aviation which sets up the assembly, council, and other machinery of a world air organization to operate from the end of the war until such time as a permanent treaty may be ratified.

"Air Convention" in 3 Parts.

3. The "air convention," which is a permanent treaty and must be ratified and signed. It has a section on air navigation, one covering the make-up, duties, and powers of a world air organization, and another on air transport. The powers of the global body are advisory except that its assembly can suspend any member for violating the convention by a two-thirds vote.

4. A "two freedoms" document. This pledges each signing nation to grant all other signatories the first two freedoms of the air, which are the right to fly over a member nation's territory and the right to stop there for nontraffic purposes. This document seems to have received general acceptance.

Complete Air Freedom.

5. A "five freedoms" document. This grants, in addition to the first two freedoms, the right to take passengers and traffic outward bound from the home land, the right to take passengers and traffic destined for the home land, and the right to take on and discharge passengers and traffic between intermediate points. It gives complete air freedom and no bilateral treaties would be required if all nations sign it. Great Britain, however, has refused to accept it unless competition is regulated thru traffic quotas or some other formula.

6. A voluminous set of "technical annexes" which covers standards for licensing and marking of aircraft, operational practices, color of landing and airport lights, and radio regulations.

Many nations represented here have not given their delegations signatory powers, so the drafts will be held open for signature in Washington after the conference closes.

Hot Fight on Council Jobs.

Tomorrow's job of selecting the 21 interim council members promises to be a hot fight, with 19 Latin American nations banded together intent on seeing that the western hemisphere gets adequate representation. United States representatives here have said the interim draft probably will be considered as an executive agreement by this country, altho some Latin American representatives who do not have executive powers may have to obtain legislative ratification of this interim pact before their signatures become valid.

Berle announced last night that M. P. L. Steenberghe, chairman of the Netherlands delegation, would not make his report as chairman of the No. 2 conference committee because of "unavoidable absence." He said Steenberghe had gone to Washington to greet his wife, recently flown out of Holland after four years imprisonment by the Nazis.

Berle's Work Praised.

Sir Arthur Street, temporary chairman of the United Kingdom delegation, proposed a resolution of appreciation to President Roosevelt and to Berle, conference president.

In his reply, Berle said the work done by the 54 nations in Chicago would be "appreciated with respect by those who come after us," and that "for those who will carry it on, the privilege will be that much greater."

DRAFT IN 4 SECTIONS

The treaty draft of the international civil aviation convention approved for signature by the conference last night is a 32 page document containing four major sections.

The first is on air navigation. This outlines the fact that each nation signing remains the sovereign of the air over its territory, reserves the right of cabotage, which means the flying of traffic within its borders, and prohibits the use of pilotless aircraft, such as the German V-bombs, without special permission.

It also contains a code for customs, immigration, and registration of aircraft, and standards for recommended practices, and carries with it the voluminous "technical annexes" to be adopted as a separate but connected document.

Planning Body Created.

The second section covers the establishment of an international civil aviation organization, the object of which is to "develop the principles and techniques of international air navigation and to foster the planning and development of international air transport."

This body is made up of a world assembly, with each nation having one delegate and one vote. This assembly elects a president and other officers, votes an annual budget and apportions the costs among nations. It also elects a council of 21 members which is the operating body of the global organization.

The council appoints an air navigation commission to carry on the technical work, and other personnel. It also makes up the budget for submission to the assembly and has the power to recommend suspension of a member nation for persistent violation of the world agreement. This suspension, however, can only be put in effect by a two-thirds vote of the assembly.

This section of the document also has a clause tying it in with world security organizations envisioned in the Dumbarton Oaks and other international conferences.

Pact Cancellable by War.

The third part, covering international air transport, originally contained all of the sections on air freedom, but these were removed to separate documents when Great Britain refused to accept them without traffic quota regulation. As it stands in final form, the air transport section gives the global body only the power to improve airports on a "loan" basis if the country they belong to is unable to do the work, provides that nations can designate the routes for international planes to fly over their soil, and gives nations the right to join up in operating a pooled air service.

The final part provides for the renunciation of previous multilateral air agreements which conflict with the present document, allows for the settlement of disputes between nations, and contains chapters providing that a war can cancel the agreement, that the annexes agreed upon shall be attached, and for ratification, amendment, and signature.

EXCESSIVE FEDERAL RULES CALLED PERIL TO AVIATION FUTURE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 5 [Special].—Burdensome federal regulations will have to be relaxed before America can enter an "air age" of private flying, representatives of the aircraft industry were told today by Joseph T. Geuting Jr., vice president of General Aircraft corporation, Astoria, Long Island.

Geuting spoke before the Aviation Distributors' and Manufacturers' association, which is meeting here with a convention of the National Aviation Trades association.

Geuting estimated that there will be a market for about 125,000 personal aircraft in the United States in the first two years after the end of the war. He warned, however, that federal and state regulations are likely to throttle further growth of private flying.

"The industry feels," he said, "that policing of personal aircraft and personal pilots has grown to a point where it constitutes an onerous burden hampering the public's right to fly."

STRIKE CLOSES 32 OF ST. LOUIS' MOVIE THEATERS

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 5 [Special].—Thirty-two St. Louis movie theaters were closed tonight by a strike of projection machine operators and film exchange employes, all members of the AFL motion picture operators' union. The film distributors involved serve 400 theaters in the St. Louis area and many other houses in Missouri, Illinois, and Arkansas.

All except three of the strike-bound theaters employ union operators and have no quarrel with the union.

The three houses directly concerned in the strike are small suburban theaters which employ one nonunion operator each. To force them to hire union men the union served notices on film exchanges that they would call a strike of exchange employes if any films were delivered to the nonunion theaters.

Morry and Ruth Medal, owners of the Medal Watch company, 55 E. Washington st., yesterday were named defendants in the 17th suit filed against Chicago watch dealers in the last month. They were charged in federal District court with selling at over ceiling prices, and the court was asked to determine treble damages from the concern's books, as well as to issue an injunction restraining it from making sales at illegal prices.

constructed, we shall have an up to date port.

"Other ports will be needed as air traffic develops. We have an airport large enough for some time. Meanwhile, the other projects can be considered.

"Local traffic between the cities within a 500 mile radius would be at the edge of the loop, while thru traffic might be shuttled out to Chicago airport."

Figures prepared by Commissioner Hewitt showed the expansion possible at the airport. At present the largest number of plane movements is 15 an hour. It is estimated that when traffic reaches capacity, there will be 10 times as many passengers as now, because of larger planes. By the end of 1944 passenger traffic at the port will have reached a total of more than 815,000. At capacity the port probably would be handling more than 8 million passengers a year—at the rate of 25,000 a day.

A Growing Need.

The original plans which were rejected called for only 4,644 square feet for the mail room, where 5,000 is now used. Estimates are that 10,000 square feet are needed now, and postal officials say 20,000 square feet will be needed soon after the war. This year the volume of air mail is running 34 per cent greater than last year and 240 per cent greater than in 1941. The present airport is said to be the only one in America which has a double system of runways in eight directions. Improvements in instrument flying developed during the war will improve landings in fog or snow.

Could Be Reinforced.

In case it is found necessary, the mayor said the runways could be readily reinforced to handle heavier planes after the war. Already Super Fortresses have landed at the field, with no apparent effect on the runway surfaces, according to engineers.

The question of required length of runways to handle the great post-war planes has been widely discussed, with much disagreement among engineers. With nine runways, the longest stretching an effective 6,546 feet and the next 6,047 feet, there was a period when engineers were talking of runways 10,000 feet or more to accommodate the giant liners. But jet propulsion to reduce take-off run is being advanced as an answer to the argument for longer runways. As to landings, the tricycle undercarriage, larger flaps, and the possible use of reverse propeller thrust as landing brakes, are deemed a solution.

In its final report to Mayor Kelly for consideration by the city council, the city aero commission yesterday suggested that two of the five possible sites for single runways close to the loop could be placed, along the lake. The first would be on Northerly Island, with the island extended towards the east and south; the second, a landing strip along the shore from 23d to 31st streets. This would require an extensive refilling of the lake, and a rearrangement of roads and bathing beaches, but was offered by the commission as a preferable site.

One Problem Seen.

One problem is that the area is under control of the park board. The board is prohibited from using its property for commercial purposes.

Three suggestions for reclamation of so-called slum areas for air strips are listed by the commission as follows:

1. Along South Park way between 31st st., Pershing rd., and Cottage Grove av.
2. On Roosevelt rd., between Ashland av. and Halsted and 16th sts.
3. Along Cleveland av., between Chicago av. and Burton place.

Wherever the landing strip is located, the commission recommended a type which would provide the following facilities: An adequate administration building, parking for 1,000 cars, equipment to handle 500 plane landings a day, and hangar space for at least 500 planes, both public and private. Total requirements for such a strip would be about 100 acres of land—3,700 feet long by 1,200 feet wide.

Solve the Problem.

Landing strips, the commission said, solve the problem of short flights within a 500 mile radius of Chicago, where an additional hour of travel from an outlying airport to the loop becomes an important factor. A study of prevailing winds and average visibility conditions has proved, the report said, that a single strip runway would be usable for all except about 65 days a year.

Costs of representative sites were listed as follows: Northerly Island, cost of construction, $9,557,818; annual upkeep, $846,375; annual income, $635,375; annual net loss, $211,000. South Park way, construction, $9,426,395; upkeep, $838,818; income, $635,375; income from savings in city services, $309,138; net annual gain, $105,695.

The plan suggested by the commission contemplates charges of a $1 fee for each landing by private planes and 50 cents a passenger for commercial schedules.

CIVIL LIBERTIES BOARD SPLIT; 5 DIRECTORS QUIT

Resignations of five directors of the Chicago Civil Liberties committee were accepted at a meeting of the other directors last night.

Those who resigned are John B. Foley, co-chairman; Dr. John Lapp, Robert E. Drake, Charles Liebman, and Mrs. Esther Mohr, an attorney. The resignations of Foley, Lapp, Drake, and Liebman were submitted jointly. Mrs. Mohr's resignation was separate.

Philip Wain, co-chairman of the committee, said the directors will have no comment on the resignations unless a statement is made by those who resigned. The vacancies, he said, will be filled at an election Dec. 19, for which nominations, which can be made by the nominating committee or any member of the board, will close Tuesday.

There had been previous reports of a rift within the committee on the issue of alleged leftist domination.

EX-POLICEMAN WINS PROBATION IN ATTACK CASE

George L. Peterman, 37, of 837 W. 83d st., suspended policeman who was found guilty by a Criminal court jury of assault with a deadly weapon, was granted three years' probation yesterday by Criminal Court Judge John Prystalski. A report by probation investigators indicated Peterman's record as a policeman at the Chicago Lawn station was without blemish. The probation was granted on motion of Peterman's attorney, Harry Ditchburne, who promised that his client would tend to his work in a war plant and forget about being a policeman. A charge of rape, brought against Peterman by Mrs. Rose Reidy, 27, of 3603 W. 65th pl., a widow, was dismissed.

WINS VERDICT OF $50,000 FOR AUTO INJURIES

The largest verdict in the history of the Lake county Circuit court—$50,000—was returned last night by a jury of nine women and three men in favor of Theodore Orban, 51, of Round Lake beach, in a personal injury case. His wife, Mrs. Albie Orban, 45, now living with relatives in Berwyn, was awarded $2,500.

Defendant in the suit was John O. Stoll, Landwehr rd., Northbrook, president of a wholesale magazine agency bearing his name at 245 E. Grand av.

The accident occurred Feb. 23, 1941, on Milwaukee av., 500 feet north of Deerfield rd. An auto driven by Clarence Michal, 2855 Byron st., traveling in the same direction as a car driven by Mrs. Orban, swerved into the Orban car when Stoll's car, which had been parked on a shoulder of the road, drove into the path of Michal's car. Michal originally was included as a defendant in the suit, but was dismissed on motion of Gerald C. Snyder, Orban's attorney, after testimony was concluded.

Orban, now a patient in the veteran's hospital near North Chicago, received permanent injuries, it was testified. His wife received a broken leg.

APPROVE FUNDS FOR IMPROVING CITY'S STREETS

Allocation of $95,000 of Chicago's share of state motor fuel tax funds for paving 76th st. from Damen to Ashland avs. with concrete and widening the street from 30 to 42 feet was approved yesterday by the city council finance committee.

Plans for widening Cottage Grove av. from 47 to 56 feet between 71st and 75th sts., at a cost of $40,000, also were approved. Ald. Kells [28th], chairman of the subcommittee on motor fuel taxes, said the section to be improved is a bottleneck.

For labor and materials for repairs to arterial streets, the committee approved an allocation of $350,000. The committee recommended the expenditure of $2,200,000 from motor fuel funds, already approved by state highway officials, for acquisition of property between Des Plaines st. and Ashland av. as a right of way for the Congress st. super-highway.

LOOP THEATER FIRE ESCAPE STRIKES WOMAN

She was treated for a scalp laceration in the theater's rest room. Benjamin Mendelsohn, 540 Briar pl., assistant manager of the theater, said he and Sidney D. Smith, 8111 Jeffery av., city building inspector, were descending the fire escape and that he shouted "Look out!" as they approached the last section, which is operated by a counterbalance.

Miss Anne Ryan, 23, told police she was walking west in front of the theater and heard the warning, but that Mrs. Alpert apparently did not.

JEWISH PARLEY VOTES TO SEAT RED FRONTERS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 5 [Special].—The Jewish People's Fraternal order—formerly the Jewish section of the Communist tinged International Workers' order—today was voted membership in the American Jewish conference, which comprises 2,500,000 Jews in the United States.

The group was given three seats in the conference despite a threat by the national executive body of the Jewish labor committee two weeks ago that it would quit the conference if the group, which it labeled communistic, were seated.

Other Groups Protest.

In admitting the fraternal order to membership by what it described as "an overwhelming majority," the conference said "some organizations, among them the Jewish War Veterans and the National Council of Jewish Women, insisted that their votes be recorded in the negative."

The International Workers' order, which claims 165,000 members, has been denounced by the Dies committee investigating un-American activities.

Join in Red Parades.

It has advertised consistently in the Daily Worker, communist daily newspaper published in New York, and its members frequently have been seen in the front ranks of communist parades in New York.

Its last recorded president was Robert Weiner, also known as Welwel Warszower, former secretary of the former Communist party in the United States. Weiner, or Warszower, was sentenced to two years in prison in 1940 for passport fraud.

The conference tonight voted down a proposal for a campaign to "combat anti-Semitism in the American scene" as a part of its program. Opponents of the measure, including B'nai B'rith, said such activities were not in the original "charter" of the conference. There were reports that several delegates had threatened to withdraw if the measure was adopted.

JURY CONVICTS FERNEL; 21 YEAR TERM POSSIBLE

Jean Paul Fernel, 1543 N. Wells st., former plastic surgeon, was found guilty late yesterday on all of 21 counts of a criminal information charging violation of the food and drug act. He will be sentenced today.

The verdict was returned before Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe after a jury of seven women and five men had deliberated less than an hour. Fernel was accused of misbranding numerous nostrums which he manufactured and sent thru the mails.

Trial of Fernel, who faces a maximum penalty of 21 years and a $21,000 fine, occupied seven days. Government witnesses testified that the various medicines and so-called panaceas which he produced were worthless.

Fernel already is under sentence of one year and one day after a previous conviction on a similar charge. His appeal for a new trial in that conviction was denied by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

MIDWEST BOYS SAVE GUNNER HANGING TO FORT 4 MILES IN AIR

Cashin spent six hours dictating them. The two testified they swore falsely in their answer that they had not taken into consideration against Harrison certain allegations which they had set forth in the pre-dated conclusions as reasons for firing him from the force.

Judge Graber rebuked the commissioners and termed their conduct in the Harrison case "amazing."

"It appears," the judge said, "that this commission considers itself a ministerial body, above and beyond any court, and that the commissioners can certify to anything they want. Well, we haven't yet reached the Hitler stage where people of responsibility can impose on the courts any orders they please.

"Responsible and Educated."

"The men in this case are responsible and educated men. One is a lawyer and philosopher [Clarke], the other [Gregory] is a business man. Their actions are amazing beyond anything in the experience of this court. They were not fooling with a young policeman of a short experience on the force. They were dealing with a man who spent his life on the police force, a man with numerous citations for bravery, and they deprived him of his livelihood. Yet they come in here and admit to this court that they swore falsely.

"I repeat, they are not ordinary clerks, they are educated men."

Gregory on the stand had spent almost an hour trying to avoid giving direct answers to a cross-fire of questions by Tinsley and Judge Graber. Tinsley had called him as a court's witness and the court therefore constantly catechised him.

Items Taken Up Separately.

The lawyer took one by one the items which the commission was supposed to have disregarded in finding the former captain guilty of failing to suppress handbooks. He showed Gregory the commission's conclusions, pointing out that these items nevertheless had been included in the reasons for the discharge.

Q.—In your answer to this court you swore these items had been withdrawn from the charges against Capt. Harrison, yet this document shows they were not withdrawn. Were they or were they not? A.—They were.

Q.—Then why did you swear they were not? A.—Well, we didn't consider them.

Q.—Yet they are part of the conclusions on which you found this man guilty and deprived him of his job? A.—We didn't consider them.

Q.—You didn't consider them—you swore that to this court—yet they are in the findings against him, is that right? A.—I guess that's right.

"You're Ably Represented."

This line of questioning was kept up until Gregory said: "You must remember you're speaking to a layman." Judge Graber responded, "That's right, but you're ably represented here; there are your attorneys," and pointed at the two assistant corporation counsels.

"What is my status here?" Gregory demanded.

"Your status," Judge Graber responded dryly, "is that of one cited for contempt of court who may go to jail."

Tinsley questioned him about a certain raid on a handbook on W. Madison st. while Harrison was captain at the Warren Avenue station. Gregory said it had been disregarded in adjudging Harrison guilty.

Q.—You say you didn't consider it? A.—That's right.

Q.—Yet it was put in the so-called findings against him? A.—Yes.

Q.—But you told this court and swore to it that it was not considered. A.—It wasn't considered. I signed it; Mr. Cashin put it in the findings.

Q.—Then why, if it was in the findings, did you say in your answer to this court that it was not considered? A.—Because to the best of my knowledge it wasn't considered.

Judge Interposes Questions.

Q. [by Judge Graber]—In findings signed by you it says it was considered. In your answer to this court you swore it wasn't. Then you admit you swore falsely to this court, don't you? A.—I suppose so, but not intentionally, your honor.

Q. [by Judge Graber]—The question is: Is it there in that document? A.—It's there.

Clarke, also called as a court's witness, likewise admitted signing the documents falsely. Tinsley then asked the court that both men be punished, and the sentences followed.

"Don't ask ME how I got through high school. Maybe my teachers realized there's absolutely no sense to algebra."

Capt. Harrison Congratulated

CHICAGO'S GROCERS PLEDGE TO AID OPA FIGHT ON INFLATION

Chicago wholesale and retail grocers yesterday pledged coöperation with an office of price administration anti-inflation campaign at a meeting with Marion W. Isbell, area OPA director.

Edward Steele, president of the Steele-Wedeles company and of the Wholesale Grocers' association, said the campaign, national in scope, was planned by the organized grocer concerns, and asked consumers to help by studying prices carefully before buying.

Erwin E. Seeck, president of the Cook County Food Dealers' association, said all members of that group will post campaign placards in their stores urging housewives to discuss prices with their grocers and to refrain from paying over ceiling prices.

Keeping food prices under control is the most important task of the OPA, Isbell said, because food is the largest factor in the cost of living. The OPA, he added, cannot keep food prices down without trade and consumer coöperation.

Onion prices will rise 4 cents per three pounds in the weekly fresh fruit and vegetable list effective tomorrow, the OPA said. Three pounds of dry white medium onions will have a ceiling price of 21 cents. Other ceiling changes: Hothouse lettuce, 3½ cents increase to 17 cents a pound; medium sized heads of iceberg lettuce, down 1 cent to 12 cents each; U. S. No. 1 size A Maine potatoes, 60 cents per 10 pound bag.

New pianos soon will be placed under dollar and cent ceiling prices at levels approximating those of the manufacturers' list prices in March, 1942, the OPA announced in Washington, D. C. Until the new maximums are issued, retail dealers will continue to be governed by the regulation which freezes each seller's prices at the highest levels charged in March, 1942.

STEPDAD GIVES UP; WON'T TELL WHERE GIRL IS

Harold Anderson.

Harold Anderson, 37, of 1625 Sunnyside av., who spirited his stepdaughter, Margaret Smith, 14, from the Juvenile home Nov. 29, surrendered yesterday at the detective bureau with his attorney, Edward Devine. Anderson refused to tell where he had been or to reveal the whereabouts of the girl. Later he was arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on a charge of failure to have a draft card in his possession. He pleaded not guilty, and his hearing was continued until today. Bond was set at $1,000.

Chicago Daily Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

FOUNDED JUNE 10, 1847

16 ★★ WEDNESDAY, DEC. 6, 1944.

ENTERED AS SECOND CLASS MATTER MAY 14, 1903, AT THE POSTOFFICE AT CHICAGO, ILL., UNDER ACT OF MARCH 3, 1879.

All unsolicited articles, manuscripts, letters, and pictures sent to The Tribune are sent at the owner's risk, and The Tribune company expressly repudiates any liability or responsibility for their safe custody or return.

TOWARD A SOLUTION OF THE CIGARET PROBLEM.

With a good deal of hesitation, we draw attention to a suggestion that has been made to us for the relief of the cigaret crisis. We don't think it is an ideal solution, but we believe the subject is of sufficient importance to justify the study of any well considered plan.

The proposal calls for a material increase in the federal tax on cigarets, so that a standard pack will cost not 18 cents as at present in this vicinity, but perhaps as much as 25 or 30 cents. All of the increase would go to the treasury.

We don't have to be told what's wrong with this proposal. Consumers will resent the higher price. Everybody in the tobacco business from farmers to consumers will be up in arms in the knowledge that excises once raised are hard to get down to reasonable levels. Moreover, the moment congress starts to debate an increase in tobacco taxes, buyers will redouble their efforts to get supplies before the new tax goes on and sellers will be tempted to hold back supplies in the hope of making extra money later on. That will mean a further, if only temporary, disorder in an already disorderly market. Finally, the increase in the price will hit the poorest hardest. All of these objections are serious, and all that can be offered in reply is that the alternative may be worse.

We say "may be" because some people who profess to know what it is all about think that the supply will soon be adequate. They believe that the present shortage results from exceptionally heavy purchases by the government in recent months, at the same time that folks have been buying cigarets to send to their soldiers and sailors for Christmas. The government, so they say, will cut down its buying after the first of the year and, of course, the holiday trade will soon be over.

A congressional committee with a little spunk ought to be able to discover in half a day whether these hopes are well founded in fact. If they are, there isn't any need to raise cigaret taxes or to take any other step. Many men in the tobacco business say, however, that the trouble results from a shortage of aged tobacco in the warehouses, a shortage that this year's big crop cannot relieve for at least another year or two. They blame the department of agriculture for not letting the farmers increase tobacco acreage in the earlier years of the war tho the department was warned that during war the consumption of tobacco products always shoots up.

So maybe the demand at 18 cents a pack will continue to outrun the supply. In normal times the government wouldn't have to do anything about it. The price would go up a cent or two and that would stimulate the production of cigarets. Until the larger production became available, the higher price would tend to restrict purchases. That's the way a free market works, balancing supply and demand by means of price changes that fluctuate with an elegant precision, always clearing the market, no more and no less, and stimulating production to meet any increased demand.

The automatic price mechanism won't work these days because of government restrictions on production and prices all along the line. What is to be expected, of course, if the shortage continues and nothing is done, is the rapid development of a bootleg market. That will always happen when demand outruns supply and prices are fixed. Government can have no more success in preventing a black market in cigarets under present circumstances than it has had in preventing gambling or than it had during prohibition in preventing the sale of whisky. Somehow or other, some people already are managing to get hold of cigaret supplies and these are being sold at very fancy prices, the profits being sufficient to cover the risks of conducting an illicit business.

We seem to be heading into another bootleg era and if we are it will produce its quota of gangsters, hijacking, murders, etc. The profits from the illicit sales of cigarets will be so large that there will be plenty of money with which to bribe shipping clerks, truck drivers, and others to divert supplies from the normal trade channels to the bootleggers. The policemen, of course, will be taken care of, too. In these circumstances it is to be expected that a larger and larger share of the supply will move not thru the customary outlets but thru the illicit trade.

That will profit nobody except the bootleggers. The established merchants will suffer. The consumer whose conscience won't let him trade in the bootleg market will have an increasingly difficult time finding a legitimate dealer with a stock to sell. Those who patronize the bootleggers will pay two or three times the present price.

If, on the other hand, the price were forced upward by an increase in the federal tax, there would be no bootlegging because there would be no profit in it and the decreased consumption resulting from the higher price would tend to balance demand and supply. Some means would have to be found of protecting the trade against a price so high that stocks would not move.

The goal is to assure a stock of cigarets in all stores licensed to sell them. You could buy a pack without a humble petition to the clerk and without danger of being treated as a nuisance. The treasury would profit instead of the bootleggers. We'll venture the rough guess that the treasury could pick up something like half a billion dollars a year in this way in addition to the present yield from cigaret taxes, which is more than half a billion.

We don't particularly admire this proposal. We hope nothing of the sort will be required. We wish we could think of a better arrangement which would avoid higher prices as well as bootlegging and persistently empty shelves in the stores of legitimate dealers. We'll be glad to receive suggestions and will give publicity to any that seem to be worthy.

NEW GUARDIANS OF THE LAW.

Cook county is the largest local law enforcement unit in the nation. [New York City splits the job five ways.] The job of enforcing the law in Chicago and its suburbs has just been entrusted to two newly elected officials, State's Atty. William J. Tuohy and Sheriff Michael F. Mulcahy.

Neither would be in office were it not for the support of the Democratic machine, but both have records and personal characteristics which give ground for hope that they will administer their trusts as representatives of all the people and not as functionaries of a political organization.

Mr. Tuohy left private practice a decade ago to become head of the civil branch of the state's attorney's office. He conducted its affairs with energy and ability. In recent years a large part of his time was spent as attorney for the Cook county board. He discharged those duties without being touched by scandal, which, considering a few of the county commissioners with whom he was required to associate officially, must be some sort of a record in public probity.

Mr. Mulcahy is not a newcomer to the sheriff's office. He was installed there by appointment of the county board to clean up the scandals that had increased during the illness of his predecessor. Before that he was one of the rarities of the city council, an organization alderman with brains, and later he was OPA administrator. The sheriff's office had a deservedly bad name for a number of years, but there is no condition there that cannot be cleaned up by an honest administrator willing to resist political pressure.

Law enforcement in this county has left a good deal to be desired, particularly in the prosecution of criminal cases. Mr. Tuohy and Mr. Mulcahy can be assured of public support in efforts to improve conditions as they find them.

WALL STREET TAKES OVER.

Mr. Stettinius of the House of Morgan, secretary of state, is putting new faces in his department. Adolf Berle, who has been head of the American delegation at the air conference in Chicago, won't be there any more. Neither will several of his colleagues.

Wall street is taking over. One of the new faces is that of Nelson Rockefeller. Aside from personal amiability, his claim to eminence rests on his membership in a family and share in a family fortune that exerts tremendous influence both in America and abroad. The family's oil interests extend to South America, which is to be Assistant Secretary Rockefeller's special field.

William L. Clayton is a very wealthy man and is the largest cotton dealer in America. As a handler of a principal export crop he naturally has close ties with the New York banks that finance it and with British and other foreign users. It may be said on behalf of Mr. Clayton that he probably brings to his job of assistant secretary in charge of foreign economic affairs a greater familiarity with its problems than could be found about the tea tables of Washington.

Archibald MacLeish, the third of the new assistant secretaries, is a wealthy dilettante who has won more notice with his polecat polemics than he ever did with his poetry. Archibald cannot be charged to Wall street. He is Sidney Hillman's walking delegate in the state department.

Under the leadership of Mr. Stettinius the conduct of America's foreign affairs has thus been turned over, almost root and branch, to New York financial interests and those elements who can profit greatly in foreign trade. There is nothing ignominious in foreign trade, but the affairs touching the lives of 130,000,000 people demand somewhat less restricted viewpoints and more unselfish guardians if the nation is to be served.

Such influences in the executive department of the government did not start with the installation of Mr. Stettinius. His newly revamped state department should have ready cooperation from among others, the former Wall street lawyers, Mr. Stimson and Mr. Patterson, in the war department, and from Mr. Forrestal, the investment banker, in the navy department.

Congress, meantime, is in the hands of Sidney Hillman, if Mr. Hillman's claims can be accepted. That curious honeymoon, between Wall street and Union square, is one that will bear watching. The alliance, formed to promote the fourth term and blessed by its achievements, has one common objective. That is the exploitation of America for the benefit of other nations. Sooner or later the beneficiaries abroad will fall out. When that happens the American people may be privileged to watch a new struggle for power in Washington, between two factions, equally indifferent to their welfare, over which is to continue to give away their substance.

JAPAN'S PRISONERS.

[Birmingham Age-Herald.]

Relatives and friends of those American fighting men who are prisoners of the Japanese must have found consolation in the report by Maj. Samuel C. Grashio of Geiger field, Wash., that since the threat of defeat has become more evident to the Tokyo war lords the conditions in the prison camps of Japan have been improved.

Maj. Grashio, who was one of those who survived the "march of death" on Bataan and was one of the 10 men who escaped from the Philippines with Col. William Dyess, said: "The first seven months on Bataan were the worst. If your loved one lived thru that period my guess is that he stands a good chance of living thru the rest of it. At any rate, unless you've received definite word that he is dead, then you have good reason to hope for the best."

The uncertainty about the fate of prisoners of war, especially those in the hands of the Japanese, has been one of the most harrowing features of these deplorable cases, and there should be some reassurance in Maj. Grashio's words. It also is heartening to learn that the Japanese are apparently beginning at long last to realize that a tempering of their cruelty toward prisoners might be made to pay good dividends.

THE MARSHAL OF STRASBOURG.

"Speaking of Strasbourg," said Charlie Wheeler at the Press Veterans' dinner, "I'd like to add that one of Napoleon's marshals was born there. His name is dodging my memory at the moment, but it's a long German name ending in 'mann'."

"Maybe you mean Kellermann," we said, and Wheeler's memory promptly voted aye.

There were two Kellermanns of military fame, father and son, the former a native of Strasbourg, the latter of Metz. That makes a classic Alsace-Lorraine combination. Both figured in rallies that turned French defeats into victories and had a marked effect upon European history.

* * *

The elder Kellermann, François Christophe, belongs in the French revolutionary period and ended his active service when the star of Napoleon began to rise. His greatest exploit was turning the tide at Valmy [1792], where the revolutionary army, which had not won a fight, repelled a Prussian invasion. The victory demonstrated that the hastily recruited defenders of liberte, égalite, fraternité could handle the monarchist allies who were advancing to squelch democracy in France. Napoleon made this Kellermann an honorary marshal, and often used him as a military administrator.

The younger Kellermann, François Etienne, saved the battle of Marengo [1800] and Napoleon's reputation as a commander in chief. Gen. Desaix was given most of the credit, but Kellermann's charge thru the Austrian ranks, with only 400 sabers, was the pay-off. It is among the most famous cavalry charges in history.

* * *

In later campaigns Marshal Kellermann, always an able cavalry commander, was often under criticism for rapacity and cantankerousness. Napoleon said to him, "Whenever your name is brought before me I think of nothing but Marengo." . . . In Balzac's "Comédie Humaine" there is a character plainly modeled after this Kellermann, who like his father bore the title of duke of Valmy.

DISCONSOLATE HOUSE.

Say, what does one do about Christmas
When the boy of the house is away?
Who gets you up, and puts out the pup,
And how do you live thru the day?

Who gets out the lights and the trimmings,
And helps you to set up the tree?
Who fusses about when one string goes out,
To see where the dead bulb can be?

Who helps bring in logs for the fireplace?
Who gets everybody confused?
Who whistles and sings, and messes up things?
By whom is the motor car used?

What fun is it, planning for Christmas,
And how do you find any joy
When all is so still, without any thrill?
What's Christmas without any boy?

ATTORNEY [to potential juror]—How long have you been married?

POTENTIAL JUROR—Twenty-five years.

A.—Have you expressed an opinion about this case?

P. J.—I haven't expressed an opinion about anything for 25 years.

A.—Is there any reason why you should not serve on this case?

P. J.—O, yes.

A.—You are obviously over 21 years old. You are intelligent, aren't you?

P. J.—O, very.

A.—Have you been a prisoner at the bar?

P. J.—It was never necessary to make me a prisoner there.

A.—I mean, have you ever been brought into court?

P. J.—I was in Speeders' court once, but I explained to the judge that my gas was running low and I was speeding to get home before it ran out. He then dismissed the case.

A.—Your record is good. Why shouldn't you serve?

P. J.—Why, sir, it would be impossible. I don't know the first thing about this case.

I light a candle for a lad
Across the seas, and speak his name;
He cannot know, for all my wish,
Of its frail, lovely flame.

But O, the love meant for him, too,
The sure, unwavering light,
Will reach him anywhere on earth
This Christmas night!

You should report to or write to the nearest veterans administration facility so that "service connection" may be established, after which the work will be completed for you at government expense.

C. P. H. asks: "When one is receiving $23 a month disability pension and attending school under the G. I. law, is the pension supposed to be deducted from the $50 and expenses received under the G. I. law for school? My first check for school was only $36."

The instructions issued by the veterans administration in Washington, D. C., to the field and regional offices were not clear on this point, so some offices are withholding money paid for pensions until the matter is cleared up officially. There is no connection between the two laws and the money being withheld certainly will be released soon.

GAIN WEIGHT IN DROPPED KIDNEY.

EVERY now and then a member of the fair sex will be unnecessarily disturbed because she has been told that she has a floating kidney. As we know, the renal organs are not fastened firmly in place. They lie behind the peritoneal cavity, and nature expects them to "stay put." They are surrounded by a fatty capsule which acts as a protecting pad against injury. In turn this is enclosed by a loose sheath of fibrous tissue. But there are no ligaments, no binding cords which serve as anchors.

Occasionally one who loses poundage rapidly from any cause will absorb body fat, including the layers encircling the kidneys. If, in addition, the sufferer assumes a poor posture, with a sagging abdomen, these secreting parts may wander away from home.

Should a kidney descend into the lower abdomen or the pelvis, it may require attention. The reason is clear. With the apparatus so far away from its normal habitat, there will be considerable pull on the blood vessels. This very stretching will narrow the caliber of the conduits and hence decrease the quantity of nutriment.

Now and then a twist or kinking of the ureter [the tube which connects with the bladder] will occur, thus shutting off the flow of urine. In such a situation, enormous swelling and congestion will ensue and pressure may destroy portions of the delicate machinery. Even tho this blocking comes on intermittently, some damage will result and we may develop a huge structure which will become a ready target for bacterial attack. Furthermore, there is some danger that adhesions will glue certain areas together.

Are there any symptoms? Pain, resembling intestinal colic, may be complained of and it may be difficult to locate the site. Others will mention a dragging dull ache anywhere between the upper abdomen and the bladder. If it arises suddenly and is extremely severe, the question of stoppage somewhere along the ureter should be investigated. It is probably not too much to say that if the outflow of urine is not free there will be greater likelihood that a stone will form, either in the kidney proper or in the bladder.

As a rule, however, every well nourished woman can dismiss the thought of trouble in this region. The type of patient who should be watched is the thin, dyspeptic looking, long waisted person who tires easily, who is toxic, and who suffers from dizziness. At first the victim may mention merely a digestive upset. Nevertheless, the position of the renal organs should be checked for possible displacement.

But nothing need be done about it unless the descent has been fairly extensive—at least the length of the structure itself. Not infrequently, obliging the individual to wear a well fitting abdominal support and adding to the weight thru balanced meals will remedy the whole matter. But there may be cases where it is desirable to fasten the kidneys back where they belong. This calls for expert surgery. In skilled hands there is little if any risk.

Only rarely will this condition be observed in men. The malady is the special property of the ladies.

CONFINED.

Mrs. S. writes: A young man who has worked out of doors all his life is now employed inside a machine shop. At times he feels the urge to run outside for some fresh air. Is this serious?

REPLY.

Probably not. As yet, he has not become acclimated to his new environment. He will, in time, if he likes his work.

NOT WITH CARE.

Mr. L. writes: If a person has calcified spots on his lungs, will he be troubled in later life with consumption?

REPLY.

Calcification betokens healing. If resistance is maintained at a high level, you will probably never have occasion to be reminded that you once had tuberculosis.

CHILBLAINS AND FROSTBITE.

D. S. writes: I have heard that chilblains should be treated with cold water. Is this correct?

REPLY.

No. This is a circulatory disorder which responds to heat. Heat must not be used with frostbite, however. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on these two maladies.

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

Ah, the Pale Moon.

Being a romantic busybody who always wants everybody to be in love with somebody, we are happy to note that Mr. Paul G. Dallwig, layman lecturer at the Chicago Natural History museum, has issued a special invitation to all newlyweds, about-to-be's, and lovers in general to take a trip to the moon with him next Sunday.

Mr. Dallwig has made this magnificent gesture because the moon is so definitely associated with romance, and, altho we think it is a pretty thing theoretically, is it wise as a practical measure? To get too near the moon might be as disturbing as to regard a moderately good complexion in one of those boudoir magnifying mirrors which make a nose look like Mount Vesuvius. You end up never wanting to see that face or any mirror again.

There are few things lovelier than the sight of the moon rising, a gold and smoldering ball, over the rim of the lake, or riding high and full and pale at midnight ["Art thou pale for weariness of climbing heaven and gazing on the earth?" once wrote the poet, Shelley], or a delicate silver rind in an aura of mist. This is the beauty that spurs the imagination. This is the beauty that complements love. But to visit that moon?

Armed with indignation and queries to sustain it, we paid a call upon Mr. Dallwig in his office, a book filled eyrie 43 stories above the respectable quiet of La Salle st. The only product of human hands near him as he meditates is the wholly uninhabited spire of the Methodist temple, but his windows face the lake over which every night as he works he can watch that moon of his rise to ride the wintry skies.

We came away with some very sad news for us romantics. Altho we are supposed to be impervious to storm, famine, or the elements, do you suppose we actually can weather a temperature that is 208 above zero by day and 250 below by night? [Mr. Dallwig's proposed invasion of the moon lands at night.]

And altho there is much to be said for the nuance of the glance, the smile, and the twitch of the nostril, can we completely cast away speech and still be happy? We would have to on the moon, for it has no atmosphere. Without atmosphere there can be no sound waves. Without sound waves speech is purposeless unless you are a lip reader or have the foresight to carry a pencil and a pad of paper. What then of the soft words of love?

Lack of atmosphere causes other lacks, but these possibly could be overcome. Without atmosphere there would be no diffusion of light. All would be startlingly light or velvet black. The day would have the brightness of a diamond, the night the impenetrable gloom of the tomb.

Without atmosphere there would be no vapor. Thus there would be no water, and in time there would be no life. But this, as we suggested, could be overcome for a brief period.

Without atmosphere there would be no aerial perspective. You would see everything. Your girl might walk five miles away to powder her nose, certain that you would not see her in this remedial act, but not only would you see her but she would appear as large as tho she were standing beside you. Moreover, because the gravitational pull on the moon is only one-sixth what it is on the earth, her stride would measure about 180 inches, which not only would be ungainly but would tend to dissipate the romantic aura heretofore surrounding her in your eyes.

Well, all loved and loving ones, those are a few of the grimmer facts of life on the moon. Make up your minds before Sunday. Can you take them or can't you take them? It may also distress you to know that the lunar day is 304 hours long—two weeks.

The moon as the setting for a wedding is the only conceivable place left to rival Elliott Roosevelt's recent adventure on the rim of the Grand Canyon, but you realize, of course, that once you are up there you will have no moon at which to gaze.

THE BRITISH WHITE PAPER.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—Because there was more or less criticism that the British have had only one army on the western front against our four, and because we are carrying almost the whole burden of the war with Japan, the British decided to smash all criticism by publishing a White Paper giving a lot of overpowering statistics.

This White Paper will bear close examination, because it is well known that you can show almost anything with statistics. Britain shows for example, that she has an army of between four and five million men. If we did as well, she says, we should raise 15 million instead of 11 million. But, what is the real point here? Is it not how many men are actually facing the Germans and the Japs, not those in Africa, Suez, Madagascar? On the important point of how many are in the advanced zone actually facing the enemy, the White Paper takes a wide berth. RAYMOND JAMMESON.

ROUSED HER IRE.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 2.—In answer to the letter of Mrs. Hodge of Auckland, saying we should help care for the illegitimate babies fathered there by American service men, permit me to say that this is pure unmitigated nerve. As the wife of a service man who was seduced by a foreign woman in a foreign country, while intoxicated, and fathered a child, I feel money should be used to teach the women purity, and to keep married men at a distance. We have thousands of babies in this country born out of wedlock. We must help them. The New Deal has given lend-lease for everything, shall it now sponsor adultery? I can't buy cod liver oil for my two little girls, and I work, too. Added to this, my husband sends money to the child of his unwed sweetheart, overseas. I remained true to him, as do other American wives. It is hard enough to know our husbands and sweethearts deceive us with foreign women, but to ask us to support the offspring is too much.

A BITTER SERVICE WIFE.

QUICK, WATSON.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—Why can't something be done to relieve the suffering of those pathetic individuals who stand in lines a block long to get one package of cigarets? As one walks along the street and looks into the faces of these bewildered people, it is reminiscent of hungry persons in soup lines during the depression.

All the joy of life is gone for many because how now can they annoy normal folks in restaurants and at soda fountains by puffing smoke into their faces?

As Sherlock Holmes said, "The needle, Watson." H. DWYER.

HIBERNATING LEADERSHIP.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—You are to be complimented on your frankness in publishing the cartoon "The Wrong Way to Prepare Between Bouts." I honestly hope that it will sink in to the so-called leaders of the Republican party. L. R.

OUTMANEUVERED.

Baraboo, Wis., Nov. 29.—Your cartoon of the elephant with a hangover was very nicely colored. It wasn't the elephant's sins that beat him. The donkey merely outmaneuvered him. JIM HOWLEY.

PHILIPPIC FROM PLANKINTON.

Plankinton, S. D., Nov. 28.—We heard a great deal of talk about putting property rights above human rights during the campaign. I have been a lifelong Democrat. I voted for Roosevelt three times. I would be glad to put my record of Americanism up against any Democrat in the country. I advocated putting human rights above property rights long before Franklin Roosevelt was ever heard of. But I did not intend that we should put human rights above honor, liberty, justice, and character.

My friends and associates are the highest class people in the world, but under the contaminating and demoralizing influence of Roosevelt they have lost all sense of right and wrong. They live in mortal fear of freedom of speech, courts, elections, polls, and other agencies by which people give public expression to their ideas. They have so imbibed the philosophy of the New Deal that the only means which they know of to attain their end are the cowardly and underhanded methods of lying, trickery, and deceit. They are determined to crush all opposition, by foul means or fair. They attack the personal character of every one that disagrees with them and they rely on threats and insults to influence the opinions of others. They have been trying to justify the perfidy, hypocrisy, and treachery of Roosevelt so long that they find it impossible to tell the truth. To hear them talk you would think that their only ambition in life was to "live by bread alone." PATRICK DUGGAN.

AMERICANS DON'T MUTINY.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—I always thought England was Canada's mother country. I guess not, tho. Canadians mutiny against being drafted for overseas duty. Americans over in France and Germany, fighting for England, had no choice whether they wanted to or not. They didn't mutiny, either.

JAMES COOK.

THEY COULDN'T STOMACH THEIR CANDIDATE.

San Diego, Cal., Nov. 26.—In our small precinct here, in the November election, there were 37 Republicans who voted for Mickey Mouse, and nine who voted for Donald Duck. I know this because I was on the election board. J. S.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—Some years ago I made out a will in which I appointed a certain attorney to probate my estate. I no longer wish to have him take care of my affairs. Can this will be cancelled? R. C.

DE MILLE FILES SUIT TODAY TO BAR AIR OUSTER

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 5 (AP).—Producer Cecil B. De Mille announced thru his attorney today he would file suit tomorrow to prevent the American Federation of Radio Artists from removing him from his $5,000 a week radio program because of refusal to pay a $1 assessment. An injunction will be asked to prevent his suspension until the issues have been decided by the courts.

The film executive has refused to pay a $1 assessment which the union levied to combat a state "labor rights" proposal on the November ballot.

WHY A BIG ARMY WHEN WAR ENDS? HUTCHINS ASKS

The view that peace time military conscription will confer moral and intellectual benefits on the young was opposed yesterday by President Hutchins of the University of Chicago. In his annual report to the alumni and friends of the university he said sheer military necessity is universal conscription's only justification at any time.

He warned that the country must give up the attempt to persuade itself that military service is good for young men or that it is better for them than such civil pursuits as education, and recognize that the only justification for universal military training is military necessity.

"How can we decide now," Hutchins asked, "what number of soldiers and sailors will be required for 'national security' after the war? We hear of plans for an international organization which will preserve peace. We have understood that the war was being fought so that we might have a world in which we would not have to be constantly prepared for war. Now we are being told these hopes are so certain to be disappointed that we must have forces so large they can be obtained only by conscription."

MAYOR WARNS OF ACCIDENTS OVER HOLIDAYS

Mayor Kelly called upon Chicagoans yesterday to help prevent a high December and New Year's holiday accident toll by coöperating in the National Safety council's "Save man power for war power" safety campaign.

"The Safety council reports that deaths from accidents on the home front since Pearl Harbor are running more than two to one more than deaths of American fighting men on all battle fronts," he said. "During December last year, 9,150 persons were killed on the home front.

"Let's avoid accidents for a happier holiday. Too many homes have been touched by the tragedy of war, but unnecessary tragedy due to accidents can be lessened."

MAYOR BUYS WAR BONDS WITH CITY'S 10 MILLION DOLLARS

A purchase of 10 million dollars in war bonds for the city of Chicago by Mayor Kelly and an allocation by General Motors corporation of $4,000 of its war bond subscriptions to the Chicago quota featured the sixth war loan drive in Chicago and Cook county yesterday. They followed an upsurge of 148 million dollars last Saturday that lifted the city-county total to $412,312,000, or 49.3 per cent of the quota of $836,160,000 to start the week, Francis M. Knight, chairman, said.

Two six-star fathers, Charles C. Barnes, 58, of East Gary, Ind., a maintenance man, and Wayman Browder, 57, a tractor operator, employes of the United States Steel corporation's sheet and tin mill in Gary, have purchased six $25 war bonds each in the drive, one for each son in service.

Bond sales in the nation, including individuals and corporations, totaled 8 billion 941 million dollars, far ahead of schedule and more than half the quota of 14 billions, but series E bonds stood at 871 millions Monday, behind schedule, the treasury announced in Washington.

RESCUE SQUAD REVIVES W. C. MOODY.

Will Cornelius Moody, 71, of 1512 Jonquil ter., former assistant corporation counsel and former assistant attorney general, was revived by a fire department rescue squad yesterday after he suffered a heart attack in his home. He has been an attorney in Chicago for 44 years.

GUN POINT SALES OF GAS COUPONS LAID TO DEALER

Secret service agents yesterday disclosed the arrest in Elgin Monday night of an alleged dealer in black market gasoline coupons who they said forced unwilling gas station operators to purchase five gallon coupons, some of them counterfeit, for $1 each at pistol point.

The prisoner is Albert Buccieri, 35, of 810 S. Paulina st., owner of a gasoline station at Ashland av. and Taylor st. He is a brother of Fiore Buccieri, a Democratic precinct captain in the 27th ward, who was indicted by a federal grand jury last week for illegal possession and transfer of gas coupons.

Albert was arraigned on similar charges before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. He pleaded not guilty.

When seized, the agents said, Buccieri was attempting to sell coupons to Frank Frietag, in Frietag's gasoline station at 625 Park st, Elgin. A charge of illegal possession of coupons was placed against Frietag.

Elmhurst Flyer Wins Medal for Risking Life

The war department yesterday announced award of the soldier's medal to 2d Lt. Marvin Hayman of 253 Walnut st., Elmhurst, for heroism in risking his life to disengage a life raft which had become entangled in the open bomb bay door of a plane he was flying over Italy May 29.

Suzanne Boynton Will Be Bride of Lt. Robert Meyers Saturday

BY JUDITH CASS.

HASTILY arranged weddings are becoming the order of the day, and added to the long list of them since Pearl Harbor is one which will take place Saturday night in the Highland Park home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Boynton. The bride will be their daughter, Suzanne Stuart Boynton, and the young man to whom she will be married is Lt. Robert Jackson Meyers, of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin A. Meyers of Winnetka.

Lt. Meyers will not arrive until Saturday. The ceremony will take place at 8 o'clock, with the Rev. Christoph Keller of Trinity Episcopal church, Highland Park, officiating. Only the families will be present at the ceremony, but a larger reception will follow. Lt. Meyers will take his bride to his post in Manchester, N. H.

Mrs. Robert McClure, the former Donna Boynton, will be her sister's matron of honor, and one of Lt. Meyers' brothers, Lt. Warren Meyers of the naval reserve, will be best man. The other, Philip Meyers, also is serving with the navy as is the bride's brother, Charles Theodore Boynton, who is overseas. His wife and their young son are living with the Boyntons for the duration. Another wedding guest will be Miss Marjorie Stix of St. Louis, who is visiting Miss Boynton.

Miss Boynton was educated at the North Shore Country Day school, Sarah Lawrence college, and the Katherine Gibbs school in New York. Lt. Meyers attended Princeton university.

Other Wedding News.

A number of Chicagoans are in Cleveland for the wedding this evening in the chapel of the Hawken School for Boys of Ensign James Arthur Babson of the merchant marine and Miss Jean Susan Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nestor Holmes of Cleveland. Present will be Ensign Babson's mother, Mrs. Gustavus Babson; Mr. and Mrs. Fred K. Babson, Mrs. Thomas Merritt, Mrs. Henry B. Babson, the Telfer MacArthurs, and Lt. and Mrs. Gustavus Babson Jr. Lt. Babson, who has returned from the Pacific, will serve as his brother's best man, and his wife will be one of the bridesmaids. Ensign Babson, who received his commission from the merchant marine academy Saturday, will take his bride to Florida.

Here and There.

A sudden influx of visitors has been providing their Chicago friends with a little social whirl that is brightening pre-holiday days. Mr. and Mrs. Sellar Bullard, formerly of Highland Park, have arrived from Santa Barbara, Cal., and are staying with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Nugent. The Nugents are entertaining their parents' friends at cocktails Friday afternoon. Mrs. Bullard will remain here over Christmas, but Mr. Bullard will go back to California as soon as his business duties are over.

Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Hunt Jr. entertained yesterday for old friends, Mrs. James Bergstrom and Mrs. George Gilbert, both of Neenah, Wis., who are here on their way home from Washington, D. C. Mrs. Bergstrom, who is godmother to the Hunts' daughter, Diana, is vice president of the U. S. O. for the state of Wisconsin, and in addition has turned the playroom of her Neenah home into a meeting place for Red Cross workers from small villages around Neenah. Mrs. Bergstrom and Mrs. Gilbert are sisters, the former Gertrude and Margaret Sensenbrenner.

A former Chicagoan who had a little whirl until she left yesterday to return to Washington, D. C., is Mrs. Eugene Swigart, who visited the Frederick L. Spencers. The Swigarts recently moved from a house

Thru the Looking Glass

This year we're concentrating on finding gifts for harassed shoppers with rather slim budgets who can only look at all the fabulous gifts with wistful eyes. Being one of the harassed ourselves, we have a special feeling this year for the gift

If, like lots of people we know, you've put a "not over $3" limit on your gifts, you might consider a little box of four face powders. It's a guestroom adornment of some chic and of great usefulness, and the price is $2.25.

In the slim peach colored box there are four darling little hatboxes, also peach, and tied with little blue ribbons. The face powder they contain is fine. You may not be familiar with it, since it's one of those specialty lines, but to use it is to fall in love with it. It has an elegant texture, a scent that's luxurious, and a good range of shades. The four in this little guest box are all good, wearable ones that run from a creamy tint to a deepish one.

Any woman who fancies choice boudoir or bath teuches that add a little extra fillip to her hospitality will like this. And from the giver's point of view there is the altogether admirable fact that the gift has distinction and charm plus practicality.

Paris Parades Slippers with Soles of Glass

BY ANNE BRUYERE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 5.—Twinkling glass soled, fur lined house boots made of beaded satin and lamb are presented by Ascott in the current winter shoe parade.

Robert Piguet also shows elaborate house boots in blue, pink, purple, and green satin, trimmed with spangled embroidery and lined in rabbit or squirrel. Three inch high soles join five inch heels, mounted on cork and covered with velvet.

For evening wear there are brightly colored glass soled shoes with open toes. Since there is little leather in France, velvet, brocade, ribbed silks, and satins are used for evening pumps and sandals. Ankle straps are studded with rhinestones or embroidered with spangles.

Felt is used largely for wooden soled street shoes, most of which reach above the ankles. Some are fur lined and trimmed with bands of astrakhan, hudson seal, mole, or rabbit. Others are made entirely of these furs and adorned with bits of felt in contrasting colors, such as yellow on brown, red strings on black, or green buttons on gray.

F. Pinet shows synthetic leather shoes with high wooden soles, bordered with multicolored circles. These resemble modified skis and are attached with straps.

Other unusual footwear is presented by Richomme, who combines handmade woolen socks and shoes. Coarse knitting is affixed with brass thumb tacks to cork soles and rolled above the ankles.

Hellstern still possesses leather, which he fashions into high boots for riding and for winter street wear. He uses several shades of leather together to make slippers and opera pumps. Brown and black and purple and dark green are among his latest color combinations.

Since few Parisians can afford to spend 600 francs [$12] a pair for hosiery nowadays, gaiters, rubber boots, and galoshes are popular. Raoul features knee high fur lined gabardine boots in white and gray for the current rainy weather. Richly embroidered high felt gaiters worn with shining black sabots are shown by Lobb.

'Junk' Jewelry Out; New Items Are Real Thing

BY REA SEEGER.

Costume jewelry is far away from the so-called "junk" stuff this year. Plastics and metals have gone to war, so real gold and silver and the lovely ceramics are getting a big rush. Whether these bracelets, pins, brooches, clips, or earrings are mere baubles, nothing made for feminine approval rates as they do, especially at Christmas. But this loot, like everything else, doesn't stay around very long, so don't dawdle over your selections.

New pieces include fancy and not so fancy keys. Some look like the intricate carved and engraved beauties in the famous key collection in the Clumy museum, others look somewhat like the gigantic presentation keys passed out as the typical mayor's gesture to celebrities when handing over the town to them. Medium sizes are ready for lapel duty, or are to be pinned thru ascots or as decorative glitter on the chest.

Floral sprays are bigger than ever, in bright gold with real or unreal jewels to make the flowers. Beautiful silver pins and clips are outstanding this year, the designs are stunning and varied. Earrings are still huge, almost barbaric in chunky formations, and come in the bright as well as dusky silver and the bright or dull gold.

Culture pearl collections are as fabulously lovely as anything ever unpacked. Rings, necklaces, old fashioned chokers, and the newest dog collars featuring two to six strands are really something. Frankly fake pearls, in pale pink, gunmetal, and real looking ivory white come in extra long ropes, in graduated strand arrangements, and in single seed pearl necklaces. Earrings, bracelets, clips, and bar pins, with very modest price marks, complete this showing of the unreal pearls, each piece a perfect gift.

Warns Against Marital Haste After the War

BY JUNE GESERICK.

Gang plank marriages of returning service men will be unstable and the first couples to wed after demobilization will have the greatest adjustments to make, it was predicted yesterday by Dr. Reuben Hill, University of South Dakota sociology professor, and author of "Love and Marriage in Wartime and After." He spoke in the Standard club at the Association for Family Living institute on "Post-War Marriage Adjustments."

Dr. Hill predicted legislative minded persons would advocate laws requiring a compulsory waiting period between the application for a wedding license and its issuance. Better in every respect would be voluntary postponement of marriage by a concerted campaign for more intelligent and adequate engagements to give couples opportunity to reëstablish a companionship and unity on which to base a marriage, the speaker declared.

"The service man sees his girl as a beauty, forgetting her buck teeth, her so-so skin, or her stringy hair," Dr. Hill said. "The girl thinks of him as a shining hero in uniform. These people have many adjustments to make."

He said there are several obstacles to marriage which a period of waiting might clear up. First, the phenomenon of idealization has played strange tricks on both the service man and his fiance, and the personality changes in the period of separation are shocking upon reunion.

Secondly, he said, the post-war engagement offers a picture in miniature of the way the marriage may work out, where the stresses will be, the modes of adjustment, and the reactions of each member to crises. Finally, Dr. Hill said, the engagement provides the time necessary for the emotional wounds of war, deprivation, and loneliness to heal over—both members are often "emotionally raw and too exhausted to master the demands of an intimate interpersonal relationship."

The speaker said the waiting period before marriage differs with every couple, depending upon their state of readiness. It should be long enough to reëstablish the sense of unity and "belongingness," to build the bonds of companionship strong enough to hold the marriage together when it is consummated. The couple should be able to answer affirmatively the five following questions:

1. Do you feel at home with one another again, as if you were old companions, and has the strangeness worn off so that each understands the other again on most points?
2. Are the emotional hurts of the war healed over enough so you aren't forever in pain when the war period is mentioned?
3. Are you able to find happiness on your own apart from the expectations of matrimony?
4. Are you prepared for the rough-and-tumble of matrimony, expecting a certain amount of conflict and being challenged by it?
5. Do you know where to turn for help and preparation in planning your marriage and family life?

Dr. Hill warned couples not to start out on the path to a wedding without the benefit of guidebooks that tell where the "hazards are and where the repair stations are to be found if the marital vehicle breaks down."

Foresees Family Changes

Effects of the war will be even more evident in family life in the post-war period than at present, but despite heavy losses on the battlefields the ratio of women to men will not be greatly altered when peace comes, Ernest W. Burgess, University of Chicago sociologist, asserted yesterday at a session of the Institute for Religious Studies in the Fine Arts building.

He said hasty marriages will continue after the war, with the average man courting younger women and older women compelled by circumstances to be less discriminate in their choice.

"The result will be a higher divorce rate," he said, in predicting that should the war continue into 1946 the divorce ratio will be one to every three marriages, compared with one to six in the 1920s and early 1930s and one to five in recent years.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Sellers' Market.

As observed by D. M.: The stockroom man wheeling a packing case of cleansing tissue thru the aisles of a State st. department store, followed by a larger number of eager women shoppers than there were packages of tissue in the case.

The Woman Question.

A few questions concerning white collar girls:

Why are WCG's always late? In the morning it's, "I'm frantically late at the office!" At noon, "Please hurry; I was allowed 45 minutes beyond my lunch hour, and I'm an hour over already!" Around 2 o'clock in the afternoon it's "Can you make the railroad station in 10 minutes as my boy friend is coming and has only two hours between trains." At night the WCG's have "only six minutes to make the 5:15 because my boss always waits till the last second for important letters."

And as they hop out of my cab they say: "Will you please stop and mail these letters for me—I can just barely make my train!"

A. G. STOLL SR.,
The Taxicab Scout.

Opposites.

After looking at the thermometer this morning my husband informed me, "It was down to 18 above zero."

Also, if one's glove is half on, it most certainly is half off.

MADAN.

Visitors.

Two charming British white collar girls seen in and around the Stevens hotel currently are Margot Coates and Joyce Skinner, whose home business address is across the way from 10 Downing st., London.

Despite their busily engaged days with the International Air conference, they are taking time to exchange ideas with some of our Yankee WCG's [including myself] on such subjects as clothes and food, which are close to the heart and figure of any woman! Our State st. by night has made a lasting impression on them. And, fellow white collar girls, they expect to be the envy of all their friends at home when they return wearing American rayon hose!

His Own Worst Enemy.

The boss signs everything
That comes his way—
Some day he'll sign
His life away.

AL SPONG.

An Even Bet.

We'd like to lay an even bet that one of the most enthusiastic and progressive groups of business girls is in a certain department of a loop advertising agency. The latest community project dreamed up by these seven girls to make their office more interesting is the installation of a large world map on one wall. All around the map have been placed snapshots of husbands, friends, and relatives in service. Blue strings run from the pictures to the locale on the map where the girls' fighting men are stationed. And, the strings are moved when word is received of changes of address. There are two gold strings on the map.

INSTALMENT XXI.

RECOGNIZED.

Henry Mitchell came back into the dark hall and reported that all was clear. Joan clung to her brother with clenched fingers.

"If you would only forget what has happened and ride out of the country," she wailed. "Leave us to clear all this mess up. You have good friends now who will help."

Bob Webb, alias Cape Sloan, gently opened her fists and freed himself from her. "Everything will be all right now," he promised.

Stan Fraser came out of the darkness to meet him.

"Everything dandy out here," the little old timer said. "Long as nobody knows you are in Tucson and you keep under cover, you'd ought to be all right. What I'm worried about is Uhlmann and his crowd. Sholte talked like they might drift over this way. My idea is for us to get out now and camp on the mesa, then soon as it is day be on our way."

Webb agreed that might be a good idea.

They walked back thru the business section along empty streets. Except for the gambling houses and their patrons the town seemed sunk in sleep. Inside the Legal Tender and the Silver Dollar they could hear the rattle of chips and the voices of the players. Out of the Legal Tender poured a jet of men.

"Told you I'd take the bank to a cleaning," one of them boasted.

The huge, graceless figure beside him let out a yelp of triumph. His gaze had fallen on the escaped convict. He opened his mouth to shout recognition. Instead, he gave a groan and sagged against the wall. The long barrel of Stan Fraser's pistol had crashed down on his cranium. Uhlmann for the moment had lost interest.

"Burn the wind, boy," Fraser cried, and he dived into the stairway leading to the private poker rooms in the second story.

Webb took the treads after his friend, racing up them two at a time. The roar of a .45 from the entrance below filled the well with a noise like the blasting of dynamite. Stan flung open a door of a room where five men in their shirtsleeves sat around a table with chips in front of them and cards in their hands.

"What——?" one of them began to protest.

Bob Webb's arm swept the chimney from the bracket lamp attached to the wall and plunged the room in darkness. He followed his friend up the dark closed way to the trap door above.

"Where now?" he asked.

Fraser did not know. He hoped there was another opening to permit descent into an adjoining building. If not, they were out of luck. As they moved forward to look for a road of escape they heard the noisy clamor of many voices below.

"Found out," Fraser called to his companion.

Fortunately the trap door was not bolted inside. Bob went down into the dark pit after Stan, stopping only to close and latch the heavy framework of the vent. The ladder led them to a storeroom from which they stepped into a passage with rooms on both sides.

A gleam of wintry humor lit the little man's eyes. "We might take a room for the night." Fraser had given Bob an idea.

Very few of the rooms were locked. The habit of the country was to forget keys. Bob opened a door, looked in, and discovered in the darkness two children asleep in a bed. He withdrew and closed the door gently.

"Kids in there," he told his companion.

They soft-footed down the hall and tried again. From the doorway Bob's glance swept the room. The bed had been slept in but was at the moment unoccupied.

"Filled with absentees," Webb murmured.

There was a rustle at the window. A shadow bulked close to it from which stood out a white face.

"What do you want?" a woman's voice asked sharply.

Bob would have known that voice among a thousand. He guessed that Sandra had been wakened and drawn to the window by the sound of the firing.

The shuffling of many feet on the roof above came plainly to them. In another minute searching men would fill the corridor.

"We're lookin' for a port in storm," Fraser said.

"But not this one," Webb added quickly. "We'll be on our way, Miss Sandra."

"No," the girl objected. "You're safer here. They don't come in without knocking, and when they knock I'll meet them at the door."

"That will be fine," Fraser replied. "We'll stand back out of sight."

"We'll find another room," Webb insisted.

She was at the door before him, her arms stretched wide across it. "Don't be foolish. They are on their way down now. It's all right. Father is in the next room."

Already boots were clattering down the ladder.

"Much obliged, Miss Sandra," Fraser spoke softly.

"Get back of the bed and crouch down," she ordered. "Hurry, please. They'll be here in no time."

Urgent shouts beat thru the wall to them. A fist beat on the door panel of the room. "Hey! Open up here. We're searching the hotel."

Sandra flung a glance behind her to make sure her guests were concealed. As she opened the door her fingers drew a robe closer around her throat.

"W-what do you want?" she quavered.

She was manifestly frightened, and her fear was no disservice. The men in the corridor were rough customers, some of them scoundrels, but they had the frontier respect for good women. Sandra recognized one, a man who dealt in cattle, by name Rip Morris.

He lifted his hat. "Sorry, miss. Don't be scared. We're lookin' for an escaped convict. We think he's in the hotel here somewhere."

The door was open 6 or 8 inches. She clung to the knob. "You don't mean—in my room?"

"No need to be afraid, miss," he assured her. "If he is, we won't let him hurt you. Point is, he might have slipped in here while you were asleep."

"But he couldn't have," she cried, panic in her voice. "I haven't been asleep. At the first shots I got up. Nobody could have come in without me seeing him."

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	1 spade
3 diamonds	Pass	3 spades	Pass
6 diamonds	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of spades.

Today's hand illustrates again the important principle that in slam bidding the number of aces the partnership holds is not always decisive. It is almost always important to ascertain precisely which aces partner holds.

The North in today's hand is able to embark upon a slam contract only if he knows that partner's ace is in spades, as the holding of the ace of hearts would not enable the partnership to fulfill the slam contract for the obvious reason that they might lose two spade tricks.

North opened the bidding with one club. East passed and South naturally bid one diamond. West's overcall of one spade was normal.

At this point North elected to bid three diamonds, probably the best choice. This is a much superior bid to three clubs, which I have noticed some players make with this type of holding. It is pointless to jump in your own suit which may not be satisfactory when you are able to jump in your partner's suit, the solidity of which is now highly probable.

South made a very fine bid of three spades, which is really ambiguous. It can serve two purposes. If partner is interested in a slam, the knowledge that the ace of spades is there may be important. If partner is not interested in a slam, but has some protection in hearts, then this bid may make easy a contract of three no trump by North.

When North learns that South has the ace of spades, it is a fair gamble that the club suit can be established even if partner has not the queen, and he therefore quite properly contracts for six diamonds which is a laydown. I saw this hand played by a pair employing the Blackwood Convention. After the overcall of one spade North elected to bid four no trump. Partner responded showing that he had one ace and still North could do nothing about it because the ace of hearts did not have the same value as the ace of spades.

Now, note too, that North's bid of four no trump was not sound because actually he is not sure that the partnership can make five diamonds. If South's response happens to be based on five or six diamonds, headed by the king, jack, ten, and the king of hearts, even a five diamond contract cannot be fulfilled.

TOMORROW'S PROBLEM:

As East you hold:
♠ Q 7 6 3 ♥ K Q 2 ♦ J 9 5 ♣ 10 9 8

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 clubs	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
6 hearts	?

Would you double?

Polish Pianist Electrifying in Local Recital

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

No one who heard Witold Malcuzynski in Orchestra hall last night is likely to waste time wondering why Paderewski chose him as his last pupil. The reason was instantly obvious. The tall young Pole with the fine hands has great gifts in the grand style and particularly during the second half of his Musical Arts Piano series recital he sometimes electrified both the piano and the audience. All of that audience, certainly, will want to hear him again, and most of it will want to hear him with our own orchestra.

Whatever he played, he had superb technique, a bold and beautiful tone, and an intensity of concentration that made it impossible for him to be dull. But he had more to bring to some music than to others, and some music had more to bring to him. For Bach's wonderful Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue, for instance, he had the skill but not quite the style. It was a romantic conception and at times it lacked the bold clarity of its own brilliance. For Liszt, the rarely heard Sonata in B minor, Mr. Malcuzynski was precisely in the opposite boat. He played it magnificently, as Liszt is rarely played in our time, with sweep and color and yet with a kind of brooding affection—but in our time not many audiences can share that affection. It was, to many listeners, a glowing portrait of an abandoned era, one that reminded, but could not recreate.

Yet there was no dulling of interest in the performance, for you knew gold was there and all you had to do was strike it. The three Szymanowski mazurkas played after intermission were flawlessly done, expert in the virtuoso manner, but still inconclusive. It was not until Mr. Malcuzynski struck the D-flat minor etude of Scriabine that sparks really flew. He played like a tornado charted with a slide rule. So then every one knew what to expect in the Chopin—the Chopin he worked on with Paderewski until he won one of Europe's most coveted prizes.

The Nocturne in C-sharp minor was beautifully played, but the seventh etude of Opus 25 was magnificently played, the lovely posthumous waltz beloved of "Les Sylphides" was gloriously played, and the recital ended in the foaming iridescence of the C-sharp minor scherzo—ended, that is, for workaday souls with reviews to write. The rest of the audience sat right in Orchestra hall and waited for encores. Myself, I'll wait for Malcuzynski's return. No one that good is going to stay away very long.

Chides Civilian Girls for Ignoring Women in Uniform Socially

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5 (AP).—Civilian girls, willing hostesses at community parties for service men, seldom extend their social patriotism to service women, Capt. Mildred H. McAfee asserted today.

The director of the WAVES, on leave as president of Wellesley College for Women, told a White House conference on war recreation that civilian girls even refused to admit WAVE officers to parties for which a blanket invitation had been extended to officers.

Church Group Is Told Need of Men for Pulpit

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The net membership gain in Chicago's Congregational churches last year was reported among the largest in history, yet the man power shortage hit the pulpit and parsonage increasingly hard, 1,200 members of those churches, meeting in the Palmer House last night, were told.

The Rev. Dr. Niel E. Hansen, general director of the Chicago Congregational union, sponsor of the annual dinner and meeting, said that one-fifth of the city's Congregational churches were forced to call new pastors during the current year, and that only 38 ministers remain in pulpits they occupied in 1940. The year book of the Chicago Church federation lists 93 Congregational churches in the metropolitan area.

The members of the church union were told that, as against salaries of Congregational ministers thruout the country, Illinois congregations pay more than 17 per cent higher salaries with an average of $2,131 per year. Dr. Hansen added that 80 per cent of all Congregational ministers of the country spent at least seven years in college and theological seminary, and predicted that thru the union's program, a minimum salary of $2,500 will be paid within three years.

Thirteen Chicago Congregational ministers are now serving as chaplains, Dr. Hansen said. He also told of the union's "policy of concentration of Congregational social work in the few places where the best equipment and leadership can be provided," with six such centers now remaining. One of these, Bethlehem Community center, 1853 S. Loomis st., is launching plans for a $200,000 development program, Dr. Hansen said.

Dr. Rockwell Harmon Potter of Hartford, Conn., last night's guest speaker, said: "The only institution in Chicago that has a ghost of a chance to be here 1,000 years from now is the Christian church. Every other institution will disappear or be so changed it- own mother would not know it."

Teach Child Appropriate Night Prayer

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

In talking about children's fear of the darkness, there is one thing I haven't mentioned as a factor. That is the prayer which many children are still taught, and which, to some, is disturbing as their last thought at night. It is:

Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray the Lord my soul to keep.
If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take.

If your child has been saying this prayer, change it. If he is just about to learn a night prayer, let him say one of the following:

Now I lay me down to rest,
Angels guard my little nest.
Like the wee birds in the tree,
Heavenly Father, care for me.

Jesus, Gentle Shepherd, hear me,
Bless Thy little lamb tonight.

Dear Father in Heaven,
Look down from above.
Bless father and mother
And those whom I love.
May angels guard over
My slumbers, and when
The morning is breaking
Awake me. Amen.

Now the day is over,
Night is drawing nigh,
Shadows of the evening
Steal across the sky.

Jesus, give the weary
Calm and sweet repose.
With Thy tenderest blessing
May our eyelids close.

When the morning wakens
Then may I arise,
Strong and fresh and happy
In Thy holy eyes.

The sun has set, the stars grow bright
And over the fields fast falls the night,
Like a fairy wrapped in a mist of dew
With God's gift of sleep for me and you.

Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray Thee, Lord, my soul to keep.
God bless my father and mother dear,
And Heavenly Father, draw Thou near,
And bless me, too, and help me wake
A happy girl [boy],
For Jesus' sake.

Household Forum

—By Louise Bargelt—

Mrs. Howard G., Rockford, Ill.—I'll pass on a fact I learned thru hard experience. A piece of waxed paper on a kitchen linoleum floor can be quite as slippery—and dangerous—as a banana peeling!

Ernie T., Chicago—In the days when I made many glasses of jelly in the summer I never bothered to label each glass but stored the glasses of the same flavor in one box and just labeled the box. That was a time saver and also kept glasses from getting so dusty. It's something to remember when jelly making starts in earnest again.

Mrs. Bette R., Evanston—It's a good idea to sew around a large stained area of a garment before washing or dry cleaning it. In this way, even when cloth is wet, it is easy to find the spot.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 5.—Even Metro doesn't know, but it appears Clark Gable's first picture will be "Strange Adventure" which Casey Robinson is writing, and Victor Fleming will direct. The woman who gets a part in it will be lucky. Metro could almost give it to an unknown and have a new star. . . . Joe Cotten co-stars with Ingrid Bergman in "Dawning," with Fritz Lang directing, and they get going soon after the first of the year. Cotten is cast for so many pictures I wonder if he remembers what his real character is. He's played so many. . . . Joan Crawford sure has the luck of the Irish. By waiting to do "Mildred Pierce," she got Producer Jerry Wald, Director Mike Curtiz, little Ann Blyth from Universal, and Photographer Ernie Haller. . . . I'll lay you a wager that next to "Going My Way," "Meet Me in St. Louis" will bring the biggest receipts of the year.

Ida Is a Triple Threat Girl.

Ida Lupino has a three month vacation from Warners, and instead of going to New York to make whoopee, she's working harder than ever on a screen story to star Monty Woolley. It's called "Overture." Ida, who always has been a very serious girl, says when the fans get tired of her face on the screen, she wants to be all ready with another kind of work she can step into. She's written quite a few song hits, but this is the first time she's tackled a screenplay. Compared to some of the writing I've seen lately, hers should be an epic. . . . I was amused reading a squib that Mary Phillips returns to the screen for the first time in six years as Eddie Rickenbacker's mother. Mary gave one of the outstanding performances of "Lady in the Dark."

'Taint Fair to the Boys.

Esther Williams has planned a mighty funny gag for her hospital tour. She'll tell about her picture tests, then ask a boy to act them out with her. She'll hand him a script, which is the girl's part. Then say, "I'm sorry—I brought only one. I'll play the boy." When she comes to the line, "Will you kiss me, darling?"—the boy leaps at the chance. But, she turns and says, "Read your script, fellow—it says there, 'No!'" . . . Metro picked two unknown dancers from its own studio to do a number with Xavier Cugat's band in "Week-End at the Waldorf." They're Virginia Hunter and Walter Stane. . . . Princess Yourievitch finally got around to having a test made. It happened at Twentieth Century and I'm told it turned out very princessy.

This and That of Hollywood.

It was Gus Schirmer Jr. who met Tallulah Bankhead at the train with a bundle of playscripts under his arm for her to choose from. . . . June Havoc is superb in the musical version of "Sadie Thompson." She's taken over one floor of Gypsy Rose Lee's 26 room house. I'm told that Gypsy lives more luxuriously than any star in Hollywood. . . . Barbara Stanwyck doesn't know when she'll do "The Two Mrs. Carrols" for Warner's. . . . George Gallup of that poll is in town seeing his old friends. . . . Leopold Stokowski and Cab Calloway are writing an operetta entitled "Rhapsody in Reverse." . . . The George Haights are expecting a new baby. He's a Metro director. . . . O, what Sally Wright's going to get for Christmas from Mervyn Leroy! . . . The Tobe Reeds relaxing in the sun at Desert inn with Capt. and Mrs. Robert Forward of the Santa Ana air base. Before the war Forward also was a well known announcer.

Well, We're Off Again.

I ran into little Jeff Donnell, who got the big build-up from Columbia when she was playing in "My Sister Eileen," and who's still young and pretty. But when I asked, "What are you doing?" she said, "Well, at present I'm playing a Whistler's Mother character opposite Richard Dix at Monogram." . . . United Artists called off "Conflict" because it couldn't get a star for the picture. . . . Leonard Sillman's "New Faces of 1945" will be made for Republic. . . . You wouldn't believe the name of the man [who's head of a studio] who took home 20 cartons of cigarets, sent for sale to his employes, for his own use and to give as Christmas presents. . . . Lee Shubert is having a time with Paul Robeson and "Othello." Down south, Paul wants half the orchestra seats set aside for his friends. . . . Harry Warner was fit to be tied. After he rented one stage to David Selznick because David was short of space, a story came out that Selznick had taken over all of the Warner California studio. . . . I asked Beulah Bondi what she'd been doing lately, and she replied: "Just a spinster tourist in 'Our Hearts Were Young and Gay,' a business woman in 'And Now Tomorrow,' a selfish old maid in 'She Was a Soldier, Too,' a worried mother in 'The Very Thought of You,' and an 85 year old granny in 'Hold Autumn in Your Hand'—and what I held in my hand was cotton!" Now she's playing a schoolteacher in "Invisible Army." Not bad for a swell gal on the shady side of 50, is it? . . . Edmund O'Brien used to get $1,500 per week for acting jobs at Twentieth, but never has he had more bouquets than he gets for his role of the boy from Brooklyn in "Winged Victory"—which he did for $78 per month. . . . George S. Clark, who's working as technical adviser on R. K. O.'s "Invisible Army," because supposedly he was the last man to leave Bataan, may get a test of his own after the war. Every time he leaves the lot, the kids who hang around the gate mistake him for Clark Gable. And that ain't bad!

The announcement was made last night at a dinner in the California club honoring Don Ameche, screen and radio star, who shares the ownership of the team with Christy Walsh.

It also was revealed that Lt. Comdr. Al Wesson, public relations officer at St. Mary's Pre-Flight school, will serve as publicity director of the Los Angeles club when he is discharged from naval duties. Wesson for many years was public relations man for the University of Southern California prior to his enlistment in the navy. He flew from San Francisco to attend the dinner.

Makes Sensational Record.

Bertelli, a lieutenant with the marines, is on duty in the Pacific. Last year he was awarded the Heisman trophy, presented annually to the player who in a sports writers poll is adjudged the outstanding gridiron performer of the season. Few forward passers in the history of intercollegiate football can match Bertelli's record for accuracy.

In 1941, which was Frank Leahy's first year as head coach at Notre Dame, Bertelli threw 123 passes and completed 70 including eight for touchdowns. In 1942 he tossed 165 and clicked with 74, of which 11 resulted in touchdowns. Bertelli played in only six games in 1943, because of his transfer from Notre Dame to Parris Island in midseason, but he compiled the amazing record of 25 completions in 36 attempts. Ten went for touchdowns. His three year record was 169 completed passes in 324 attempts for an average of .522. These scored 29 touchdowns and set up opportunities for many others.

Leaves for New York Meeting.

Among the guests at last night's dinner were some of the city's most widely known judges, lawyers, and doctors, the president of the chamber of commerce, the chairman of the Rose bowl committee, two Los Angeles supervisors who have joint control of the Coliseum, radio executives, newspaper publishers, and sports writers.

Walsh left immediately after the dinner for New York where he will represent Los Angeles at a meeting of All-America conference club owners Saturday and Sunday.

Lt. Comdr. James Crowley, athletic officer at Sampson, N. Y., naval training center, who recently was appointed commissioner of the conference for a five year period, will preside at the meeting. Crowley, however, will not direct the operation of the league until after the completion of his services to the navy.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

AMONG the lessons the United States has learned in this war is the importance of physical training for youth. . . . It can't be left to the will of the individual or conducted on a haphazard basis. . . . Most military and educational leaders favor compulsory exercise in grade schools, high schools, and colleges. . . . The form it should take varies, of course. . . . Many military executives would have it carried on in army camps or naval bases. . . . Equally as many educators contend that if it is a high physical standard the nation is seeking, it can be attained thru a well ordered program in our schools. . . . The latter plan would minimize the dangers to family life in which the strength of a nation lies. . . . Assuming that compulsory training is adopted in schools, it will be interesting to see the form it will take. . . . This department has little doubt that if there were a proposal for enforced calisthenics classes the rank and file of educators would endorse it. . . . They probably would be less enthusiastic about a program of athletics designed to attain the same results. . . . The average American boy gets little fun out of routine limbering up exercises. . . . He does enjoy participation in games. . . . He likes to be a member of a team or to match his individual skill with rivals in his particular sport. . . . Many educators look with disfavor upon games or contests simply because the participant gets fun out of them. . . . That's a hangover of Puritan philosophy. . . . There still are some who think medicine must be bitter and unpleasant to have curative value. . . . We will have a stronger America 20 years from now, if we give the student some voice in the selection of his form of physical training, and then see that he works at it. . . .

Bob Reynolds of Stanford, who for several years played in the National Football league, says the organization of a new major gridiron circuit is the best break college players have had. . . . "There will be competition for the services of those who want to play pro ball," he observes. . . . Reynolds now is general manager of a Los Angeles radio station. . . . Les Horvath is the first Ohio State back to gain All-America rating since Pete Stinchcomb was chosen in 1920. . . . Most of the Buckeyes' outstanding players in recent years were linemen. . . . One of the reasons the Big Ten conference dislikes bowl games is that some of the participating teams use the money they earn in those contests to lure talent away from this area. . . . A tieup for a post-season game with a conference which has not legalized the subsidization of athletes might be an answer. . . . The Notre Dame club of Hawaii had as its guest speaker at a recent meeting Lt. Frank Leahy, chief recreation officer for the Pacific submarine fleet.

Report Card.

Remember how now and then when it happened
Our report card from school was good,
All cheery and gay we'd proudly display
Our marks to the whole neighborhood?
But the thrill of all was when dad came home,
And the longed for moment arrived,
Beside his plate at supper
To lay it we neatly contrived.

And how we would beam when he'd finally say,
"Very good, my son, that's fine,
Just you keep on getting marks like that
All along the line";
And maybe he'd promise us something
To keep our efforts alive,
And always with that in view as a goal
How persistently we would strive.

Life hands us, too, a report card,
When its term is finished and done,
The marks that we've made along the way
Are plainly set down, one by one;
The problems we've solved, the progress we've made
Stand clear in the light of the sun,
So let's work toward that day when the Father will say
"Well done, my son, well done!"

Minor League Chiefs Shuffle Into Buffalo

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 5.—The 43d annual convention of the minor baseball leagues, with more than the usual coterie of major league kibitzers, was in informal session here today, altho the three day convention doesn't open formally until tomorrow.

The day before the opening of the convention usually is known as "free agents day," devoted to buzzing by unemployed baseball notables who are in a receptive mood. Best known of these estimable brethren warming up here from dawn till very late was Rogers Hornsby.

Former Sox Pilots on Hand.

Rog said he had a few nibbles and seemed very cheerful anent his predicament as of the present baseball scene.

Hornsby isn't the only former Chicago manager here, tho he is the only one looking for work. Donie Bush, now president of the Indianapolis club and Lew Fonseca, American league movie man, both former White Sox leaders, are en route, while Cracker Schalk and Lena Blackburne were among the earliest arrivals.

Jimmy Dykes, successor to Schalk, Blackburne, Bush, and Fonseca as Sox skipper, maintained an all-day vigil in the lobby of the headquarters hotel and was in fine voice.

Peck Wants Players; Not Cash.

Dykes, by the way, said he hadn't made a move toward any swapping. Roger Peckinpaugh, general manager of the Cleveland Indians, standing a few feet from Dykes, said he had several fine trading potentialities, presumably Jim Bagby and Jeff Heath, but he didn't look in Dykes' direction as he said it. Peckinpaugh emphasized he was in the swap market only; that "cats and dogs plus cash" would not be of any interest whatsoever.

Charley Grimm probably would have sold or traded Lou Novikoff to Manager Mel Ott of the Giants today if Mel had been here. However, Ott is in Burma and Grimm couldn't contact him.

Veeck Is Present.

The Cub delegation, including minor league affiliates, is the largest here. A carload came from Chicago and others assembled from all over. Among the minor leaguers was Marine Pvt. Bill Veeck, president of the Milwaukee Brewers, on 30 day leave from the navy hospital in Corona, Cal. Bill is wearing a cane and will return to the hospital for at least three months of treatment on an infected leg before he is discharged from the marines.

DePauw Rally Beats Indiana Quintet, 51-50

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 5 [Special].—The DePauw Tigers edged out the Indiana university tonight, 51 to 50, on a last minute basket by Joseph Gerichs, substitute center, a V-12 trainee.

The game was featured by the sharpshooting of DePauw forwards, Stan London and Earl Gardner, who got 17 and 19 points respectively, and the fast break attack of the Hoosiers. The Tigers got off to an early lead and led at the half, 24 to 22, after the lead had changed hands six times.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Joe Sinke, the Chicago mailman who has been pacing the field of 120 tenpin sharpshooters in the fourth annual All-Star bowling tournament, now in progress at the Auditorium Service Men's center under the sponsorship of the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America and Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., yesterday let on that he still is a very firm character.

Rolling on the fifth squad of the 10 which wound up preliminary ac-

$200 Special Prize.

Thus Sinke is the head man in the search for the special prize of $200 which will go to the bowler who leads the regiment of stars out of the 36 game total pin assignment.

Today's semi-finals, consisting of 12 games, six in the afternoon, and six in the evening, will produce the 11 men who will go into the first day of final match game competition tomorrow. The 48 leaders in the first 24 games, ending early this morning, qualified for today's semi-final stretch.

Several other citizens moved into the race for the total pin check yesterday. One was chunky, curly haired Therman Gibson, the Detroiter who has helped his town's E. and B. team become quite some shakes in national five man competition. Therman, an arc welder when he isn't pitching strikes and spares, assembled a 1,207 final series for a 24 game total of 4,794 and second place.

Varipapa Is Third.

Andy Varipapa, Hempstead, N. Y., veteran, climbed into third place while bowling on the ninth squad with 4,779. Fred Bujack of Detroit, Mich., held down fourth place with 4,775.

Right on the beam with him was Billy Sixty, the veteran Milwaukee golf and bowling journalist, who wrote himself a nice story by turning out one of the high six game efforts of the tournament, a 1,281 which shot him into a tie for fifth place on a 24 game count of 4,767. He shared this position with Low Jackson of Memphis, Tenn., another 4,767 shooter. Jackson rolled 1,214 today.

Supple Among Leaders.

Johnny Supple, former Chicagoan who is now an army corporal, stationed in Fort MacArthur, Cal., was not quite up to his previous bowling, but, even tho he slipped to an 1,113 in which he could hit 200 only once, the 130 pound soldier still wound up with 4,755 and seventh position. He was two pins up on Joe Kissoff, the shiny-pated tenor from Cleveland.

Best late effort as the final squads went into the evening's work was the 4,750 submitted by Joe Harris, 45 year old blue print machine operator from Hammond, Ind. Joseph, a native of Joliet, Ill., who averages better than 200 in three Hammond leagues, sprinkled his 1,197 with four 200 plus games. This gave him a 10 pin lead over Johnny Crimmins

TOP 3 TEAMS IN CLASSIC ARE ON SPOT TONIGHT

With only five more weekly clashes before the first half winner of the Classic league is decided, the outcome of tonight's session at Gateway recreation, 6432 W. North av., will be important to the three top teams, which are separated by only two games.

The current pace makers, Eddie Krem's Thompson's Restaurants, who rolled to a new national record Monday night with 3,432, are faced with the toughest assignment of the three in meeting Russ Creamer's Congress Arcade.

The defending champion Meister Braus, who jumped back into the battle after a sluggish early season start, are only one game away after whipping the leaders three straight last week, and have the edge in this evening's game with Art Butler's Washington Shirts.

The third place occupants, Rudy Boedecker's Chapin and Gores, two games from the lead, may experience a rugged evening against Bill Flesch's Monarch Beers.

CHICAGO HORSE SHOW ATTRACTS RECORD FIELD

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

An all time record field of 429 horses will be put thru their paces in competition for $80,000 in war bonds during the Chicago Horse show which opens a 10 day run in the Coliseum Saturday night.

The size of the field has compelled the association to take over two additional buildings east of the Coliseum and to borrow extra stalls from sponsors of the Stock Yards, Lake Forest, Hinsdale, and Peoria horse shows. Many of the entrants are en route from all sections of the country, and the first contingent will arrive today.

A program of nine competitive events and two special features will usher in the show Saturday night. Early arrivals will see the jumper class get the exhibition under way at 8 o'clock.

Then will follow events for harness horses under 15.2 hands, entered in a $1,000 stake event; three gaited saddle horses ridden by their owners; Gene Autry, film star, and his educated horse, Champion; roadster singles; four-in-hand horses or ponies; five gaited mares entered in the open classes; an exhibition by a high school trick horse; single harness ponies driven by women; a Palomino parade class, and high stepping harness ponies and Shetlands.

The show will continue nightly thru Dec. 17, with matinees next Sunday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, closing day. Matinees start at 2 o'clock. Net proceeds of the show will go to the Community and War fund.

A Little Planning Goes a Long Way

at Holiday Time

Furloughs and essential business trips will tax travel facilities during the holidays. To those who find it necessary to travel during this difficult season, we offer these suggestions:

Plan ahead. Discuss your trip with our representative... at the City Ticket Office, or passenger station. Our employees, though busy war workers, will always try to help make your trip more pleasant.

There is a mighty good reason why all of us must plan more carefully right now. This year, the ROCK ISLAND LINES' passenger traffic is almost six times as large as it was in 1939, yet war shortages have prevented our adding new coaches, diners and Pullmans to handle the year 'round increases, let alone the heavy holiday burden.

Allow flexibility in your plans as to dates of departure and arrival. A suggestion that you change to another day, or an earlier or later train, is just our way of trying to eliminate unnecessary discomfort for you.

We firmly believe that COOPERATION, given in the truly American manner, is the finest way to solve any problem.

As yesterday—and today—so tomorrow ROCK ISLAND'S sole purpose is to provide the finest in transportation

Semi-Finals Today.

Last night's firing produced the 48 semi-finalists, who will work 12 games today, six in the matinee session, beginning at 11 a. m. and continuing at 100 minute intervals, and six in the evening. The top 11 men for the 36 game, total pin battle tonight will become eligible for the round robin, match play scramble beginning tomorrow and continuing thru Sunday night's finish.

These 11 qualifiers for the man-to-man argument will join with the five bowlers who were seeded off of their work in the 1943 event. This quintet includes Ned Day of West Allis, Wis., last year's champion, who recently surrendered his title to Paul Krumske, 1943 runner-up, in a challenge match; Krumske, the new champ; Rudy Pugel, Day's Milwaukee protege; Buddy Bomar, the hustling Texan who now manages Chicago's Marigold arcade, and Connie Schwogler of Madison, Wis., winner in 1942. The last named three have been working out in the early hours against their duels in the match game program.

The round robin will open tomorrow with 16 men shooting at each other. They will roll 15 four-game blocks in rotation, all to be determined on the Petersen point system. No. 16, which will conclude the world series of the game on Sunday night, will bring out the position round. In this the leader for the first 15 games will meet the second scorer for the same distance, the third the fourth, the fifth the sixth, etc.

There Is No Word.

There is no word for one to say
To her whose son is gone,
Who bravely fell in human hell
And perished with the dawn.

There is no touch, no thought, no plea,
To soothe that aching breast,
Unless it be "Come unto Me,
And I will give you rest."

—Frank H. Keith.

Perplexity.

A multitude of questions
I've asked thruout my days,
Receiving sundry answers
Which constantly amaze.
But this remains a puzzle
To ev'ry one I've seen:
Why MUST it rain on windows
The minute they are clean?

—Hilda Butler Farr.

FIRST INFANTRY WINS TROPHY IN MILITIA CONTEST

The 1st infantry, Illinois reserve militia, with headquarters in Chicago, won the drill attendance contest sponsored by THE TRIBUNE for the six month period ended Nov. 30.

Figures compiled by Brig. Gen. Leo M. Boyle, the state adjutant general, showed that Company A of Dixon, part of the 3rd infantry, was the high company among 79 with a six month average of 96 per cent.

1st infantry, Chicago	73.4
3rd infantry, Aurora	67.8
8th infantry, Chicago	65.6
2nd infantry, Chicago	61.9
6th infantry, Peoria	57.4
5th infantry, Danville	56.1
4th infantry, Edwardsville	53.1

The first place trophy will be presented to Col. George May, 1st infantry commander, by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, next Monday evening in the Northwest armory, Kedzie and North avs.

On that night the regiment will be assembled for the annual home coming and reunion of the veterans of the 131st infantry, 33d division, Illinois National Guard.

Other individual rifle comapnies which will receive trophies as the highest in the regiments are:

Co. A, 1st infantry, Chicago	93.6
Co. G, 8th infantry, Chicago	88.9
Co. M, 5th infantry, Paris	77.1
Co. D, 2d infantry, Chicago	70.0
Co. M, 4th infantry, Harrisburg	66.6
Co. A, 6th infantry, Rock Island	65.4

THE TRIBUNE will sponsor a similar contest in 1945.

TELLS JOBBER TO SNEAK IN WITH CIGARETS

An Oak Park druggist said yesterday he has instructed his cigaret jobber to wrap the cartons in a newspaper and come in the back way when he makes deliveries hereafter.

"I had to do it," the pharmacist explained. "Last week the jobber drove up and walked into the front door with an armful of cartons. In about one minute my store was crowded, with everybody clamoring for a pack of cigarets.

"The result was the cigarets had not been in the house more than 30 minutes before I was completely sold out again. I didn't have even a puff left for my regular customers. And, believe me, they kicked!"

So hereafter with the cigarets well disguised, the distributor — looking first in all directions and then over his shoulder—sneaks in with his deliveries.

DE TARNOWSKY'S 20TH COURT TILT WITH ALICE HELD

Attorneys for Capt. Alexis de Tarnowsky were in court yesterday for the 20th time since he filed suit for divorce last March against Mrs. Alice Rand de Tarnowsky, Barrington heiress, who was married to Pvt. Charles L. F. McIntosh after obtaining a Mexican divorce from the captain. De Tarnowsky is in France, and a hearing on the divorce may not be held until he returns. His attorneys, Joseph H. and Norman Becker, appeared before Judge John A. Sbarbaro in Superior court to protest a motion for dissolving an order that restrains Saul Plast, a real estate dealer, from using the Barrington house. He purchased a half interest in it from Mrs. McIntosh. Judge Sbarbaro will rule on Plast's motion tomorrow.

2 BOYS' STEERS ADJUDGED BEST AT STOCK SHOW

Iowa and Illinois Lads Take Double Firsts.

BY GAIL COMPTON.

Breaks Lacy's Streak.

Ben's victory broke a two year winning streak by T. Richard Lacy, 18, of Kansas, Ill., whose steer, T. O. Model, also a Hereford, was chosen show reserve champion last night. Model was awarded a reserve junior championship yesterday.

The number of steers—790—exhibited solely by rural youngsters was the largest in the history of the show and most were of such top quality that John T. Burns, Texas cattle expert who was judge, found it hard to place one above the other.

Purdue university, Lafayette, Ind., swept the open classes in the swine show with little effort. The university exhibited the grand champion barrow, a Hampshire, the reserve champion, a Poland China, the grand champion pen of three, Poland Chinas, and the reserve champion pen, Chester Whites.

Large Crowd Attends.

Sleet and snow failed to keep a large crowd away from the steer and hog barns. In the steer barn spectators enjoyed the sight of 10 and 12 year old 4-H club boys and girls trying to lead their animals into the ring. More often than not, the big 1,100 pound animals did the leading with the youngsters dragging behind on a halter rope, digging their feet into the shavings.

Winners Are Listed.

Sheep [Open Class].

Swine [Open Class].

Grand champion car load of hogs—Karl and George Hoffman, Ida Grove, Ia., medium weight Berkshires.

Cattle.

Champion Shorthorn—Gerald Fairchild, Sioux Rapids, Ia.

Champion Hereford—Benjamin A. Greve, Bryant, Ia.

Champion Aberdeen-Angus—Sarah Ann Hoffman, Ida Grove, Ia.

Second highest price was $3,500, for a bull owned by Frank W. Harding of Waukesha, Wis., paid by J. J. Coney of Santa Rosa, Cal. Third highest was $3,000, paid by John L. Turner of Broadway, Va., for an animal owned by Sni-A-Bar farms, Grain Valley, Mo.

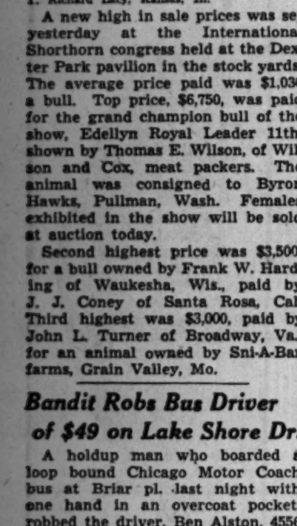
A holdup man who boarded a loop bound Chicago Motor Coach bus at Briar pl. last night with one hand in an overcoat pocket, robbed the driver, Ben Alston, 4556 Magnolia av., of $39, and alighted at Barry av., after warning Alston not to stop until he reached Chicago av. Only two of the 10 passengers in the bus were aware that a holdup was in progress, Alston told East Chicago Avenue police.

PAJAMA CLAD FAMILIES FLEE FIRE.

Three pajama clad families early yesterday were forced into the street when fire broke out in an apartment building at 516 E. 44th st. Chief James R. Hughes of the 16th battalion said the fire, which caused an estimated $1,000 damage, was caused by a cigaret.



TERRY

HEALTHIEST 4-H GIRL ONCE AN INCUBATOR BABY

National Title Won by Ohio Blonde.

The country's healthiest 4-H club members were named yesterday at the National 4-H club congress in the Stevens hotel. One of them, Miss Elizabeth Ann Laughner, 18, of Leetonia, O., was an incubator baby, the surprised judges learned.

Other winners, with a more normal start in the world, are Lucille Latza, 16, of Letcher, S. D.; Robert Tolbert, 17, of Pauls Valley, Okla., and Lyle M. Ramey, 15, of Redwood Falls, Minn. All are blue ribbon examples of correct posture, proper eating habits, and good looks.

Works to Health.

Miss Laughner, a cute, ever smiling blonde freshman at Wittenberg college, Springfield, O., is the daughter of a St. Paul Lutheran minister in Leetonia, a town of 2,500. Slow to gain weight after her session in an incubator, Ann lost much time at school, underwent a hernia operation at the age of 8 and at one time was declared anemic.

Miss Latza is a junior in high school and has a 600 acre farm to play and work on during the summer, but she said yesterday that health didn't come to her from wishful thinking. "I had to work for it," she said. A pretty brunette, Lucille's worst habit is biting her finger nails.

Bob Tolbert helps his father farm 360 acres of land, but he lives on a 30 acre river bottom farm where he devotes a lot of his time to study of wild life. He is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 150 pounds. Lyle Ramey, co-winner, is a half inch shorter and five pounds heavier and, while he lives and works on a farm, his father's principal occupation is the insurance and loan business.

Home Makers Win.

"At the rate I'm going," Lyle said yesterday, "I'll have to float a loan before I get back to Redwood Falls." Chicago offers some tempting gifts for Christmas shopping, he explained.

Six 4-H home makers were given $200 college scholarships yesterday after the records of 42 state winners had been studied by judges. They are Fern Howe, 17, of Presho, S. D.; Amy Lohmann, 19, of Zumbrota, Minn.; Mary Nelle Traylor, 16, of Gabbettville, Ga.; Mildred Jean Massey, 17, of Coldwater, Miss.; Dorothy E. Richardson, 20, of Lowell, Mass., and Virginia Dale Dyer, 20, of Camden-on-Gauley, W. Va.

Winners in the national war garden contest, who received all-expense trips to Chicago for the congress, were honor guests at a dinner last night. Winners were Michael J. Schwartz, 19, of St. Paul, Minn.; Richard Kuska, 15, of Omaha, Neb.; George W. De Ridder Jr., 19, of Ballston Spa, N. Y.; Bernice Quimby, 16, of Barnet, Vt.; Mary G. Mitchell, 16, of Lumber City, Ga.; Helen Slaughter, 16, of Philadelphia, Miss.; Freddy Thonen, 16, of Phoenix, Ariz., and Bill Lane, 16, of Boring, Ore.

4 NEW CHAMPION FARMERS TO BE HONORED TODAY

Four outstanding American farmers will become members of the Champion Farmers' Association of America when the organization convenes today in the Stevens hotel. The association is composed of 126 farmers who have made outstanding contributions to American agriculture. The four new members are Lewis Zimmerman, Lehighton, Pa.; M. P. Moore, Senatobia, Miss.; Oscar Johnston, Scott, Miss., and Earl Elijah, Clarence, Ia.

Zimmerman's dairy herd won the Holstein Association of America's herd improvement contest. The 16 animals, milked three times daily, averaged 19,985 pounds of milk and 731 pounds of butterfat per cow.

Moore is recognized as a pioneer in changing the agricultural pattern of the south by encouraging diversified farming instead of single crop culture of cotton. He sold more than $100,000 worth of purebred polled Herefords last year.

Johnston was recognized for organizing in 1937 the National Cotton Council of America, thus providing a unified voice for the 13 million Americans who depend on cotton for a livelihood. Elijah, past president of the Master Farmers of America, won nomination to the association for his work in developing farm marketing methods.

DIAPER SERVICE TO BE CUT IF OPA DOESN'T ACT

A new and acute diaper shortage is the result of less cloth rather than more babies, William L. Chester, proprietor of Baby's Valet, Inc., 511 Harrison st., Oak Park, reported yesterday after attending a meeting of directors of the National Institute of Diaper Services in New York. A resolution was adopted at that session urging the office of price administration to grant the manufacturers a price increase on the theory that the latter are holding up shipments until they can be assured a better price and more looms.

The institute members, Chester said, provide 65 to 70 per cent of the diaper service in 48 states. He complained that his own organization, which normally receives 800 to 1,000 dozen diapers a month, received none in November. If it does not receive a supply soon, he added, it will be necessary to discontinue service to many families with children one year or older in order to service hospitals and homes with younger babies, especially those of war worker mothers or women whose husbands are in service.

RULE SLAYINGS IN PRISON BREAK ARE ACCIDENTAL

Verdicts of accidental death were returned yesterday by a Will county coroner's jury in the fatal shootings during a Stateville prison break Nov. 24 of Zoeth Skaggs, 53, a guard, and Edward Rabalais, 47, a convict. Both were killed when tower guards fired into the group of mutinous prisoners who had seized Skaggs as a hostage.

The verdict held that both deaths were the direct result of the attempted escape and exonerated all guards and prison officials who took part in quelling the break. State's Atty. James E. Burke of Will county said he would submit the case to the grand jury which convenes Jan. 8.

The inquest was conducted in the prison chapel by Dr. E. A. Kingston, Will county coroner. Three tower guards who fired a dozen shots from .30 caliber rifles at the band of convicts described the break, which was plotted by William Stewart and Matthew Nelson, veterans of the Roger Touhy gang escape in 1942.

DAIRY LEADERS OPEN PARLEY TODAY IN LOOP

Dairy leaders from 44 states will open a three day meeting in the Morrison hotel this morning, with the major discussion concerning federal legislation to replace the present dairy subsidy program.

Charles W. Holman, secretary of the National Coöperative Milk Producers federation, said yesterday that the federal dairy feed subsidy program ends March 31, 1945, and all agricultural subsidies will be dropped next June 30.

"Altho generally opposed to the subsidy principle," Holman said, "dairy farmers have become dependent upon these payments for about 14 per cent of their income. Whatever modification of the program is made in congress must therefore be counterbalanced by fair market prices to the dairyman."

2 MEN, WOMAN FOUND SLAIN IN CENTRALIA HOME

Centralia, Ill., Dec. 5 (AP).—A mother of four children, her husband, and her brother were found shot to death in the brother's home here tonight in what Chief of Police Orville T. Bounds said apparently was a double murder and suicide.

The woman, Mrs. Lula Creps, 34, was shot thru the left breast and shoulder. Her brother, William Samuel Marsh, 53, was shot thru the chest, and her husband, Cecil Creps, 36, was shot thru the head. A revolver was found on the floor beside Creps' body.

Ten year old Billy Creps told the state's attorney that he had seen his father shoot and kill his mother, his uncle, and then commit suicide. The boy said the shooting followed his mother's refusal to return to California with her husband, who had been a crane operator there.

Henri Dellmar, 41, of 4527 Fulton st., a garage owner, whose car struck the men, said they stepped from behind an elevated line pillar and that he did not see them. He said the weather was foggy, further obscuring vision. Dellmar was held for the inquest.

Gilbert Schultz died yesterday in County hospital of injuries suffered Monday when he was run over by a truck backing into the lot at 632 Roosevelt rd. The truck driver was Lester Hammersberg, 40, of 4330 N. Whipple st.

BACK PURCHASE PLAN TO GUARD 'CLOSED' FIRMS

Mortality Laid to Lack of Program.

Failure to provide for purchase of a deceased large stockholder's or partner's holdings was blamed yesterday for much of the mortality among closely held corporations and partnerships. Definite purchase plans based on adequate life insurance coverage payable to those persons surviving in the business were termed essential to the continued life of such business organizations.

These opinions were advanced by speakers at a symposium of the Chicago Life Insurance and Trust council in the La Salle hotel.

Simple Plan Held Best.

Simplicity should be the essence of any program for the purchase of a decedent partner's share in a business, Allan B. Hussander, secretary of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, said. As the basis of such a plan he offered a model contract to be entered into by the business partners. Its key points were:

1. Appointment of a trustee for the holdings of each partner who would retain his right to vote at stockholders' meetings, however.

2. Insurance policies on the life of each partner payable to the trustees from which could be obtained a sum sufficient to purchase his holdings.

Partners to Pay Premiums.

3. Agreement by the partners to pay the premiums on such policies.

4. Agreement among the partners on a price for which each would be willing to have his holdings sold in the event of his death.

5. The decedent's heirs or a special trust fund established for the benefit of his family would receive the proceeds from the sale of his holdings.

Thomas S. Edmonds, vice chairman of the trust committee of the Chicago Bar association, supported the establishment of a trust fund in cases in which the purchase price of a decedent's holdings was large. The closely held corporation should be given power to purchase holdings of a deceased large stockholder within six months after his death, he said.

Backs Life Insurance.

An adequate life insurance program was backed by Harry T. Wright, associate agency manager of the Equitable Life Assurance society, as the easiest manner in which to finance a purchase agreement, but he admitted that on the basis of present income taxes the individual would have difficulty in supporting such a program.

Corporate funds are the medium thru which this program must be financed, he said. Lawyers, bankers, and insurance underwriters who have a stake in the continuation in business of corporate clients should work together to have large stockholders in closely held corporations arrange for liquidation of their holdings thru life insurance.

Many Banks' Stocks Selling at High Level

A general rise in bank stocks caused wide comment in La Salle street yesterday. Northern Trust company stock extended its advance to $740 bid, a gain of $115 in three weeks. Chicago Title and Trust company shares were quoted at $205 bid, compared with $178 in mid-November.

Brokers reported quickened interest in bank shares since Harris Trust and Savings bank announced plans to pay a dividend of 33⅓ per cent in stock to shareholders of record Dec. 18, subject to ratification of the plan at a stockholders' meeting Dec. 13. Quoted at $430 bid just prior to the announcement, Harris stock has risen to $500.

Highest in Several Years.

Specialists in bank shares reported that prices generally were the highest in several years, giving effect to stock dividends such as the distribution of 66⅔ per cent by First National and of 20 per cent by Continental Illinois National last December. New York bank stocks also have shown outstanding strength recently.

Record breaking deposits and increased holdings of government securities were mentioned among the causes of the buying interest. Bank earnings this year are expected to compare favorably with 1943 as a general rule.

Northern Trust Meets Dec. 19.

Northern Trust directors are expected to hold their regular quarterly dividend meeting Dec. 19, and they will meet for the annual election of officers on Jan. 1. Dividends this year totaled $18 a share, same as in 1943.

Chicago Title and Trust directors will meet Dec. 13 "to determine dividend policy." Payments so far this year total $7, unchanged from 1943. There were rumors yesterday that an extra payment may be considered. Increased activity in real estate has been reflected in the company's business, and earnings were reported to have been satisfactory.

PLANE OUTPUT MISSES QUOTA FOR NOVEMBER

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5 (AP).—Aircraft production in November failed to meet schedules by 300 planes, WPB Chairman Krug said today. Output totaled 6,747 planes, compared with "on schedule" production of 7,429 planes in October.

Cutput of Super Fortresses exceeded schedule by a small number, Krug said, but was roughly 20 per cent behind the number wanted by the army air forces in November to maintain the activation schedule of B-29 groups for the war against Japan. He called production of four-engine long range transports "particularly disappointing."

Unfavorable weather for flight testing during the latter part of the month, some loss of production on Thanksgiving day, drastic design changes on a few types, and difficulties in bringing new models into production contributed to the lag.

NOVEMBER SHIP OUTPUT NEARS PEAK FOR YEAR

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5 (AP).—Merchant ship deliveries in November totaled 154, nine more than in October and the second highest for any month in 1944. The top of 155 was set in May.

The maritime commission announced today that November deliveries aggregated 1,430,660 deadweight tons, boosting production for the first 11 months this year to 1,532 ships with a total of 14,986,538 deadweight tons.

Fifty-six of the vessels delivered last month were military types for the army and navy. Others were 48 Liberty cargo ships, nine Victory cargo, five standard C-type cargo, 22 standard tankers, 11 coastal cargo, and three concrete cargo ships.

Top honors went to west coast ship yards, which produced 60 ships. Great Lakes yards delivered nine coastal vessels.

BACON RIND SHOE OUTPUT BEGINS —NOT RATIONED

Cleveland, O., Dec. 5 (AP).—Production of ration free children's shoes from "pigstrip" [bacon rind] will begin within 30 days on a small scale and soon output will be at the rate of 7 to 10 million pairs annually, William A. Molster of Washington, D. C., OPA shoe rationing chief, reported today at a conference with Cleveland, Cincinnati, and Columbus shoe rationing officials.

A WPB order effective Dec. 1 permits manufacturers to produce "pigstrip" shoes, but the unrationed products must sell at prices of comparable rationed shoes, Molster said. Soles of the unrationed shoes must be of unrationed material, probably reclaimed rubber.

Lifting of restrictions on "pigstrip" footwear also will make unrationed shoes available to misses and women, said Molster.

MOTORS KEEP STOCK MARKET ADVANCE GOING

Profit Selling Stalls Rails and Steels.

New York, Dec. 5 (AP).—Strength in motors and certain industrials enabled the stock market to extend its advance today when profit cashing stalled recently buoyant rails and steels.

Buyers were inspired by longer war prospects and waning reconversion apprehension, but some turned cautious as the general average approached July's seven year peak, which the carrier composite has topped. Some accounts were adjusted to take advantage of the six months' capital gains tax allowance, and this proved a handicap.

a point or more were reduced or canceled.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.1 at 56.2. The market was broad, 960 issues being traded, of which 458 advanced, 267 declined, and 235 were unchanged. Transfers of 1,475,770 shares, compared with 1,427,780 yesterday, were third largest since July 17.

Prominent issues advancing included Pepsi-Cola, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Eastman Kodak, Pan American Airways, International Harvester, and Southern Railway.

RAIL DEMAND AIDS BONDS.

New York, Dec. 5 (AP).—The bond market was subjected to profit taking in spots today, but enough reserve power existed to provide a fully steady undertone largely as a result of substantial demand for favored rails. That certain leaders had reached a point of supply was shown by heavy turnover without a corresponding net change either way.

Advancing fractions to a point or more were Seaboard 4s, Wisconsin Central 4s, Northern Pacific 5s, New Haven 4s, New York and Putnam 4s, Katy adjustment 5s and first 4s, Lehigh Valley 4½s, and Hudson and Manhattan income 5s and refunding 5s.

CHICAGO RISE EXTENDED.

Prices extended their rise as volume increased to 44,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. More active issues were Peabody Coal, up ¾; Asbestos Manufacturing, New York Central, and Nash-Kelvinator, each up ⅛, and Chicago corporation, unchanged. Among eight 1944 highs reached were E. L. Bruce, up 1,

SENATE COMMITTEE KILLS BILL TO RULE COMMERCIAL RENTS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5 (AP).—The senate banking committee today killed a commercial rent control bill by a vote of 10 to 7. Eight Republicans and two Democrats opposed the bill introduced by Chairman Wagner [D., N. Y.], who said he had received complaints of "rent gouging" from persons renting factory and office space in New York City. Seven Democrats supported the bill. Many of the votes were cast by proxy.

The bill would have empowered OPA to set ceilings on the rentals of commercial properties, as it now does for residential properties.

The majority view was that the problem is essentially local, with most complaints arising in New York and one or two other cities. Sen. Taft [R., O.] suggested the matter could be handled by state legislatures.

Altho the legislation is dead for this session, it appeared certain to bob up again next spring when congress considers a bill extending the life of OPA.

Air Line Votes Finance Plan; to Split Stock

New York, Dec. 5 (AP).—Directors of Pan American Airways corporation today approved a financing program expected to provide at least 25 million dollars of capital next year to purchase new equipment and meet other needs. This is the first step in financing post-war equipment purchases which, it is understood, may exceed 100 millions.

Outstanding stock will be split on the basis of two new shares for each present share under the plan, and Atlas corporation has agreed to underwrite the offering and accompanying warrants to the extent of 25 million, said a Pan American statement.

Juan T. Trippe, president, said that after the stock has been split stockholders would be offered the right to buy one additional share for each two shares then held, with a 2½ year option warrant to buy a second additional share.

June Offering Expected.

He said a special meeting of stockholders probably will be called for early next year to vote on the plan, with the new offering scheduled for June.

Pan American said it was placing orders for a large fleet of high speed transports to operate thruout the world. Their construction will start as soon as military priorities permit.

The largest will be a double deck plane weighing 184,000 pounds with a capacity for 149 passengers. Another will weigh 162,000 pounds and will carry 108 passengers. Clippers now weigh 86,000 pounds and carry 72 passengers.

New financing, together with the stock split, should result in a wider distribution of ownership, the company said.

Basis for Unit Price Told.

The price of the unit of one split-up share and one option warrant will be approximately the price of one of the split-up shares at the time of offering. The present stock closed today on the New York Stock exchange at $33.87½.

Pan American said its new clippers would replace the fleet flying out of New York, Miami, New Orleans, Brownsville, Tex., Laredo, Tex., Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Seattle. The company has applied for the right to add service from new gateways in Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Tampa, Charleston, and Houston.

Directors declared a dividend of $1 a share, first disbursement since $1 was paid Dec. 10, 1943.

COTTON SUBSIDY TERMED BID FOR ECONOMIC WARS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5 (AP).—Administration officials said today that continuance of the new cotton export program authorized by congress might precipitate broad scale economic warfare between the present allies.

Testifying before a special house agriculture post-war planning committee, Dean Acheson, assistant secretary of state, said objections already have arisen from friendly foreign cotton producing countries to the world sale of the American staple on a subsidized basis. The committee is headed by Rep. Pace [D., Ga.].

L. A. Wheeler, foreign relations director for the department of agriculture, said the only practicable solution to the cotton export problem lay in working out international trade agreements.

HOG PRICES RISE 10 TO 15 CENTS AS RECEIPTS SLUMP

The pork industry, expecting large receipts of hogs from farms this week, was surprised yesterday when volume dropped to the lowest for a Tuesday in three weeks and 30 per cent below a week earlier. Buyers hurriedly bought all offerings mostly at 10 to 15 cents higher prices than on Monday. The average rose 15 cents to $13.95 a hundred pounds.

The market for good to choice steers came out of the slump that began last week as farmers curtailed supplies. Buyers bid many of the $15.00 to $16.00 kinds up fully 25 cents and gave a $17.10 top for cattle that were not considered prime.

Lambs sold slowly and weak to 25 cents lower. The $14.35 top was lowest since Oct. 25.

INDUSTRY TOLD IT MUST TAKE RECORD RISKS

More Jobs Needed, Says J. M. Cleary.

Business must take risks on an unprecedented scale after the war if vast unemployment is to be prevented, James M. Cleary asserted yesterday at the annual convention of The Chicago Tribune advertising department held in the main studio of W-G-N. A member of Roche, Williams & Cleary, advertising firm, Cleary spoke in behalf of the committee for economic development.

James M. Cleary.

Business and industry have a large part of the responsibility of providing 10 million extra jobs after the war, raising the total of about 46 million at work before the war to 56 million, he said.

Many Prefer to Retire.

"A surprisingly large number of business men are worn out and discouraged by distressing problems and complexities encountered in recent years," he continued. "Many who have been working to the limit of their mental and physical capacity are going to say after the war, 'My plant belongs to the government; it will be run by unions and taxation will take up any profits, so I am going to retire and live on my war bonds.'"

Cleary said that such thinking must end; that business men must be induced to accept the strain and peril involved in greatly expanded production and employment. They must be approached from the standpoint not only of possible profit but also with an appeal to patriotism and to pride in accomplishment.

The United States today owns 16 billion dollars' worth of manufacturing facilities, the finest plants and tools and machinery the world has ever seen, he said. These must be used in providing jobs.

Tells Advertising's Rôle.

"We hear mention of the enormous purchasing power stored up in savings banks and in war bonds," he said. "It isn't hoarded money, but circulated money that makes progress. Salesmen and advertising media can contribute enormously to post-war prosperity by increasing the velocity of circulation of money."

About 2¾ billion dollars will be spent for durable consumers' goods during the first year after the war by consumers in 242 counties in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa—in the Chicago area—other speakers told the group. They estimated that about 1 billion 383 million will be spent for new homes, 528 million for home furnishings, 174 million for remodeling, and 569 million for automobiles.

CORN STRENGTH STARTS GENERAL GRAIN ADVANCE

Continued light country offerings of corn, a resumption of government buying for lend-lease purposes, and a belief that distillers soon would use much more corn lifted futures prices 1⅜ cents a bushel in early trade and led to general short covering which boosted other grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday.

Altho top prices were not maintained, corn closed up 1 to 1⅜ cents. Wheat was ⅛ to 1¼ cents higher, with December at a new peak since October. Oats rose ½ to ¾ cent, the December contract reaching 70½ cents, highest since early August. Rye was 1 to 1¾ cents higher. Barley gained 1¼ to 1⅜ cents.

Short covering in wheat, oats, and rye failed to bring pressure on the rise. Rye led the advance, helped by persistent commission house buying despite the prospect the demand from distillers would probably decrease when the use of corn and grain sorghums increased.

Big Railroad Builds Future on Coal, Steam Locomotives

Development of coal fueled steam locomotives is a major policy of the Pennsylvania railroad in building for the future, James M. Symes, vice president, said yesterday at a Union station press luncheon after a private showing of the road's newest type locomotives. The main attraction was the S-2, a turbine driven steam engine.

James M. Symes.

"It always has been our policy to build for the future, and we think that what was shown here today indicated considerable progress in carrying out that policy," Symes said. "These engines are all coal burners.

Abundant Coal Supply at Hand.

"There is an abundant supply of high quality coal in the territory we serve, and naturally we are interested in constantly improving the coal burning locomotives. We have about 4,400 steam locomotives many of them built since the beginning of the war.

"Included among the engines here are some that already have proven themselves efficient pieces of machinery, and others are in the experimental stage. The latter have proven themselves from an engineering standpoint—they are off the drafting board, actually built, and ready for practical operating service tests."

The heavy reliance of the Pennsylvania on steam locomotives is shown in that only 18 diesel engines are in operation on the system and these in switching service. The Pennsylvania has one large diesel passenger locomotive on order.

Reaches 120 M. P. H. in Tests.

One of the engines on exhibit was the T-1, the road's newest four cylinder steam passenger locomotive, which has been operated at speeds up to 120 miles an hour in the test plant at Altoona, Pa. Two of this streamlined type are in service.

Also on display was the S-1, the world's largest and fastest passenger locomotive, a streamlined engine slightly more than 140 feet long.

Turks Study Big Post-War Rail Purchase

Galib Guran, assistant director general of the Turkish state railways, disclosed yesterday his country plans a broad post-war railroad improvement program calling for large purchases of rail equipment in Chicago and other American cities.

Guran has been visiting rail equipment manufacturers and inspecting railroad facilities and attending the international civil aviation conference in the Stevens hotel.

He said Turkey's initial rail improvement budget calls for expenditure of 6 million dollars and the long term program for several times that amount.

Commission to Place Orders.

Orders for the equipment will be placed by a special purchasing commission which will visit this country in the next 60 days, Guran said. The group will be guided by a set of recommendations compiled by Guran.

Equipment needed includes locomotives, freight and passenger cars, switches, signal equipment, safety devices, spare parts and all kinds of operational and repair tools. Guran said steam locomotives would be purchased because Turkey has an abundance of coal, but little oil, making it impractical to operate diesel engines on any large scale.

With these purchases the Turkish government plans to extend its rail lines, increase their efficiency and safety, and raise average train speeds from 55 to 70 miles an hour. One of the first "safety" measures contemplated is installation of telephone lines along Turkey's 6,000 miles of railway, Guran said. At present telegraph lines provide the only means of communication.

Has Only Repair Facilities.

Guran said Turkey probably would buy rolling stock and other equipment in foreign countries for some time, because Turkey has only repair facilities which will be improved before manufacturing is undertaken.

"Streamlining" in the American sense of the word is a "little ahead of the story as far as Turkey is concerned," he said, because Turkish railways are "only in their teens," compared with American lines.

BRITON URGES SPLIT OF WORLD MARKETS WITH UNITED STATES

BY JOSEPH CEBUTTI.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 5.—A demand that Britain persuade the United States to split world markets between them was made in the house of lords today by Ivor G. Guest, who bears the title Viscount Wimborne. Admitting that Britain will end the war with only one-quarter of its prewar export trade and with a merchant navy reduced by one-third, he insisted: "We have got to make some arrangement with the United States. Jointly we and the United States could dominate the trade of the world, but if we indulged in unrestricted competition it would be disastrous to both."

Reginald T. H. Fletcher said British export trade has shrunk only 50 per cent.

Edward J. Stanley of Alderley gave the house an idea of what American production could achieve if necessary. He said he had worked in an American shipyard. When he arrived in the United States the site was a swamp, but "within nine months that shipyard built no fewer than 60 destroyers." He said there is no indication that the British are capable of duplicating such a performance.

PREDICTS GAIN FOR CHICAGO IN FREIGHT BY AIR

Stout Says City Will Be Sales Center.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Development of air freight will give Chicago one of the best opportunities for expansion in its history, William B. Stout, Detroit, president of the Stout Research laboratory, a division of the Consolidated Vultee company, said yesterday. He spoke at the air cargo meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers in the Knickerbocker hotel.

William B. Stout.

He suggested that air freight would make advisable the concentration of merchandising, particularly of higher priced merchandise. It will enable merchants to keep smaller quantities of expensive goods on their shelves and to reduce the amount of capital tied up in inventory, because it will permit replenishment on short notice.

Chicago Position Favorable.

Consequently it will be economic to concentrate merchandising in such middle western centers as Chicago, in easy access to consumption centers, he said.

Stout said he believes that the air lines should be able to equal or better railroad rates on merchandise requiring special handling, tho they will not be able to compete on a large part of the freight handled by the railroads. He predicted a large air business in perishables and special luxury items.

He said that science is making such rapid progress that it is impossible to predict many of the advances which will be made in air freight. This is particularly true of power. For the immediate future he predicted continued use of air cooled engines as the most economic source of power, adding that if the British put their faith in the Rolls Royce liquid cooled engine, United States air lines will have a marked advantage. He said the Rolls Royce engine requires a great deal of maintenance and major service after 250 hours whereas air cooled engines will give 1,000 hours service.

Predicts High Wing Craft.

Cargo planes will be designed for specific runs and services and probably never will be a mass production item, Stout predicted. He said they would be high wing craft, making for easy loading and unloading, and must be able to get in and out of small flying fields.

The keen competitive business in air transport after the war will require ships able to stay in the air 18 hours a day, he said, because the plane that rests on the ground eats up profits. He predicted that air cargo planes will have detachable compartments for speedy pickup and delivery of freight.

SHIPYARD PIPE FITTERS STRIKE IN RACIAL ISSUE

One hundred seventy-six pipe fitters in the pipe shop of the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing company's Calumet ship yards, where LSM's [landing ships, medium] are built, walked off the job at 4 p. m. yesterday, an hour before quitting time.

They left work after a Negro employe in the shop had been made a group leader. One hundred thirty-five other employes in the shop remained at work.

Unions Demand Mediation.

A refusal by Bernard J. Fallon, executive officer of the Chicago, Aurora, and Elgin and the Chicago, North Shore, and Milwaukee railroads, to accede to union demands for 12 to 16 cents an hour wage increases was met by a union demand for immediate mediation.

Fallon met with D. D. Miller, vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and John Zanger, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. The wage demand followed the acceptance of a 5 cents an hour increase which terminated a 17 day strike on the two roads last week.

Claims Pay Ceiling Exceeded.

The company's refusal was based on its contention that the men already have received 7.3 cents more per hour since Jan. 1, 1941, than is allowed under the 15 per cent limit of the Little Steel formula.

A four day strike of 41 tool grinders over the discharge of a fellow worker for "loafing" at the Dodge Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation, where engines for B-29 Super Fortresses are made, was settled and the men returned.

Val Blazic, president of the independent union at the Ramapo Ajax division of American Brake Shoe company, 2503 Blue Island av., last night called a meeting for 11 a. m. today to discuss with 160 production workers at the plant who have been on strike since last Thursday a war labor board demand that they return to work.

License Steel Companies to Manufacture 'Aldecor'

The composition has been successfully applied and tested in box car ends, miscellaneous parts for freight cars, mine cars, and similar items, the company said.

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS.

Please give me information regarding Sherwin-Williams company's products in addition to paints and other surface coatings? What were the common share earnings in recent years.—G. H.

Besides its large production of paints, paint materials, varnishes, and lacquers, Sherwin-Williams has a wide line of products. These include chemicals, insecticides, coal tar products, dyes, lead products, disinfectants, cleaners, and polishers. A large ordnance plant at Carbondale, Ill., is operated for the government.

The company's report for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, said: "The company continues to manufacture most of the acetanilid used in this country from which sulfa drugs are made." It added that D. D. T., a chemical compound which it is making for the government "has great possibilities as an insecticide for household and agricultural uses." In the last fiscal year the company's new fiber can unit produced 49 million containers, not only providing for its own requirements but also making available large quantities for sale.

Sales of all products for the year were 10.5 per cent larger than in the 1943 fiscal year which had shown a gain of 11.6 per cent over the preceding year. Profit in the 1944 period was equal to $5.55 a share on the 638,927 common shares, after deducting special reserves equal to $1.86.

In earlier years the earnings per share were: 1943, $5.07 after special reserves of $1.33; 1942, $7.43; 1941, $7.83; 1940, $6.57; 1939, $5.96; 1938, $2.42. The common dividend rate from 1939 on has been $3.

$100,000,000 A MONTH FOR NAVY ROCKETS

Much as Is Spent on All Other Ammunition!

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5 (AP).—The navy shortly will be spending $100,000,000 monthly on rocket ammunition alone.

Rockets have found increasing use, among others, for spraying death upon Japanese machine gunners as a cover for landing operations.

Equals Other Expenditures.

The $100,000,000 outlay, to be attained within four months, is "as much as is now being spent per month for all types of naval ammunition," said the office of war information in a cautiously worded report today on the United States use and development of rockets.

The army is down for about $12,000,000 monthly thruout 1945 for rocket ammunition, over and above the amount spent on the projectors themselves—tank-piercing bazookas and other rocket launchers.

Indication that America may have some rocket surprises in store for the axis was given in this OWI comment: "Newest American rocket developments, including design details and the range and speed attained by the projectiles, as well as projection figures, have not yet been made public by the military authorities."

Seek to Increase Accuracy.

Noting that ordnance experts have not officially reported any giant, long-range projectile like the German V-2 rocket bomb, OWI said: "American ordnance experts have concentrated on developing artillery type rockets, with emphasis on correcting the present relative inaccuracy of rocket fire."

Characterizing the rocket as "one of the principal weapon innovations of this war," OWI said it is used on seven types of American war planes—the army's Lightnings, Airacobras, Warhawks, Thunderbolts, and Mustangs, and the navy's TBF torpedo planes and Bell manufactured jet-propelled planes.

Rear Adm. Daniel E. Barbey, commander of the navy's 7th fleet amphibious force, was quoted as reporting that rockets were "particularly effective during the crucial phase of establishing a beachhead."

Spread Havoc Among Defenders.

"Fired from multiple deck tubes on landing craft, rockets spread destruction among enemy machine gunners as they wait for the troops to hit the beach," the report continued.

The newer 4.5 inch "M-8" rocket is roughly twice the diameter and length of the bazooka and equals in firepower the 105 mm. medium artillery gun, OWI reported. Yet its launcher costs $104 compared with $8,406 for the artillery piece.

Patricia Sits Up in Bed; Looks Forward to Yule

Patricia Attaway, 6, whose battle against lymphatic leukemia, a dread blood disease, in St. Charles hospital, Aurora, has attracted nation-wide attention, sat up in bed for a short time yesterday. She also ate some steak for lunch. She is looking forward to a happy Christmas with her father, Chief Petty Officer Floyd M. Attaway of the Seabees, returned from the South Pacific to be with his daughter.

EX-PASTOR GETS 1 TO 3 YEARS FOR HAVING 3 WIVES

Noah Gray, 37, a former minister who pleaded guilty Nov. 20 to having three simultaneous wives, yesterday was sentenced to serve one to three years in prison by Judge Peter M. Schwaba in Criminal court.

The court denied Gray's plea for probation, based upon his promise to accept a government job in the Aleutians and forget all about women.

"I don't think it would be wise to take a chance on this man," Assistant State's Atty. Francis McCurrie, told the court. "Probably he would have another wife an hour after he left the courtroom."

Two of Gray's wives, Mrs. Thelma Temple Gray, whom he married in 1926, and Mrs. Vienna Maki Gray, whom he wed 11 years later, each have borne him five children. Both wives were in the courtroom during their husband's trial, and both disclaimed any further interest in him. His third wife, Mrs. Adeline Prohask Gray, who was contemporaneous with the other two.

Argentina Will Pension White Collar Workers

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 5 (AP).—The Argentine government extended its social welfare program last night with a decree providing pensions for about 1,000,000 white collar workers. Virtually all office workers, employes of retail establishments and foremen of all categories are affected. Beginning Jan. 1, workers will contribute 7 per cent of their wages and employers an additional 9 per cent to a pension fund.

IDENTIFY WOMAN FOUND DEAD AS SOLDIER'S WIFE

A young woman found dead Monday in a lodging house at 619 Belden av. was identified yesterday as Mrs. Betty Markham, 25, wife of Corp. Raymond Markham, stationed in Pennsylvania. Markham and his wife's sister, Mrs. Bernice Meisner, 34, of 5547 Union av., made the identification. Mrs. Meisner said Mrs. Markham had disappeared eight days ago from the Gately hotel, 6150 Greenwood av., where she had roomed with another young woman, Helen Zack. Mrs. Markham had a son, 3, who was boarded at a neighbor's house while she worked. Dr. Samuel A. Levinson, coroner's physician, said last evening he would perform a post-mortem to determine the cause of death.

Red Cross Extends Time for Prisoner Messages

The period for sending messages thru the American Red Cross to American prisoners of war and civilian internees in the Philippines has been extended thru Dec. 15, the Red Cross said yesterday. The original closing date for such messages was Nov. 30. The messages will be accepted only for those prisoners whose addresses are known and will be delivered after their liberation.

Two Quakes Awaken U. S. Flyers on Saipan

SAIPAN, Marianas Islands, Dec. 5 (AP).—Two mild earthquakes rocked Saipan at 6:30 a. m. today, awakening some crews of American Super Fortress bombers. Each shock lasted for about half a minute, but caused no damage.

POLICE, BAR QUIZ ATTY. GOLDSTEIN IN 2 NEW PROBES

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Three investigations yesterday were centered on Atty. William Goldstein, who is accused of having given perjured testimony in the trial of William [Big Bill] Johnson, former gambler convicted of income tax evasion. Two of the investigations of Goldstein were secret ones.

It was learned that Goldstein had been summoned yesterday morning to the office of Ed Daly, inspector of personnel for the police department. Daly wouldn't say why. Other policemen said Goldstein was not being investigated, but that policemen of the Cragin police station were being asked to explain how Goldstein was hired by a man who was being held in a police cell on charges of depravity.

Quizzed by Bar Committee.

Goldstein was summoned last night to appear before a committee of the Chicago Bar association. Clarence Denning, secretary of the association, said the law forbids him to tell why Goldstein was cited or to reveal the committee which demanded Goldstein's presence. Denning said, however, that Goldstein was not questioned about the Johnson gambling case.

Police heard that the bar members wanted Goldstein to explain a supposedly exorbitant fee. Goldstein charged the Cragin station prisoner $1,200 for a police court defense.

Goldstein, known as a gambling syndicate lawyer and personal attorney for the late William Skidmore, who was considered the chief fixer and go-between for gamblers and racketeers, was indicted for perjury during the gambling investigation of 1939.

Prosecution Is Deferred.

Federal lawyers said his prosecution had been deferred until after the Johnson case is settled.

Last month Johnson, who was convicted and sentenced to five years in prison, asked a new trial, saying he had proof of perjury by Goldstein other than that charged in the five year old indictment. Johnson cited records tending to show that Goldstein and his son own property which Goldstein, in Johnson's trial, said was owned by Johnson. The matter admittedly is under investigation, and Judge John P. Barnes of the United States District court is expected to rule on it within a few days.

The Veterans Information Center of Metropolitan Chicago, which supplies returning service men and women with information relative to their rights, privileges, and opportunities, will formally open its new quarters tomorrow in room 230 of the Bankers building, 105 W. Adams st.

A ceremony marking the event will take place at 10:30 a. m. in the auditorium of the Marquette building, 140 S. Dearborn st., the nearest suitable place. Gov. Green, Mayor Kelly, and representatives of the services, the federal and state governments, and the Red Cross are to participate.

The center is financed by the Community and War fund. A. A. Sprague is chairman of the executive committee and Homer G. Bradney and E. J. Condon are vice chairmen.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Art Kreitzer, 5127 Laflin st.]

THE QUESTION.

What would-be gate crasher will you never forget? [Asked of Andy Frain ushers.]

WHERE ASKED.

Chicago Stadium.

THE ANSWERS.

Henry Gallman, 4878 Armitage av.—For the last 12 years I've gone to the Kentucky Derby to usher. The first time Andy and I went down we found organized gangs of gate crashers. Some men came dressed as trainers or owners and said that they left their badges at home. People also try to buy track employes' coats.

Theodore Johnson, 604 N. Laramie av.—During the Republican convention a man in a business suit came in carrying a piece of ice on his shoulder and wanted to get thru as the ice man. We knew he wasn't an ice man because of his dress. He made another mistake too. He came to the wrong gate to deliver ice.

Samuel Calabrese, 2017 Congress st.—When we went to Cleveland for the Stribling-Schmeling fight, we had difficulty getting in to usher because people thought we were marines who were crashing the fight. After we took over we had the most trouble with phony passes handed out by Cleveland politicians.

Joe Murphy, 939 W. 34th st.—All gate men at the Democratic convention were instructed that admittance was by ticket only. One chap came to the gate in white overalls and white shoes and carrying a step ladder. He said he was an electrician called to make repairs. Others offered $100 for my uniform.

Edward Donahue, 2123 Ogden av.—At the Primo Carnera-King Levinsky fight, a group of about 800 Carnera fans came with jugs of wine, sandwiches, and the like. I was ushering in $6.60 seats and when they passed thru my section to reach the $1.80 seats, about 50 of them tried to sneak into the $6.60 division.

Dick Kuzman, 4845 Congress st.—We were summoned by the owner of the Brooklyn baseball club to help usher because Brooklyn was troubled with fans trying to crash the gates. The usual trick was to come up in a crowd and as it swept thru the gates to say, "The fellow behind me has the tickets."

TWO ADMIT $94 THEFT.

Donald De Fries, 17, of 1746 Winnemac av., and Stewart Schwartz, 17, of 1337 Fargo av., were arrested yesterday after they took $94 from a cash box in the tavern at 5216 Broadway, during a temporary absence of the bartender. They admitted the theft, police said, when the money was found on their persons.

DONATES BLOOD, FLIES WITH IT TO BATTLE ZONE

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 5 (AP).—Jack McDowell, a reporter on the San Francisco Call-Bulletin staff, went to the Red Cross blood donor center here one day last week and gave a pint of blood.

About 48 hours later McDowell arrived at Guam with the blood he had donated and that given by others, and saw some of it used for a transfusion.

He's back in San Francisco after the trip, reporting that "more, more, and more" blood is needed for wounded Yanks.

Goes to Advanced Base.

"Just 48 hours after flying over the Red Cross blood donor center where more than 100 other San Franciscans and I put blood from our veins into little pint bottles, I stepped to the air strip of an advanced American base within 1,500 miles of Tokyo," he said in a news story.

"With the speed and ingenuity of the naval air transport service I was able to make Jules Verne look like a crawling piker, but the real thrill came in a forward area hospital as I watched color return to the face of a critically burned seabee.

"In the bottle suspended above his hospital cot was blood donated by Chesla O'Brien, 22. I saw it drained from her arm as she lay on a cot adjacent to mine in the blood center. [Bottles containing the blood were labeled with the names of the donors.]

Watches Blood Transfusion.

"My own pint of blood was in the hopper somewhere else, but I was able to follow that of Miss O'Brien across the Pacific to the advance blood bank at Guam and ultimately to the veins of Willie R. Boyter, 34, of Pine Bluff, Ark.

"Boyter, a veteran of D-day fighting in the Marianas, was thin and pale. He had charged up the beach of this particular island thru the hell of Japanese mortar and artillery fire. His buddies dropped dead or wounded beside him as his outfit pushed thru the fire. Boyter came thru the battle unhurt—only to fall victim to the accidental explosion of a drum of turpentine. Now, according to medical officers, he is on the mend.

"Boyter wanted to know more about the girl who had sent her blood to help him back to health and the United States. I told him she had donated blood three times, had recently moved to San Francisco from Boston, and that one of the first things she did was call the blood donor center and make an appointment.

Vet Sends His Thanks.

"'You don't know how thankful I am,' Boyter said, licking his dry lips in the tropical heat. 'Will you take a message back to the little girl in San Francisco for me? Tell her something to make her feel good—tell her how much I appreciate her sending part of her own blood all the way over here to me.'

"'Say,' he continued, 'will you tell that girl something else for me, too? Tell her I hope her blood gets me home to my wife quicker. I haven't seen her in 22 months.'

"Boyter's wife, Caroline, manages a coffee shop in a hotel in Pine Bluff.

"Shipments of whole blood are leaving San Francisco by air every day. They are landing at forward area hospitals two days later. The ingenious plan is working, but the demand is for more, more, and more."
